CONGRESS NEARS END IN FIGHT

FRENCH ALLIES TURN ON PARIS; DENOUNCE PACT

Poland Calls Accord 'Act of Treason.'

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, July 15.—That reborn "entente cordiale," which seems to mean one thing in French and something else again in English, today provoked a reaction from an unexpected quarter—eastern Europe.

Emissaries of France's chief continental rival, Germany, and France's principal continental vassal, Poland, united by common alarm at this new shift in the post-war European lineup, called on Premier Herriot at the Quai d'Orsay to obtain explanations demanded by their respective governments.

Poland Is Angry.

The German ambassador, Leopold von Hoesch, was the less perturbed of the two. He wanted to know what it was all about and to make sure that if any one is to be "done in," it is not his his country.

It was the Polish minister, August Zaleski, who put on the storm, it is understood. It is reported that his remarks, with all diplomatic trimming removed, were to the effect that the Franco-British "confidence" pact is nothing less than an act of treason on the part of France towards all her continental allies. Zaleski further protested heatedly in the name of all the small and medium powers of Europe, which see in the new combination a death blow to the league of nations and the setting up of a virtual dictatorship by the big military powers.

Back of this twin protest is a story of some of the fastest and fanciest diplomatic card dealing Europe has seen since the war.

Evolution Is Traced.

On information received from a reliable source close to the French foreign ministry, the evolution of this latest agreement can be traced as follows:

The germ of the idea was a German suggestion made during a lull at the Lausanne conference on reparations for a new consultative pact between the big European powers with the idea of detaching France from Poland and the little entente. The French and British took the idea under consideration and finally emerged with a plan for a virtual resurrection of the "big five"—a supreme council of the big European powers, which would thereafter handle all of the important European problems by applying the Lausanne method.

The Lausanne method means direct and secret negotiations between responsible agents of the big powers instead of a parliamentary organization of more or less open diplomacy as practiced at the home of the league of nations at Geneva—a method of organization which allows small powers to play an important role. This new system actually has been applied to all important international questions for the last year, but it was considered advisable to give it a legal status and a permanent form.

Original Plan Revealed.

The original plan called for a pact between France, England, Germany, Italy and Japan. Foreseeing that the inclusion of Japan in such a council would provoke the suspicion of the United States that the Japanese were being invited to join a directorate to settle world affairs without consideration of Washington, D. C., it was expressly stated in the draft of the pact that the scope of the "council" would be limited to European problems. The invitation to Japan to join was maintained, however, and it is understood that the Nipponese are being pressed to adhere.

There was a second transformation of the scheme when limitation of membership in the pact to the five big powers was not clearly expressed. Thus, Belgium, which followed on the heels of Italy in expressing the intention of adhering to the accord was able to slip in alongside the great nations.

Finally, at Premier Herriot's insistence the fourth paragraph of the accord, which refers to a purely Franco-British matter—a commercial treaty—was inserted in order to enable French diplomats to tell their constituents that they had reformed the old "entente cordiale."

Germany's Adherence Doubtful.

The plan in its later phases seems to close observers as a clever distortion of the German proposal, and Germany's adherence now is dubious.

Opinion in well informed circles here is that there are two possible lines of development—either the opposition of France's allies and the little powers

STORM BREAKS TORRID SPELL; COOLER TODAY

A sudden thunderstorm swept the city shortly before 3 o'clock last night and brought welcome relief from the hottest day of the year. Chicago's lake breeze again came into play and within an hour the mercury dropped from 94 to 83 degrees. The day's maximum temperature was 97 degrees, at 4 and 5 o'clock. The last official temperature, reported at 10 p. m., was 81.

Tragedy accompanied the storm. A bolt of lightning struck a group of ball players and spectators in a lot at Diversey parkway and Clybourn avenue. One man was killed. Six others were taken to the Alexian Brothers hospital. Twenty more were shocked but not seriously injured.

Killed by Lightning.

Michael Becker, 40 years old, 1844 Maud avenue, a member of a married men's team playing a group of young men, was killed by the bolt. Only a few minutes earlier he had put his side into the lead with a double, clearing the filled bases. He was standing against a makeshift backstop, consisting of a bed spring, when the bolt struck the spring. He was killed instantly.

William Piper, 27, of 2218 Seminary avenue, standing beside him, was critically hurt. The others injured were Andrew Kovacs, 30, 1866 Dayton street; George, 27, his brother, 1844 Maud avenue; Tony Shikel, 33, 1852 Dayton street; George Gubics, 35, 1713 Dayton street, and John Csonka, 25, 1864 Dayton street.

The storm was unexpected, but, according to C. A. Donnel, government forecaster, such rainfalls are not uncommon during protracted heat waves. As the storm broke the wind was coming from the west, then it veered to the northwest, and within a few minutes was blowing from the northeast. It was then that the mercury dropped. At the federal building it went to the lower 80s. In Winnetka it dropped to 79 from unofficial readings around 100 of a few hours earlier. The Wilmette coast guard station reported a drop of 24 degrees and Evanston experienced a 16 degree change.

Cooler Weather Today.

Today, according to Forecaster Donnel, will be comfortably cool. However, warmer winds may prevail in the late afternoon. The northeast winds are not strong enough to hold throughout the day, he believes. Tomorrow will be somewhat cloudy and warmer than today, he said.

Added to the discomfort of yesterday's heat there was a shortage of water in several sections of the city, especially on the west side. Hundreds of families living above the first floor reported inability to get water from their faucets.

The county hospital was among the places affected by the water shortage. Following the complaints Commissioner of Public Works A. A. Sprague appealed for conservation of water and police stopped the opening of fire hydrants. The city pumping stations were taxed virtually to capacity. At 4 o'clock the pumpage was at the rate of 1,406,000,000 gallons a day. The normal pumpage is a billion gallons. On July 1 last year a record pumpage of 1,466,000,000 gallons was established.

Lake Beaches Crowded.

Every lake beach from the southern extremity of the city to the north shore was packed. Unofficial estimates placed the attendance at 835,300. This figure includes the attendance at park pools.

Oak street beach accommodated the largest crowd, with 250,000. The Jackson park beaches included a similar number. Rogers Park beaches had more than 100,000 bathers. Approximately 100,000 went to the west park pools and some 45,000 visited the south park pools.

Peter Zarra, 20 years old, 2445 Arthington street, was drowned in the Fox river at Carpentersville, near Elgin. Oscar Shires, 18 years old, a Negro, of 1025 Emerson street, Evanston, sank off the Greenwood avenue beach, Evanston.

Almost all sections of the country suffered in yesterday's heat except the north and eastern upper lake region and the North Atlantic states. The highest official temperature was 102, recorded at Concordia, Kas. Continued hot weather was forecast for several central states today, especially those in the plains areas.

PROF. R. T. ELY, 79, IS FATHER OF SON; WIFE IS AN EX-PUPIL

New York, July 15.—(AP)—Prof. Richard T. Ely, noted economist, who is 79 years of age, today announced the birth of a son to him and Mrs. Ely at Paterson, N. J., on July 1.

Mrs. Ely, the former Margaret Hahn, was one of Prof. Ely's students at Northwestern university at Evanston, Ill. She is in her early thirties.

"His mother thinks he may become a football player," the professor said of his son. "He's a fine, big, kicking fellow, an eight pound boy."

The child has been named William Brewster, after an early ancestor, who was one of the leaders of the Mayflower colony.

Prof. Ely was the outstanding economist on the faculty of the University of Wisconsin at Madison from 1892 to 1925, when he came to Northwestern university. He is internationally known in his profession. In 1925 he established a memorial scholarship at Madison as a memorial to his first wife.

His marriage to his present wife took place last summer, but was not announced until Christmastime. He is still connected with Northwestern as director of the institution for research in land economics and public utilities.

Seized Wearing 3 Suits and a Heavy Overcoat

It was just before the rainstorm last night, and the mercury was still up in the 90s. Policeman Richard Komensky of the Maxwell street station noticed a perspiring wanderer staggering toward him. He arrested him. At the station the man identified himself as William Southland, 48 years old, homeless. The reason for his perspiration then came to light. Southland was wearing three complete suits and a heavy winter overcoat.

Hoover Cuts Own Salary $15,000 Year

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 15.—[Special.]—President Hoover and his cabinet voluntarily accepted a cut in salary today. The President ordered a cut of 20 per cent in his salary of $75,000 a year, bringing his annual stipend down from $75,000 to $60,000.

Vice President Curtis took a voluntary cut of 15 per cent, thereby reducing his annual salary of $15,000 by $2,250. Likewise the cabinet members, all of whom took voluntary cuts of 15 per cent, will receive $12,750 a year instead of $15,000.

Hoover Lives Up to Pledge.

In accepting a reduction, President Hoover was redeeming a pledge he made to members of the house economy committee during the White House conferences over the makeup of the controversial economy bill. At that time the President said that inasmuch as congress had no authority to apply a reduction to his salary, he would take a cut voluntarily.

This pay cut is the first, voluntary or otherwise, in the history of presidential pay in the country. The salary of president was formerly smaller.

Started at $25,000.

The first congress, after considerable debate, made President Washington's salary $25,000. It remained at that figure until President Grant's second term [March 4, 1873], when it was increased to $50,000. It continued at $50,000 a year until the second session of the 60th congress raised it to $75,000, but it was not until the beginning of the 61st congress that President Taft, just inaugurated, became the first President to receive the pay increase. There has been no salary change since then.

Cabinet Requested It.

The announcement of the pay slash for President Hoover's immediate official family stated that Mr. Hoover had received a unanimous request from members of the cabinet asking that they be subjected to maximum reduction possible under the 150 million dollar economy bill.

Elmer C. Crowley, as president of the Emergency Fleet corporation, will receive the biggest pay slash of any government employé. He now receives $18,000, and according to the economy bill, his pay is not to exceed $12,500.

800 Pound Gnu Tramples, Gores Detroit Zoo Keeper

SUBCONSCIOUS MIND OF WIFE ELUDES MAGICIAN

B. G. Jarvis, 63 years old, a hypnotist and magician, walked into the office of Lieut. Al, Hoffman at the detective bureau last night. In his hand he held a warrant, issued at Lake Geneva, Wis.

"This warrant is for my wife, and it charges her with grand larceny," explained Mr. Jarvis. "I want you to arrest her. She is about 35 years old and lives in Belden avenue. I met her less than three weeks ago while she was demonstrating some shoe polish in a store."

"She must have dazzled you," interrupted the lieutenant.

"We were married two weeks ago," continued the magician. "We went to Lake Geneva for our honeymoon. Two days ago we were swimming. My wife watched me. She said, 'Dearie, go out and swim some more.' I went out again. When I returned I found she had taken $160 from my suit case and disappeared.

"If I could get her subconscious mind I could bring her to me in a minute."

Lieut. Hoffman allowed that mental attraction might be okay, but guessed he would depend upon physical persuasion by sending a couple of policemen to the runaway bride's home.

HUNT LUMBER CO. HEAD, LOST ON SWIMMING TRIP

Frederick Klapproth, head of the Chicago Lumber and Box company at 122 South Michigan avenue, was still missing from his home at 210 East Pearson street last night following his disappearance from the Jackson park bathing beach on Thursday evening. South park police and Jackson park lifeguards searched the beach and adjoining waters without result.

According to his son, John, Mr. Klapproth went swimming with a relative, Mrs. Gladys Anderson. When she prepared to return to the locker room to dress, according to the son, Mr. Klapproth said he was "going to have one more dip." When he failed to appear after several hours, Mrs. Anderson notified the police, who found his clothes in the bathing beach locker.

His Guilty Feet Reveal Him as Robber Suspect

By his shoes did Stanley Elven identify an alleged robber last night. Elven, who lives at 4813 Armitage avenue and works in a shoe store, attended a showup of suspects at the detective bureau. Among those in line stood Leslie Planting, 21 years old, of 5239 Chicago avenue. Elven indicated that Planting was the man who robbed him of $30 July 6. "You must be positive," warned Lieut. Al Hoffman. Elven then looked at Planting's shoes. He described the brand and size of a pair he had fitted on the robber just before the holdup. Inspection revealed the shoes answered the description.

Town Rebels as Drys' Cars Injure Three

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Alexandria Bay, N. Y., July 15.—[Special.]—This Jefferson county village of 2,000 in the heart of a normally politically dry area today was in open rebellion against the national prohibition laws as a result of a series of clashes between townspeople and prohibition agents.

AMOS W. W. WOODCOCK.

The chamber of commerce sent telegrams of protest against dry enforcement methods to United States Senators Robert F. Wagner and Royal S. Copeland, Representative Bertrand H. Snell, Republican minority leader of the house; Representative France D. Culkin [Rep.] Secretary of the Treasury Ogden Mills, and Prohibition Director Amos Woodcock.

Raiders Wear Vets Badges.

Snell assured the chamber by wire that Woodcock "had agreed to take personal charge of the situation." Andrew McCampbell, New York state prohibition administrator, who was in Buffalo today, was directed by Woodcock to proceed here immediately to begin an investigation.

The trouble began last Tuesday when prohibition agents raided five speakeasies during the state convention of the United Spanish War Veterans. The agents used veterans' badges to gain admittance to the speaks.

A crowd of 100 attacked two of the raiders, beating and kicking them. The agents finally were rescued by police and state troopers.

Raiders Injure Three.

Last night the agents again descended on the town, and two of their automobiles caused serious injuries to three residents, Ross Visger, Cora Bradley, and Donald Kavanaugh. Angry citizens surrounded Agent Burke Borneman, driver of one of the cars. Borneman was rescued by police and thrown into jail charged with a highway violation. He is still in jail today.

Visgar, 45, is believed injured internally and Miss Bradley received severe cuts and bruises.

As the other federal car left the village, it was stoned and there was renewed fighting. The tires of the federal cars were slashed.

City Fears Bloodshed.

The chamber's telegram to Washington officials, which was signed by Secretary G. J. Savage, was as follows:

"For the second time in two days, prohibition officers from Syracuse office raided this village in spectacular manner, first time spoiling Spanish war veterans' convention assembled here, and causing riot.

"The raids were carried out in the most brutal fashion, doors being broken down without cause, furniture broken, two people knocked down and seriously injured, and violence provoked by officers.

"Would request all possible efforts on your part to secure enforcement of nation's laws in manner suitable to the dignity of the government and according to the constitution of the United States and the bill of rights.

"Serious situation resulting in possible death and bloodshed will result inside of 48 hours if something is not done."

SENATE, HOUSE SPLIT ON RELIEF AND HOME LOAN

Hope Still Remains to Quit Tonight.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 15.—[Special.]—Whether congress will be able to carry out its plan of adjourning tomorrow will depend on its ability to straighten out the controversy that tonight held the 2 billion 133 million dollar relief bill and the home loan bank bill and its currency inflation rider locked in disagreement between the house and senate.

Resolutions providing that the two houses adjourn sine die tomorrow as soon as the day's work is done are ready to be reported out. But they will be kept back so long as the present situation persists. One was introduced by Senator Watson of Indiana, Republican leader.

Inflation Kernel of Nut.

At the center of the disagreement is the Glass-Borah amendment to the home loan bank bill with its provision for a possible billion dollar inflation of the currency through the grant of the circulation privilege to all government bonds bearing interest of 3½ per cent or less.

By a vote of 215 to 126 the house today not only rejected the Glass-Borah amendment, but by the same ballot turned down Speaker Garner's plan to add as a second rider the Goldsborough bill, ordering the federal reserve board to increase its open market operations and control its rediscount rates with a view to restoring the dollar to its 1926 value.

By an unrecorded but equally decisive vote the senate refused to back down in the face of the house action, insisted that the Glass-Borah amendment remain attached to the home loan bank bill and sent the bill and amendment back to a conference committee.

Committee Deadlocked.

That committee, in its turn, failed to reach an agreement during an evening session, leaving the dispute to be thrashed out tomorrow.

The discord over the home loan bank bill and its rider brought progress on the relief bill to a stop.

Only senate agreement to the relief bill is required, but senate leaders ordered the measure held up, in order that in might be used as a club to drive the house into line, if possible, on the Glass-Borah inflation proposal.

Though persisting in his objection to the publicity clause of the relief bill, President Hoover announced this morning that he would not veto the measure on that account.

Shortly after the President's decision the house, by a vote of 286 to 48, agreed to the conference report on the relief measure.

President Hoover's decision not to stand on his dislike of the clause providing publicity for all Reconstruction Finance corporation loans spelled a distinct victory for Speaker Garner, who has stubbornly insisted the provision be included in the bill.

Loan Reports Provided.

As finally approved by the house, the publicity loan clause of the relief bill provides that a full report shall be made on all future loans by the Reconstruction Finance corporation, whether under the new act or under the original act creating the corporation. Some members of the conference committee believed that the wording of the clause made it retroactive, which would mean the publication of details as to loans already made.

The measure also carries in its final form the Glass provision for loans to be made to individuals, corporations, and partnerships by the Federal Reserve banks. Not only did this provision remain in with President Hoover's approval, but also with his approval it was broadened by striking out the two year limitation previously placed in it and by permitting notes to be issued against collateral put up under its authorization.

Fear Abuse of Loans.

Ever since the issue of loans to private individuals was brought into prominence by their inclusion in the bill promoted by Speaker Garner there has been curiosity concerning the genesis of the private loans idea. There has been considerable speculation over the possibility that such loans might be used for the benefit of persons of political influence and reputedly in a position to become prospective borrowers.

Speaker Garner, Senator Carter Glass [Dem., Va.], author of the federal reserve bank loan provision, and White House authorities have all stated emphatically that none of the various private loan proposals has been aimed at any particular persons or set of persons. Critics of the speaker's original propsal have set it down to a desire on Mr. Garner's part to make political capital out of President Hoover's refusal to countenance a policy which the speaker claimed was aimed at helping Gov. Roosevelt's "forgotten man."

Bar Loans to Officers.

The prohibition against loans to institutions whose officers or directors have been members of the corporation's board of directors within 12 months also remained in the bill, as did the senate amendment eliminating the governor of the federal reserve board and the farm loan commissioner from the board of the corporation.

Agricultural relief figured in three sections of the bill which were finally determined on in the final draft. The senate prohibition against loans to finance farm exports being used to aid in marketing stabilization cotton was agreed on. So were loans for the "orderly marketing" of farm commodities, and it was agreed that the finance corporation should furnish in full the capital for the regional agricultural credit corporations which the bill provides may be set up in any one of the twelve federal land bank districts. The capital of each bank is fixed at a minimum of three million dollars.

Loans to States Retained.

For the rest, the bill was much as it emerged from the two houses following President Hoover's veto of the first Wagner-Garner relief bill and his insistence that loans by the corporation to private individuals be stricken out of any proposed relief legislation.

The 300 million dollars to be loaned to states and political subdivisions of states is carried with only a few minor amendments.

The main provisions of the loans for self-liquidating projects were not touched nor was the appropriation of 322 millions for the expansion of the federal public works program.

The Borah-Glass rider provided for the printing of 995 million dollars of inflation currency against outstanding government bonds bearing an interest rate not exceeding 3½ per cent. Under this provision the notes would be issued by the national banking associations upon depositing the necessary government bonds with the treasury.

The Goldsborough bill laid down as the national policy that the average purchasing power of the dollar for the period covering the years 1921 to 1929, inclusive, "shall be restored and maintained by the control of the volume of credit and currency."

To that end the federal reserve board, federal reserve banks, and secretary of the treasury were "charged with the duty" of making effective this policy.

To Free U. S. Bonds in Market.

The whole effect of the Goldsborough provision would be to compel the treasury to increase its purchase of government bonds in the open market and the flotation of additional currency against them to carry out the mandate of congress to boost prices and expand credit.

The vote against the whole program came as a distinct surprise in view of the fact that the house only a few weeks ago passed the Goldsborough plan by a vote of 289 to 60. But that was before Secretary of the Treasury Ogden L. Mills came to the capitol and denounced it as a threat to the whole credit structure of the nation and likely to topple the United States off the gold standard.

With the certain overwhelming opposition to the plan in the face of this warning from the treasury Speaker Garner sought to force senate acceptance by adding it to the Borah-Glass rider to the home loan bank bill.

CHARGE PADDING OF PAY ROLLS IN W. PARK SYSTEM

Charges of padding pay rolls and ousting civil service employés in the west park system to make way for political appointees were made yesterday before Judge Charles A. Williams in the Superior court. The allegations were made in connection with the petition for mandamus of Bernard F. Burgeson, who was ousted as concrete construction foreman of the park system.

Attorney George F. Barrett appeared as new counsel in the case, which had been handled heretofore by the park attorney, Daniel A. Roberts. Mr. Barrett asked that the answer to the petition be withdrawn. Attorney Michael F. Ryan, representing Burgeson, objected and Judge Williams refused the request.

"Their answer shows the number of temporary employés on the west park pay roll," Attorney Ryan said out of court. "They admit that from January, 1930, to May, 1932, there were 1,600 employés of the board, of which only 592 had civil service rating."

The commissioners were ordered on June 25 to bring in pay roll records for a hearing on Aug. 1 before Judge Williams. The Burgeson case will come up on that date. The west parks have had only one pay day in the last thirteen months and that was for March, 1932, the month before the primaries.

WEIMAR'S MAYOR BEATEN IN RIOT BY JOBLESS MOB

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WEIMAR, Germany, July 15.—Lord Mayor Mueller was badly beaten by a mob of unemployed men today. The rioters were infuriated because their dole had been reduced. Two hundred invaded the mayor's office in the city hall, dragged Dr. Mueller into the street and attacked him.

Police rescued him, but were unable to control the mob, which marched through the entire city, threatening other municipal officials. The municipal welfare office was wrecked.

There were also jobless and political riots in Berlin, Diiren and Hamburg. In Wittenberg communists clashed with police who fired on them.

Capt. Hermann Goering, Adolf Hitler's right hand man, spoke in Weimar today. Referring to the political riots he said: "In a few days Hitler will retract his order prohibiting the Nazis from carrying arms. If Minister of the Interior Wilhelm von Gayl gives us a free hand for three days one could not find a communist mob with a lantern."

Retire Lincoln Park Bond Issue; Finances 'Excellent'

The payment of $150,000 to retire Lincoln park bonds falling due on July 15 and interest obligations of $13,000 on other bonds was announced yesterday by Warren Wright, president of the park board. "All of our obligations due have been cared for," said Mr. Wright. "We have never defaulted on any bonds and our finances are in excellent conditions."

300 DELINQUENT ON LOOP TAXES; LIST BIG BILLS

Part of 1930 Amounts Paid by Some.

Holders of some of the most valuable property in Chicago are represented among the taxpayers delinquent on their 1930 bills, according to the county records. More than $100,000,000 of the 1930 county tax bill on real estate of $221,452,089, due June 1, is unpaid.

Examination of the rolls of the county treasurer's office revealed that more than 300 taxpayers in the loop are delinquent on taxes above $10,000 on various parcels of loop real estate. In many cases the taxpayers have filed formal objections in court against the assessment after paying substantial portions of the bills.

Among reasons advanced for failure to pay the bills, in addition to the contests, were the depression, unsettled conditions in trusts and receiverships, and the size of the bills.

Property Changing Hands.

Records of the treasurer's office do not note each contest. The record gives the name of the person or company to whom the bill is mailed and the address of the receiver of the bill, without relation to the location of the property. The record makes no distinction between owner and agent in many instances. Often properties have changed ownership without the sales being noted on the tax rolls.

The records give the legal description of each item of property, the assessment, the amount of the tax bill and any payment made. In many instances the owner of the property has rented with the condition that the taxes be paid by the tenant, but the bill is mailed from the treasurer's office to the owner or his agent. Sale of the property for taxes and forfeitures against it are also listed.

This practice is followed frequently by the Marshall Field, Levi Z. Leiter and other estates, though not on all properties of the estates. Officials of the estates said practices vary with particular properties.

List Unpaid Taxes.

Real estate firms listed as recipients of the bills were reported by their officials as acting in most cases as agents for owners and trusts whose names do not appear. Such practice is generally followed where a group of persons own the land of a large building.

The following properties are listed as having paid no tax or only a small percentage, according to tax volume No. 487, which covers a part of the loop:

JUDGE PRAISES SAVING OF MONEY ON STREET JOB

Judge Craig Hood yesterday congratulated Ald. William A. Rowan [10th] and representatives of Corporation Counsel Sexton's office at the completion of a condemnation case in which a jury awarded property owners a judgment against the city of $160,000 for land to be taken in the opening of Indianapolis avenue between Ewing avenue and 100th street.

A bond issue of $400,000 was obtained for the street opening at the insistence of Ald. Rowan. The cost of paving the new stretch is estimated at $50,000, which with the cost of the land will mean the expenditure of only a little more than half of the amount of the bond issue. This saving of bond issue money was the basis for Judge Hood's complimentary remarks to the city's representatives.

When the new stretch is paved considerable traffic will be diverted from Indianapolis avenue into 100th street and thence north in Yates or Jeffery avenues instead of into South Shore drive, Ald. Rowan said.

Ask Receiver for Stevens Hotel Co.; Taxes Unpaid

A receiver for the Stevens Hotel company was asked yesterday in a bill filed in the Superior court by Edward Winston, special attorney for the county, who is seeking to collect delinquent taxes. The bill charged that the 1929 taxes totaling $258,008 and the 1930 taxes amounting to $471,396 were unpaid, although the property is income bearing. The bill asked that a receiver be appointed to sequester the income and pay the taxes.

BRITISH PROFESSOR ASSERTS U. S. TARIFF DELAYS PROSPERITY

Charlottesville, Va., July 15.—[Special.]—The questions of tariff barriers and prohibition, today divided honors with unemployment and economic recovery in the discussions of the institute of public affairs at the University of Virginia.

Dr. Robert McElroy, formerly of Princeton and now professor of American history in Oxford university, charged that the United States had forced Great Britain to adopt her present tariff policy, which, if carried to success by the Ottawa conference, will serve further to injure America's foreign trade.

"In view of the fact that we have lost 60 per cent of our foreign trade by virtue of tariff barriers, and seem likely to lose another 40 per cent if no remedy appears, it would have been the part of wisdom for one or both political parties to have announced a program for lower tariffs," he said. "Acting together these two leading industrial nations might have shortened the process of breaking down barriers which have throttled trade."

Prohibition, which was not included in the discussions at a conference on club activities when Mrs. Alexander W. Weddell questioned the right of the general federation of women's clubs, under its own constitution and by-laws, as a nonpartisan, nonpolitical organization, to oppose repeal of the 18th amendment.

CERMAK QUITS HOSPITAL; GOES FOR LONG REST

3 Aids Will Run City; Seeks Water Loan.

Mayor Cermak left St. Anthony's hospital, where he was sent for rest ten days ago, last evening and went to his summer home at Antioch, in Lake county, to continue the recuperation ordered by his physicians.

Before he left the mayor announced that during his extended vacation the affairs of the city, including efforts to get pay for city and school employés, will be handled by Corporation Counsel Sexton, Commissioner of Public Works Sprague, and Controller Szymczak. Mr. Sexton left Chicago Thursday and is now in Washington.

City Seeks Water Loan.

Mayor Cermak disclosed that one purpose of Sexton's visit there is to seek a loan from the Reconstruction Finance corporation for rehabilitation of Chicago's water system. Such a loan, it was pointed out, would come under the classification of assistance to self-supporting public works which the R. F. C. is authorized to extend under the relief bill now pending in congress.

Some of Chicago's pumping stations are out of date and inefficient as compared with more recent installations, and surveys have shown that many mains, laid as much as 60 years ago, are responsible for a serious loss of water by leakage, Mayor Cermak said.

Close Home to Visitors.

Mayor Cermak was accompanied on his trip to his summer home by Dr. Frank Jirka, his physician, and State Senator Richey V. Graham, his son-in-law. The doors of the home will be closed to visitors. His physicians have ordered the mayor to take an extended and complete rest. He said before leaving the hospital that he did not know where he would go from Antioch, "except that it will not be back to the city hall."

The mayor received visitors in the hospital yesterday. He talked to newspaper men while seated in a chair, clad in blue pajamas with bright yellow trimmings. Although his voice seemed weak the mayor appeared to have recovered fairly well from the exhaustion and attack of indigestion which sent him to bed. He walked around the room during the conference.

Sweitzer Is a Caller.

Among the mayor's visitors were County Clerk Sweitzer and Chief Justice Harry M. Fisher of the Criminal court. Another visitor was Miss Thelma Hamilton, woman's golf champion of Colorado, who flew to Chicago. She gave Mayor Cermak a bouquet of columbines, the state flower of Colorado, and a letter of sympathy from Mayor George D. Begole of Denver.

The mayor had an air cooling machine in his room containing an ice chest which consumed 160 pounds of ice Thursday. Yesterday, informed that Policeman Frank Cunningham, who was shot July 4 in a gun battle with bandits, was in a critical condition on the same floor of the hospital, Mayor Cermak ordered the cooling device removed to the policeman's room.

Former Broker Seized on Bogus Check Charge

Emile Simmons, 40 years old a former broker, who lives at the Edgelake hotel, 1067 Argyle street, was arrested yesterday by Sergts. John Murphy and Benjamin Ryan of the detective bureau on a charge of passing bogus checks. The complainant is the Continental Illinois Bank and Trust company, which charges him with passing worthless checks for $4,750 in January, 1931. Simmons said last night that when he drew the checks he had a balance with the bank of more than $4,000, but that his wife closed their joint account without his knowledge.

SCHOOL TRUSTEE OFFERS PLAN TO SAVE 15 MILLION

Mrs. Hefferan Would Cut New Building Fund.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

After another day of conferences Mrs. W. S. Hefferan, trustee, suggested a plan last night by which the school board could reduce its tax levies a total of $15,000,000.

Under her plan she would save $10,000,000 on new buildings, trim $1,000,000 from the educational side of the schools, cut $1,500,000 from the operation of buildings, which includes engineers' and janitors' salaries, and save another $1,000,000 on repairs. She would save the remaining $1,500,000 by reopening the schools two weeks late.

Demand 15 Million Cut.

The Sargent committee on public expenditures has informed the board it must reduce its tax levies "at least $15,000,000" to obtain the aid of the committee in borrowing money on which to operate the schools next fall and to pay $20,000,000 in back salaries to teachers and other employés.

Supt. William J. Bogan yesterday submitted a retrenchment plan to the committee on economy on the educational side of the budget—Trustees H. Wallace Caldwell, Mrs. Hefferan, and James A. Hemingway—which, he believes, will save a total of $771,710. Of this sum $428,492 had previously been listed by Supt. Bogan in an earlier program of economy.

The $328,492 would be saved as follows: $200,000 by increasing the number of pupils by four to each class, $72,000 by closing certain schools, $59,805 in branch schools, $2,900 on music, $25,000 on visual education, $27,445 on textbooks, $16,342 on prevocational instruction, and $25,000 on playgrounds.

Adds $343,218 Savings.

"Because the need for further retrenchment appears desperate," said the superintendent, "I will make added recommendations."

These total $343,218 and may be summarized as follows: Close the parental school, which he said is a fundamental error, at a saving of $80,000; close six added branch schools to save $8,000; trim playground repairs $70,000; abolish 16 clerical positions to save $7,352; curtail vocational instruction, saving $12,866; charge a tuition of $50 for both Crane Junior college and the Normal school. For Crane he estimated the saving at $127,500 and at Normal $37,500.

"If we were not in desperate condition, I would not make those suggestions," said the superintendent. "It is humiliating, after years of advocating democracy and the rights of the poor man, to propose now to penalize them by charging a tuition fee.

Alternative Is to Close.

"The alternative to a tuition fee is to close the two schools and that would amount to a disaster. The saving in closing the Normal would be small, if anything; because if you close it you would have 67 law suits on your hands the next day. These would come from the instructors under the tenure of office law."

He explained that if a tuition fee were charged to pay the entire cost of operating the schools it would amount to $355 or $360 a pupil, which would wreck the institution, in his opinion.

Butler Laughlin, president of the Normal college made a plea not to close the institution. Assistant Superintendent of Schools Henry S. Crane presented statistics to show that the closing of the school would decrease the supply of teachers below the needs of the system. Assistant Superintendent James McDade also said a word for the continuance of the Normal, and Mrs. Hefferan added:

"My objective is to prevent the Normal from being closed."

The superintendent was instructed by the committee to suggest a way of saving $5,000,000 in the educational fund, and present it to the trustees.

Favor Completing Schools.

He was also instructed, at the request of President Lewis E. Myers, to report on economies that could be made by eliminating certain subjects from the curriculum of the schools and thus reduce the number of teachers, and also by increasing the number of pupils per teacher.

The committee to reduce the tax levies for new buildings wrestled with their problem all day. It developed early into a fact finding procedure, and no decisions were reached. It was the impression of various persons who attended the meeting that this committee will recommend the completion of the Lane, Senn and Steinmetz schools and the Smysey elementary school at an estimated total cost of $3,870,240.

Some observers gained the impression that five junior high schools will be abandoned that two schools, Phillips High and Jamieson elementary are on the border line with uncertainty of whether they will be completed or shoved aside.

One of the conferees estimated that this committee will reduce the building tax levy by $5,000,000, another placed it at $8,000,000 and a third at more than $10,000,000.

IN SANITARIUM

FLORENZ ZIEGFELD.

Hollywood, Cal., July 15.—(AP)—Florenz Ziegfeld, producer of the "Follies," and popularly known as "the glorifier of American beauties," is under the care of a physician in a New Mexico sanitarium, his wife, Billy Burke, actress, said today. The producer is not in immediate danger, Miss Burke said. She explained he is suffering a breakdown from a strenuous season in New York, perhaps traceable to an attack of pneumonia a year ago.

CLERK'S OFFICE IS SWAMPED BY TAX OBJECTORS

A long line of men and women yesterday swamped the clerk's office in the County court where objections to the 1930 taxes were being filed. More than 2,500 objections, covering, it is estimated, six times as many properties, are now on file. All of the objections are for small properties.

The deadline for the filing is noon today. However, the larger property owners who have objected to the 1928 and 1929 taxes, which were computed from the same quadrennial valuations as the 1930 levy, are holding off with the hope that the time limit will be extended. Several attorneys approached County Judge Jarecki yesterday and asked for the extension, saying that they needed more time for the preparation of objections. The judge has indicated that the extension may be granted.

THREATEN TO KIDNAP SON OF DIXIE PRISON CAMP INVESTIGATOR

Jacksonville, Fla., July 15.—(AP)—Al Gorman, foreman of the Duval county grand jury, who had been threatened with death because of his activities in investigating the death of Arthur Maillefert in a "sweat box" at a Florida prison camp, today was told over the telephone that his son would be kidnaped tonight.

Yesterday Gorman received a letter signed "You Know Who" in which a threat was made against his life if the inquiry continues.

The telephone caller today first inquired if he has a son named Herbert, 18 years old. Answered in the affirmative, the man replied: "Well, you know about the Lindbergh case."

Gorman made no application to police for aid, but he said his home would be guarded tonight.

SEIZED FOR HIS $20 FRAUD ON RELIEF STATION

Daniel Maher, 40 years old, 716 Dewey place, was arrested last night by Policemen Carl Swanson and Rudolph Boedecker of the Sheffield avenue station on a charge of mulcting the emergency relief commission out of $20. Amelia Sears, county commissioner, aided in the inquiry leading to his arrest.

Police charge that Maher went to the relief station at 4410 Ravenswood avenue and represented himself as John Walsh, landlord at 2651 Orchard street, whom he knew. He said that he expected to take in a tenant who had been evicted elsewhere. The station allowed him $20 advance for rent on behalf of the expected tenant.

Investigation disclosed that the real John Walsh had made no application to the relief station on behalf of any one.

TWO U. S. BRIDES, LEFT ON ISLAND BY INDIANS, SAVED

[Copyright; 1932; By the New York Times.]

BALBOA, Canal Zone, July 15.—Gladys Williams and her mother, Mrs. Charles Williams, former American missionaries of Akron, O., and recent brides of San Blas Indians, were rescued from an island of the San Blas archipelago and brought to Cristobal by airplane today. G. D. Bliss, postmaster of Cristobal and representing the American Red Cross, found the women destitute and abandoned by their Indian husbands after being ostracized from the tribe.

CHICAGO RELIEF FUNDS GONE; ASK QUICK U. S. HELP

Emergency Stations Will Be Closed Next Week.

Washington, D. C., July 15.—[Special.]—Chicago and Illinois officials conferred today with heads of the Reconstruction Finance corporation regarding loans for two purposes, both of which are provided by the relief bill now pending in congress.

Corporation Counsel Sexton of Chicago proposed that the R. F. C. loan the city of Chicago money for the rehabilitation of the city water system. He also joined with representatives of the Illinois emergency relief commission, of which he is a member, in seeking an immediate loan to prevent the shutdown of unemployment relief activities throughout the state.

Receive Chicago Appeal.

Edward L. Ryerson Jr., chairman of the Illinois commission, who returned to Chicago from Washington, advised Mr. Sexton and the other representatives in a telegram today that a shortage of funds will make it necessary to close all relief stations in Cook county next Thursday, and that similar activities in other counties of the state must be stopped by July 31.

The Chicagoans also were informed that $200,000, the last available funds, had been turned over to the Cook county bureau of public welfare by the Illinois commission and that this sum would barely keep the Cook county relief stations open until next Thursday. The Cook county relief expenditures total $100,000 a day.

This situation was immediately related to R. F. C. officials at a conference today. Besides Mr. Sexton, De Witt Billman, secretary of the legislative reference bureau, representing Gov. Emmerson, and Wilfred S. Reynolds and C. P. Goodspeed of the state emergency relief organization were present.

Another Conference Monday.

On the theory that the relief bill will be signed before Monday, another conference was arranged for that day. Under the relief bill Illinois will be able to obtain maximum loans of $45,000,000 for relief purposes. It is assumed that at least $10,000,000 will be asked at once, the sum to be fixed by Gov. Emmerson, with whom members of the Illinois delegation will get in touch following the meeting Monday.

SENATE ASSAILS POLITICAL TALK; KEEPS ON TALKING

Both Parties Take Pot Shots at Other Fellow.

By GENEVIEVE FORBES HERRICK.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 15.—[Special.]—Marking time while waiting for the conference report on the relief bill, the senate today condemned the practice of making "purely political" speeches to be inserted in the Congressional Record and then proceeded to make a lot of them. It was a rostrum for the November election.

SENATOR J. T. ROBINSON. [A. P. Photo.]

Arkansas' Democratic leader, Robinson, and Utah's G. O. P. spokesman, Smoot, hurled political arguments across the aisle. Senator Pat Harrison [Dem., Miss.] drew Senator Kean [Rep., N. J.] into a prohibition plank debate in which the Mississippi senator sought to justify his party's recent failure to sponsor the Bingham beer bill and in which the New Jersey senator declared he was for the "New Jersey wet plank" which the G. O. P. convention had turned down.

Rakes "Three Musketeers."

Senator Robinson fired his main shots at "the three musketeers," Messrs. Mills, Hurley and Hyde of the President's cabinet, whose political excursions and speech making he denounced by saying:

"One would think that with a deficit of 2 billions 900 millions in the treasury, with a new tax bill to be administered, with questions pertaining to the national finances constantly being presented, Mr. Mills would have enough to do at his post of official duty."

Secretary Hyde's absence he dismissed with these words:

"Of course the department of agriculture is probably just as well off with Secretary Hyde absent from his post as if he were present at the capital."

He ridiculed the Democratic convention's keynoter, Barkley of Kentucky, for his votes for coal and oil tariffs; he declared that the Democrats had made no contribution to the country's crisis while "prosperity is temporarily suspended," and he found great satisfaction in the fact that President Hoover during all his term of office has "never been stampeded into rash action."

Like South Sea Bubble.

Senator Robinson, who started the political debate, held a different view of Mr. Hoover and the Republicans generally.

"The Harding administration," he declared, "was characterized by graft and corruption; the Coolidge administration by mergers and overcapitalization.

"And the Hoover administration has been notorious for lack of any plan except to conceal the seriousness of the economic situation and to exaggerate the potential income of the federal government."

He compared the psychology of the ante-depression period to the psychology which brought the rise and crash of John Law's Mississippi scheme, the South sea bubble, and even the tulip mania in Holland.

But Senator Smoot laid all these troubles to the war, with its toll of money and men. Badgered considerably by Senators Long [Dem., La.] and Byrnes [Dem., S. C.], who tried to trap him into admitting that the war brought the Coolidge prosperity and also the Hoover depression, Senator Smoot finally waved a long finger at the Democrats and said, "I refuse to yield to these gentlemen any more. I'm sick of all this nonsense."

As to Government in Business.

Senator Robinson on his side of the aisle found it ironic, he argued, for the Republicans to charge Gov. Roosevelt and Speaker Garner with a campaign to put the government into business when "the Hoover administration with its Reconstruction Finance corporation has put the government into the banking business."

"From the President of the United States down officials of this government under the Coolidge administration encouraged this spirit of speculation, asserted that prices of stocks were not too high and prompted thousands to pour their lifetime savings into a hole that had no bottom.

"Secretary Hurley said last night that world conditions were the controlling factor. I say to you that the primary influence was the unrestrained, unreasonable speculation, and that it was encouraged and assisted by the administration of the party for which Secretary Hurley assumes to be the spokesman."

DEATH OF BABY IN CESSPOOL IS HELD ACCIDENT

Minneapolis, Minn., July 15.—(AP)—A coroner's jury late tonight returned a verdict of accidental death in the case of Leslie Delano, 20 months old, whose body was found in a cesspool near his home in Columbia Heights, a suburb, yesterday.

The verdict followed four and one-half hours of testimony at an inquest called by Coroner C. B. Thurston of Anoka county, who before the session began had announced that evidence indicated the boy had been slain.

Much of the questioning of witnesses tonight dealt with the discovery of the child's body in the cesspool in front of the home of a neighbor of Leslie's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Delano. The boy had disappeared from his home July 8.

GIRL WHO SHOT CUBS' PLAYER GOES FREE

Refuses to Testify

Bill Jurges, Cub shortstop, yesterday obtained dismissal of an assault to kill charge against Miss Violet Valli, who shot him and herself last week in the ball player's room at the Carlos hotel. He appeared in the court of Judge John A. Sbarbaro, accompanied by Dr. John C. Davis, club physician, and Pat Malone, Cub pitcher, and refused to testify.

After a curious crowd had filled the courtroom Miss Valli, a former chorus girl, made her entrance, wearing a white crêpe dress, trimmed in red, white hat and purse, and red shoes. Jurges, who had been subpoenaed, stepped to the bar and announced that he wished to drop the case. Questioned by Judge Sbarbaro, he said that he did not expect further trouble with Miss Valli.

"Then the case is dismissed for want of prosecution," the judge ruled, "and I hope no more Cubs get shot."

After the hearing Miss Valli said that she would stay at home for a while.

"I owe it to my self-respect to consider the entire matter a thing of the past," she said. "If I happen to see Bill again it will be just impersonal."

RADICALS MARCH CAPITAL STREETS IN BONUS PARADE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 15.—[Special.]—While the Capitol police board met to determine who has authority over the Capitol grounds and to prevent a repetition of last night's calling of a marine detachment, a band of less than 200 communists held a bonus parade down Pennsylvania avenue this morning.

The police board, composed of Architect David Lynn and the sergeants at arms of the house and senate, met after Brig. Gen. Pelham D. Glassford, superintendent of the metropolitan police, had refused to recognize the group as the police authority over the Capitol grounds. He took this action following unexplained orders issued late yesterday calling out 60 marines to reinforce metropolitan police on duty on the plaza. Vice President Curtis has denied issuing the orders for the marines, leaving the source of the order a mystery.

Police Halt Marchers.

The communists' parade, which formed at 15th street and Constitution avenue, was halted at 2d street by Assistant Police Superintendent E. W. Brown, who informed leaders the marchers would not be permitted to parade through the Capitol grounds, and if the men went in at all they would have to discard their banners and placards.

Meanwhile a division of veterans, under the leadership of Roy W. Robertson of California, a disabled, odd job movie actor, continued their "march" through the Capitol plaza, victorious in their persistence to remain on the grounds until congress quits for the summer.

However, the communist paraders, having turned down Gen. Glassford's offers to hold a mass meeting on a vacant lot at New Jersey avenue and C street southeast, reached an agreement with police to hold their meeting on the west steps of the Library of Congress.

Leader Forced to Rest.

Robertson, who brought his band of California veterans into Washington only last Sunday after a strenuous transcontinental trek, has had practically no sleep since he began the occupation of the Capitol nearly four days ago. He collapsed late yesterday from overwork and was forced to spend most of the night resting.

As the siege of the Capitol continued today, additional members of the so-called bonus expeditionary force joined Robertson's contingent, apparently believing his campaign of invasion will accomplish more than the tactics of Walter W. Waters, B. E. F. national commander.

Meanwhile the house passed a senate bill to reduce the interest rates on all bonus loans from 4½ to 3½ per cent. The measure also would permit 200,000 veterans, previously excluded, to borrow on their certificates. Under the present law veterans whose certificates are less than two years old are unable to raise loans.

Comedian Not Funny at Home; Divorced by Wife

Harry Harris, a vaudeville comedian whom she married during the New Orleans Mardi Gras last year, wasn't a bit funny off stage, Mrs. Lillian Harris, 616 Rush street, told Judge Joseph Sabath yesterday in the Superior court. During their two week honeymoon, at the end of which he deserted her, he kept her up until 4 a. m. playing rhummy, she charged. Mrs. Harris, who is a radio singer under the name of Lillian Gordoni, was granted a divorce on charges of desertion.

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

DUBLIN, July 15.—President Eamon de Valera stood up, holding out his hand in welcome and smiling down at your correspondent—for he is an exceptionally tall man. It was just before his quick trip to London yesterday.

His face is a little more lined than usual now, for in a crisis he is a prodigious worker.

The interview was in the president's room of the government building. Medallions on the walls put up by his predecessor, William T. Cosgrave, represented the late Michael Collins and Arthur Griffith.

"You did not remove them," the correspondent commented.

"They were my comrades for longer than they were my opponents," he said quietly.

Tells Why He Opposes Britain.

"You want to talk of the future," he said suddenly, and went on:

"There is a hard economic fight before us, but that fight will bring us just where we have been trying to go for generations. Our misfortune has been to lie beside a highly industrialist nation [Great Britain], which has controlled policy here when her own industries were coming into being.

"As England's towns grew and England's farms vanished, the opposite process operated here. Our towns sank and our farms became a ranch to supply Britain with food. Homesteads were cleared to make cattle runs. Our population fell from 8,000,000 to 4,000,000. We were soon without industries and dependent on England for practically all our manufactured goods. That is the situation now. To Britain we export live stock and agriculture produce. From Britain we import made goods.

Aims to Establish Industries.

"If we were ever to regain our population, that policy had to be altered. The change required was to establish industries in the towns to produce manufactured goods. The increased purchasing power of our workers would then provide a market for much agricultural produce now exported. In a word, it was vital for us to become as self-contained as possible.

"See now how Britain's proposal to tax our exports helps us along that road. She won't take our produce. We must find consumption for it at home. We can do that by giving employment to town dwellers.

"That means we must shut out British manufactures and make our own. There will be immediate hardship, but eventually the gain is obvious, and this is in line with that economic system which we must have before we can give a living to our present population and provide for expanding population.

U. S. May Get Trade.

"But you cannot, in a hurry, make all the manufactured goods you want," the correspondent interjected.

"I agree," De Valera replied, "but we can do without a lot and we can import from countries other than Britain—Germany, France, and the United States. That would realize another ideal—direct economic touch with other nations. In times of shrinking foreign markets, ours is not a trifle."

"Then it is economic war with Britain?" I asked.

"I would not go quite so far," he replied. "If Britain is determined to force a fight, we shall not be the main losers and in the long run must gain enormously. But Britain's argumentative position is hopeless. She admits the moneys she claims are a fit subject for arbitration. We agree to arbitration, but must have a free court. We are paying disputed moneys into a suspense account awaiting that free court's decision.

Criticizes Empire Court.

"Britain answers that it is a family quarrel to be settled inside the family. Even if we admitted that, members of a family are often so involved in a dispute as to be incapable of impartial judgment.

"The Irish people, who pay the money, demand a court enjoying their confidence. The last empire court here treated them shamefully over the boundary clause in the treaty. Therefore they ask for a court with no geographical limitations. If Britain prefers to fight an economic war rather than agree to that, then the world will guess why."

"Do you expect help from America?" the correspondent asked.

"Moral support, yes," he said. "We have millions of kinsmen in your nation and also a fair minded public. Britain, especially after the Lausanne conference, seeks debt cancellation. Yet she throttles us here for money neither legally nor morally due. The inconsistency will be obvious to all who like fair play."

Compares Wealth of Nations.

"And the Irish people: Are they not likely to turn from your government?" he was asked.

"The Irish people have faced more serious situations before without yielding," he replied. "Retention of these moneys is a matter of life or death to them. Relative taxable capacity shows that the £5,000,000 [$17,700,000] taken from us annually equals £330,000,000 [$1,168,200,000] paid by Britain. Britain finds the £37,000,000 [$130,980,000] due the United States almost unbearable. What appeal would she not make to the world if she had to transmit abroad a fourth of her tax revenue, as we have had to do?"

"And of the future as a whole?" the correspondent asked.

"That, as I see it," said the president, "is bright. We aim at a self-sufficient Ireland—an economic policy that will first feed, clothe, and house our people and then produce an exportable surplus to purchase any goods we cannot manufacture.

Wants United Ireland.

"Nationally, the aspirations of the Irish people can best be realized in the complete independence of a united Ireland. We have not asked for a mandate for that program, and the present steps we have taken are not related to it. They are essential whether Ireland were to remain in the empire or not."

U. S. Flyer, Lost 17 Days in Jungle, Is Brought Out Alive

MEXICO CITY, July 15.—(AP)—Clarence McElroy, Medaryville, Ind., airplane pilot, was found today after he had wandered for 17 days without food through dense tropical jungles in the state of Oaxaca, where his plane crashed June 27.

His partner in the flight, Roy Gordon, an American resident of Tegucigalpa, Honduras, was killed. Neither Gordon's body nor the wreckage of the plane was found by the rescue party.

Too Weak to Walk.

Too weak to walk and almost too weak to talk, McElroy was first seen yesterday afternoon by an Indian woodsman five miles west of San Geronimo, Oaxaca. The woodsman went back for help and at noon today a searching party found the airman.

How McElroy kept alive seemed inexplicable. He was entirely unfamiliar with jungle conditions and, according to one newspaper dispatch, he suffered a broken leg in the crash of his plane, but, notwithstanding, he managed to drag himself a considerable distance through the brush.

Water provides another problem. Apparently he avoided death from thirst by catching rain during the numerous tropical downpours to which he was exposed.

McElroy said the crash was caused by a severe tropical storm in the midst of which his motor failed.

Tonight the rescued airman slept in the home of the mayor of San Geronimo.

When the Indian discovered him yesterday afternoon he was sprawled out in a heavy growth of ferns in the jungle. He knew no Spanish, but by signs he conveyed the information that his plane and his companion were somewhere in the deep growth from which he had come.

The area where the plane crashed is one of the least known spots in Mexico. Just to the north the Sierra mountains suddenly break down to an altitude of 800 feet, creating a sort of funnel through which the winds of North America sweep almost constantly with terrific velocity. Commercial airplanes long ago abandoned that route because the winds were too much for them.

To the east of the range where he crashed is virgin jungle. Not even the natives know very much about it. To the west is fertile land settled by farmers. The Pacific is about 20 miles away. San Geronimo, a small isthmus town, lies at the foot of the range, alternately baked by the sun and soaked by tropical rains.

Bee Stings Woman Driver; Car Overturned; One Dead

Terre Haute, Ind., July 15.—(AP)—A bee stung Mrs. Lizzie George of Danville, Ill., while she was driving today and her automobile overturned, fatally injuring her mother, Mrs. Asbinda Hallett, 91. Mrs. George and her brother, George Hallett, were cut and bruised.

DE VALERA SEES BRITISH PREMIER; TWO DEADLOCKED

Three Hour Parley Held; Neither Yields.

LONDON, July 15.—(AP)—All efforts by Prime Minister MacDonald and President De Valera of the Irish Free State to avert an Anglo-Irish economic war, with tariffs as the weapons, failed tonight, and tomorrow MacDonald will fly to Lossiemouth, Scotland, while De Valera will return to Dublin.

The Irish reprisal duties bill, drawn up by the De Valera government in retaliation against the 20 per cent tariffs imposed against the food imports from Ireland into Britain, goes to the Irish senate on Monday. It cannot be blocked there and early next week it may become effective.

Both Stand Firm.

"Conversation was begun between Prime Minister MacDonald and Mr. De Valera and continued with the lord chancellor and the attorney general present," said a communique issued at the conclusion of tonight's meeting. "The situation between the two countries was considered, but neither party was able to depart from the position taken up in published dispatches."

The controversy between the Free State and Britain rests on two main causes. One of these is De Valera's insistent attempt to eliminate the oath of allegiance to the British crown and the other is his refusal to continue payments of land annuities to the London government. These annuities represent old financial operations which enabled Irish tenants to become owners of the land they worked.

Britain took the lead in laying down tariffs against Irish goods when the Free State government defaulted in the land annuity payment due June 30. Now Ireland is choosing the same method of warfare.

May Not Treat with Irish.

The controversy is of particular importance at this time because the Ottawa imperial conference opens next Thursday. Whether Britain will treat with the Irish representatives at that parley remains doubtful.

The Free State president arrived this evening at Euston station. In the crowd that awaited him there were two factions, one of which shouted, "Hurrah for De Valera," and the other, "Down with De Valera."

Kills Self with Gun as His Daughter Looks On

While his daughter, Adeline, 11 years old, watched him from the back porch of their home at 5701 Newport avenue yesterday, Robert F. New, 40 years old, walked into his back yard and ended his life by shooting himself in the heart.

ANGELUS TEMPLE NOT FOR SALE, HUTTON SAYS; HAS WORRIES

Los Angeles, Cal., July 15.—(AP)—David Hutton, husband of Aimee McPherson Hutton, the evangelist, denied today reports that she might sell Angelus temple.

"Aimee wouldn't sell the temple to any one," declared the choir singer, who recently lost a $5,000 verdict in a breach of promise suit to Myrtle St. Pierre, a nurse.

"All she wants to do," said Hutton, "is to get well and get back to her people. She is still a very sick woman. She will remain at Lake Elsinore indefinitely."

Hutton said the evangelist would like to find "some one who could take her place as pastor when she is not there."

He added he had received a proposition for the sale of the temple several months ago from Dr. Paul Rader, who is now in Chicago, but that the "deal is off."

There have been reports that the temple's finances were in difficulty because of the continued absence of Mrs. Hutton and because of reports that a group of employés were involved in alleged discrepancies. Twenty employés were discharged Wednesday when accusations were placed against them in the management of the temple's needy relief service.

THREE WOMEN WAITING FOR MR. WORM TO TURN UP

Three women who had loved and lost appeared yesterday at the detective bureau to charge Dr. William J. Worm, 42 years old, who came to Chicago from Portland, Ore., three months ago, with operating a confidence game.

He first met Mrs. Della Rademacker, 3138 North Central Park avenue, through an employment agency. He explained that he needed a housekeeper. Also, he needed a house. His suggestion was that he live in Mrs. Rademacker's and pay all expenses. A little later, according to Mrs. Rademacker, who is a widow, he promised to marry her and left after she gave him a diamond ring and $75.

The second complainant was Miss Margaret Young, 4233 West Washington boulevard. She asserted, too, that she had been Dr. Worm's housekeeper, then his fiancée and next had been swindled of $100 and a ring.

Dr. Worm then turned to Mrs. Margaret Ackers, 4707 Ingleside avenue, and she let the doctor have a diamond pin and about $900. Mrs. Ackers learned of his love affair with Mrs. Rademacker. After discussing their mutual interests they decided that Mrs. Ackers would move into Mrs. Rademacker's flat and that they would pursue the alleged deceiver together. Dr. Worm is missing.

A Press Agent Records Strange Case of Alligator

Press Agent Walter D. Nealand mopped his brow, took a deep breath, a long pull from an ice cold bottle, and dictated the following telegram to THE TRIBUNE yesterday afternoon: "Methuselah, 500 year old patriarch alligator, was overcome by heat prostration this afternoon during wrestling bout in alligator pool on Century of Progress midway and sank to bottom. His opponent, Tex Farless, dove in and brought unconscious body of alligator to surface, where he was revived with pulmotor and ice bags. The pool was filled with ice for the night show."

ROCKET GLIDER WILL CUT LOOSE FROM BALLOON

William G. Swan of Atlantic City proposes to try a new stunt in aviation tomorrow at Exposition park, Aurora, where, he announced yesterday, he will attach a rocket glider to a balloon and with himself as pilot will cut the glider from the gas bag at a height of 2,000 feet and explode the rockets. He has hopes of keeping the craft aloft for several hours.

In past experiments, he said, he has learned that his glider uses 90 per cent of its rocket power in leaving the ground. This was true during his last flight, which lasted eight minutes and took him to a height of 400 feet. He believes that if launched from a sufficient height the machine could be maneuvered and given additional power from time to time to stay up for more than an hour.

He purchased the balloon yesterday and said that he will undertake the experiment at 6 p. m. tomorrow.

WHO IS GREETER GAW? SUBURB ARRESTS WIFE

A woman driver parked her automobile five feet from the curb yesterday in Libertyville and left it there. Police Chief Frank Druba of the suburb was just arranging to have the automobile hauled away by a tow truck when she reappeared, very indignant.

"You're making a grave mistake," she told him, "and it may cost you your job."

"What makes you think so?" asked Chief Druba.

"I am Mrs. George D. Gaw, the wife of Greeter Gaw," she informed him.

"That's nice, but who is Greeter Gaw?" asked the chief.

Mrs. Gaw gave a $15 cash bond before Justice of the Peace Fred Smith, who set her hearing for Thursday.

QUEBEC TO FIGHT SEAWAY TREATY; CALLS IT 'CRIME'

Premier Denounces Plan as "Grotesque."

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

QUEBEC, Que., July 15.—An indication that the province of Quebec will go before the courts in an effort to block the proposed St. Lawrence seaway development was given today in a statement by State Premier L. A. Taschereau, who branded the proposed treaty with the United States as a "grotesque proposition" and a "national crime." It would add millions of dollars to Canada's debt, he declared.

"Our government will be found ready to defend in every way possible our integrity and our territorial and constitutional rights," Mr. Taschereau said. "The whole project seems to me to be incomprehensible, and I cannot think that the representatives of the province would consent to it."

Lists Three Objections.

In addition to the increase in the national debt which he foresaw, an increase possibly more than Canada's citizens, already heavily taxed, could bear, Mr. Taschereau outlined three other objections to the proposed treaty.

"It would give the United States," he said, "1,000,000 horsepower when, were they deprived of it, they would quickly come into the province and establish industries, as they had already done in Lake St. John, in the St. Maurice district, and in the eastern townships."

The project, he said, would also give the province of Ontario 1,000,000 horsepower on conditions "infinitely superior" to those of other provinces. Dominion authorities had refused to put the Quebec utilities on the same footing as the Ontario power system in regard to taxation, he declared.

Sees New Peril for Railways.

"If this waterway ever becomes useful for navigation by seagoing vessels, severe competition would have to be faced by the railways, and the railways are now at the end of their tether," the premier added, as another argument against the development.

"We have been advised by the newspapers that Ottawa and Washington have reached an agreement relative to the canalization of the St. Lawrence waterway. I had occasion recently to declare that the province of Quebec has been completely ignored in these negotiations.

"A dispatch from Montreal which I read in a morning paper is to the effect that the Hon. Mr. Duranleau [dominion minister of marine] has declared that we have been kept advised of these negotiations.

Says Statement Is Untrue.

"I do not like to tax Mr. Duranleau with bad faith, but his statement is absolutely contrary to the facts. If we have been kept advised regarding these negotiations, I would ask Mr. Duranleau to publish any correspondence on this subject which has been exchanged between us. We had so little that on March 26 last I wrote a long letter to Prime Minister Bennett in which I voiced our objections to the project, and the letter was published in all the newspapers. We received no reply.

"I had occasion to declare, during the last session, that this canalization was a national crime, and I withdraw nothing from what I have said."

GROCER CANCELS $4,000 IN DEBTS, QUITS BUSINESS

Clanton, Ala., July 15.—(AP)—Wiley Littlejohn really couldn't afford to do it, if figured in terms of dollars and cents, but nevertheless he has forgiven his debtors of $4,000.

Three hundred of them had been owing him that sum for groceries a long while. He marked his books "paid in full" and retired from business.

"I don't want anybody to think I'm a rich man," said Littlejohn. "I'm in bad circumstances financially just like everybody else. These three hundred people owe me $4,000 for merchandise I sold them out of my store. I feel like they are not able to pay it and I don't want to be worried trying to collect it. Maybe it will lighten their burdens."

Florida Dealer Also Acts.

Arcadia, Fla., July 15.—(AP)—As an "investment in good will" John Balosok, garage owner here, today erased from his books items owed him totaling $2,419 and then in a newspaper advertisement invited his debtors to continue trading with him. The notice expressed hope that "the cancellation will materially aid those in straitened circumstances who owe me and help them to make and keep a clean slate."

SENATE ORDERS INVESTIGATION OF SEAWAY TREATY

Gives Midwest Area Chance to Protest.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 15.—[Special.]—A sweeping investigation of the terms of the American-Canadian treaty for joint construction of the billion dollar St. Lawrence waterway construction project was authorized by the senate late today. The inquiry will be conducted by the senate foreign relations comittee. A subcommittee to be appointed at once will begin hearings as soon as the treaty formally has been signed and a copy transmitted to Senator William E. Borah [radical Rep., Idaho], committee chairman.

Roosevelt May Appear.

The authorization of the inquiry paved the way for the appearance before the committee of Franklin D. Roosevelt, governor of the state of New York and Democratic presidential nominee. It will also afford an opportunity for Illinois and other states in the Mississippi valley to voice objections to the treaty and lay the groundwork for a stiff fight against senate ratification.

Oppose Flow Restrictions.

Indications today are that the Mississippi valley representatives in congress will fight the treaty because of the restrictions placed on the flow of Lake Michigan water through the Chicago river and down to the Mississippi. Senator James Hamilton Lewis [Dem., Ill.] said today that Mississippi valley interests will call the attention of the committee to health hazards which will be caused by decreasing the Chicago water diversion.

FREED IN COURT ON WAR RECORD; CAUGHT ROBBING

Carl Stepina, 35 years old, ex-convict whose good war record saved him from being returned to prison when he was arraigned before Judge Thomas A. Green last Monday, was arrested in the act of robbery last night.

Accompanied by another man, Stepina menaced Herbert Strope and Carl Berg, cheese merchants, in the garage in the rear of the former's home at 4731 Harrison street. Stepina was armed. The other man took $150 from Strope's pocket. As the pair turned to leave, Stepina pocketed his gun. Berg pounced upon him. The second bandit fled. Stepina told police that he had been "pushed" into the holdup.

Stepina's appearance before Judge Green Monday followed his arrest in the company of an ex-convict. Such associations are considered violations of parole. A finding of guilty by Judge Green would have sent Stepina back to prison. Questioning Stepina, Judge Green learned he had been a member of his own division overseas and had been cited for bravery. These facts, and Stepina's plea that he was leading a decent life, prompted Judge Green to free him.

WOMEN WETS OF KENTUCKY FOR GOV. ROOSEVELT

Louisville, Ky., July 15.—(AP)—Officers and members of the executive committee of the Kentucky branch of the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform indorsed the action of the national executive committee in urging its members to vote for Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt for President, in a statement issued here today.

Mrs. James Ross Todd, a Republican and chairman of the Kentucky committee, issued the statement. Mrs. Todd pointed out that the indorsement was based on the organization's support of the repeal plank and not on the entire Democratic platform. The officers of the Kentucky branch, the statement said, reiterated their intention of working for the election of "repeal candidates irrespective of party."

Mrs. Todd's son, Jouett Ross Todd, is seeking the Republican congressional nomination in the 3d district.

ILLINOIS TO GET $3,738,000 FUND FOR WATERWAY

Washington, D. C., July 15.—[Special.]—Of the 60 million dollars appropriated by congress for river and harbor development during 1933, slightly in excess of $11,000,000 will be expended on the Mississippi and Illinois rivers.

A war department report today disclosed that the sum of $3,738,000 will be spent on the Illinois waterway between Utica and Lockport; $450,000 between the mouth of the river and Utica, and $5,627,000 on the Mississippi river. The sum of $6,160,000 will be expended on the Missouri river.

PEORIA LEADERS ASK CHICAGO TO SHOP DOWNSTATE

Twenty commercial and industrial leaders of Peoria were guests yesterday of the Chicago Association of Commerce at a luncheon in the Palmer house. Spokesmen for the Peoria delegation voiced a plea that Chicago remember downstate when contracting for perishable agricultural products.

"Peoria has the friendliest feeling for Chicago," said Murray M. Baker, director of the Caterpillar Tractor company of Peoria. "We feel that we are a part of Chicagoland, and almost a suburb of Chicago, only one hour away by plane. We watch you and we follow you.

"However, we hope for the day when you will watch more closely the interests of your own Illinois agriculture industry, which pays taxes and shares its fortunes with you. Eastern Iowa, southern Minnesota, all of Michigan and Wisconsin, and part of Indiana are preferential territory for you in the purchase of your perishable food products, while your own downstate is forgotten. Illinois agriculture looks to the day when it can depend upon Chicago for support."

Although Peoria is equally distant from Chicago and St. Louis, it always buys in Chicago markets and looks to this city for diversion and amusement, Mr. Baker said.

Robert I. Randolph, director of operations for the Century of Progress, conducted the visitors on a tour of the fair grounds. He assured them the fair would open as scheduled at 10 a. m. June 1, 1933.

"If we didn't get another nickel," he said, "we could open the fair next June and be assured of a better fair than has ever been given in this country."

BULKLEY MOVES TO BRING REPEAL BILL ON FLOOR

Washington, D. C., July 15.—[Special.]—A move to bring about an eleventh hour vote on prohibition was begun in the senate today by Senator Robert J. Bulkley, wet Democrat from Ohio. He gave notice that on tomorrow he would move to suspend the rules in order to bring up the motion of Senator Robert F. Wagner [Dem., N. Y.] to discharge the judiciary committee from further consideration of the repeal resolution of which he is author.

USES WANT ADS IN FRAUD; FOUND GUILTY BY JUDGE

Con Man Gives Notes for Autos; Flees.

Joseph Briggs, alias George Hunt, who used TRIBUNE want ads in operating a confidence game in the purchase of second hand automobiles, was found guilty yesterday by Judge James J. Kelly in the Criminal court. His arrest and indictment were brought about by TRIBUNE representatives, cooperating with police, in an investigation which was started after complaints had been received from the victims of the fraud.

The conviction carries a penalty of from one to ten years in the penitentiary. Briggs was allowed to file a motion that he be admitted to probation, which will be argued on Aug. 5. Prosecutor Homer Dodge and Attorney Joseph Taussig of THE TRIBUNE law firm of Kirkland, Fleming, Green & Martin, presented the evidence which brought the guilty finding.

Advertises to Buy Cars.

The prosecutors said that Briggs, with a partner, F. P. Murray, advertised that he would pay top prices for second hand cars in stores at 6015 Broadway and 6130 Cottage Grove avenue. The showrooms were given a prosperous appearance by expensive cars which were displayed there.

Testimony showed that clients who appeared with cars for sale were told that it would take some time to investigate the title and engine numbers. In exchange for their automobiles they were given notes made payable three or four months later, which were to be taken up if the titles were clear.

Find Salesrooms Abandoned.

All of the notes were made payable at approximately the same time, prosecutors said, and when the holders sought to collect they found the salesrooms abandoned. Briggs was traced to Lansing, Mich., where he was tried on a similar charge. When a not guilty verdict was returned he was arrested and extradited to Illinois for the present trial. Murray fled after posting a $5,000 bond and is a fugitive.

DRY STRADDLING PLANK VOTED BY G. O. P. IN OHIO

Wet Program Is Defeated by Vote of 708 to 130.

BY PARKE BROWN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Columbus, O., July 15.—[Special.]—By better than a 5 to 1 vote the Ohio Republican state convention today adopted the prohibition straddle plank which won out at the national convention by a considerable smaller percentage.

A minority plank, criticized as even wetter than the Democratic national declaration, was submitted with the solid backing of Cincinnati plus some scattered strength, but it was licked to the tune of 708 to 130, thus receiving less than 14 per cent of the total vote cast.

Chester S. Durr and Fred Schneller, the Cincinnati leaders who sponsored the repeal plank, put up a snappy fight for a few minutes, but they knew they were licked before they started and made their efforts brief. The confident majority under the leadership of James E. Kinnison of Canton, chairman of the platform committee, also thought it unnecessary to put up a battle and the only speaker to support Kinnison was Louis G. Tabor of Barnesville.

Wets Make Demonstration.

There was not a ripple created when Chairman Kinnison came to the straddle plank in the committee report, but when Durr read the demand for repeal the minority did its stuff with horns and rattles for a short time. This was the only demonstration during the action except for such incidents as a cry of "old stuff" from a woman dry when a return to local option was urged.

Kinnison's description of the majority plank was that it was not intended to be either wet or dry but to recognize the prohibition question as a political issue which the people should decide. Supporting him, Tabor, an unsuccessful candidate for the United States senatorship nomination recently, contended that for the sake of the state nominees the state convention should not go beyond the national declaration.

Durr spoke warmly for the minority report.

"Instead of promoting temperance," he said, "prohibition has multiplied evils."

Text of Straddle Plank.

The majority plank, adopted when the committee report was approved by viva voca vote after the roll call on the minority plank, read as follows:

"The Republican party accepts the issue of prohibition as a problem of government and entitled to be treated as such. We indorse the plank adopted by the national convention of the party relating to this problem.

"We interpret such plank as a mandate to the representatives of the party in the congress of the United States promptly to submit this issue to the states to the end that they may determine whether the eighteenth amendment shall be retained, repealed, or a constructive substitute adopted in lieu thereof."

This plank was said to have had the O. K. of Postmaster General Walter F. Brown, who, in his second rôle as national committeeman, has been an active participant in the proceedings of the last two days. It was drafted several days ago and there is a belief it was submitted to Washington for approval before it was taken up for action.

The minority plank was much longer and contained several declarations, among them demand for the repeal of the eighteenth amendment, immediate modification of the Volstead act, repeal of the prohibition amendment to the Ohio state constitution, repeal of the state prohibition law, and the creation of local option by cities and townships.

Among the other planks of the majority report the only one that varied from the more or less standardized Ohio pattern was a declaration in favor of pre-primary conventions.

Mrs. Sabin Calls G.O.P. Plank Worse Than Dry Law Itself

Southampton, N. Y., July 15.—[Special.]—Mrs. Charles H. Sabin, national chairman of the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform, addressing a meeting at the New Southampton High school this evening, pronounced the policy defined in the Republican prohibition plank, adopted at the Chicago convention last month, one that would launch the country upon "an experiment more uncertain and confusing than the eighteenth amendment itself."

MRS. CHARLES H. SABIN.

"We already have had a 'noble experiment,' famous under that name," Mrs. Sabin said. "It is now proposed to give up that noble experiment and embark upon another. If there is one thing this country should not do it is to experiment further with the constitution of the United States."

Defeats Own Purposes.

Through leaving to congress practically unlimited power to nullify legislation adopted by the several states for regulation of their liquor traffic, after the eighteenth amendment had been modified, the states would practically be deprived of the powers the Republican national plank proposes to vest in them, Mrs. Sabin said. In addition, she said, the plan proposed in the Republican plank would tend to keep alive and well in the foreground the wet and dry issue in every congressional election, with full play for the fanatics on both sides of the question.

"The uproar would continue year after year," Mrs. Sabin said. "We would never know what each new congress was going to do. Prohibition would still be in the constitution through this grant of power to congress to prohibit. We would be in a worse shape than we are now. The whole thing, in my opinion, is a fraud and a deception and should be rejected."

Asks Definition of Saloon.

Mrs. Sabin said that if the Republicans were to carry out their pledge to safeguard citizens from the return of the saloon a lengthy and elaborate definition of a saloon might have to be placed in the constitution.

"When is a saloon not a saloon," she asked, "and when does a saloon become a speakeasy, and vice versa? The dictionary defines a saloon as a place where intoxicating liquors are sold and drunk. Is a hotel restaurant a saloon? Is a golf club a saloon? Is a beer garden a saloon? Is the diner of a Pullman a saloon?"

With the powers left it under the plan adopted at the Republican national convention, congress could even reenact the Volstead law, Mrs. Sabin said. She made only brief reference to Republican members of her organization who have withdrawn because they were "Republicans first" following the proposal to have it support the Democratic nominee for President and the Democratic platform pronouncement in favor of repeal.

WIDOW OF PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT SAYS SHE WILL VOTE FOR HOOVER

New York, July 15.—(AP)—Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, widow of the late President, will vote for President Hoover this fall despite the fact that Gov. Roosevelt is a fifth cousin of her husband.

In a letter to Chester Burger, 11 year old Brooklyn boy, who had asked for her autograph and expressed his admiration for "your cousin," Gov. Roosevelt, she said:

"Franklin Delano Roosevelt is a distant cousin of my husband. I am a Republican and am voting for Herbert Hoover."

POLICE SEIZE 3; RECOVER STOLEN MACEDONIAN COIN

Richard Mazer, 24 years old, William Stewart, 30, and Miss Clara Pirwitz, 24, all of 4544 Hazel avenue, were arrested last night as members of a bandit gang by Detectives Dennis Creedon and Thomas Creeley of the North Damen avenue station.

The two men are accused of 50 robberies. Miss Pirwitz's rôle, police said, was that of a decoy. Holding a bulldog she would sit in an automobile in front of an establishment while her companions robbed it.

One of the robberies cleared up by the arrests, police said, is that of Alfred Winkler, 2205 Giddings street, who was held up Wednesday night and robbed of a Macedonian copper coin, more than 2,000 years old, which he valued at $850. The coin was recovered.

Find Unexploded Bomb at Apartment Building

An unexploded bomb was found this morning in the rear of a six apartment building at 4749 Ingleside avenue. Hyde Park police found the explosive after being called by Louis Lowenstein, a tenant of the building. Lowenstein reported that he heard what sounded like a pistol shot. What he heard, police believe, was the cap explosion which failed to set off the bomb. Police are working to learn why the bomb was placed beside the building.

Ex-Gov. Dunne's Son Is Fined for Speeding

DRYS DECLINE TO BACK G. O. P.; HOOVER PRAISED

Call Attention to Pledge of Roosevelt as Wet.

Washington, D. C., July 15.—[Special.]—Following a stormy secret session the national prohibition board of strategy today voted against making specific endorsement of the Republican ticket this fall, and then immediately issued a statement of parallel evaluations of the Republican and Democratic presidential candidates which gives a decided dry edge to Hoover over Roosevelt.

Possibility that Senator William E. Borah [Rep., Idado] might be a bone dry candidate on a bone dry third party ticket was ruled out by his own statement today that he would not consider such a plan.

Chicagoan's Report Loses.

The decision of the strategy committee of seven not to make an out and out G. O. P. indorsement was a victory for Bishop James Cannon Jr., political leader of the Methodist Episcopal church, South, who bolted Smith for Hoover in 1928 but who now champions a hands off policy. It was a defeat for the minority report of Oliver W. Stewart of Chicago, president of the Flying Squadron foundation.

The committee report was submitted to the association of organizations in support of the 18th amendment in session here.

Praise Hoover as Enforcer.

Of Herbert Hoover the report said: "During the presidency of Mr. Hoover the federal enforcement of the prohibition law has steadily advanced and has attained a higher degree of efficiency than in any other period since the adoption of the 18th amendment."

Charles Curtis has been, according to the committee report, "an active participant in the fight for local and later national prohibition since 1885." It adds that Mr. Curtis "has announced no change in his position."

In commenting on Franklin D. Roosevelt the document called attention to his Chicago acceptance speech which said:

"This convention wants repeal. Your candidate wants repeal—I say to you now that from this date on the 18th amendment is doomed," and his further statement that day:

"That admirable document, the platform, which you have adopted, is clear. I accept it 100 per cent."

Refers to Garner.

Of Speaker Garner the report says: "He summed up his present position and past record on June 21, 1932, by giving to the press this brief statement, 'When the prohibition amendment was proposed I, as a member of congress, voted against it. I have never believed it sound or workable and it should be repealed.'"

WISCONSIN HITS DIVIDENDS OF SEVEN UTILITIES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Madison, Wis., July 15.—The Wisconsin public service commission today ordered seven utilities in that state to stop the payment of dividends on common stock. It is the first time in the history of utility regulation that a commission has issued so radical an order.

No dividends are to be paid on common stock until the commission completes a formal investigation of the finances of the utilities and gives each company an opportunity to give reasons why a final order preventing the payment of dividends should not be issued.

According to members of the commission, the purpose of the order is to obviate the possibility that assets of the utilities might be drained off in the form of dividends. The commission contends that all revenues paid by Wisconsin consumers are necessary in preserving financial stability in the utilities and in protecting bond and preferred stockholders.

Blow to Holding Concerns.

The order says all of the common stock of each of the utilities is in the hands of holding companies and that none of it is held by the general public. Utilities receiving the order today are:

Commonwealth Power and Light company.
Wisconsin Power and Light company.
Northern States Power company.
Interstate Power company.
Northern Power company.
Wisconsin Hydro-Electric company.
Interstate Light and Power company.

Ties up Large Sums.

Records of the public service commission show that three of the seven utilities affected by the order paid a total of $958,422 in dividends on common stock last year. The other four paid no dividends on their common stock during 1931 and the order, as it applies to them, merely maintains this situation while the commission investigates.

The Wisconsin Power and Light company, Madison, the holding company of which is "a former Insull unit," according to the commission, paid $818,110 in dividends on common stock last year. The Commonwealth Telephone company, Madison, paid out $106,000. Its holding company is the Associated Telephone Utilities. The Wisconsin Hydro-Electric company, Amery, Wis., paid $63,312 to the Manufacturers' Trust company, New York, records show.

The companies that did not pay dividends on common stock, the location of their Wisconsin main offices and the holding companies listed as having the common stock are:

Northern States Power company, Eau Claire, Byllesby company; Interstate Power company, Lancaster, Utilities Light and Power company; Northern Power company, Superior, Electric Bond and Share; Interstate Light and Power company, Platteville, Byllesby company.

Two Operate Through State.

Two of the utilities affected by the order operate in almost all parts of the state. The Commonwealth Telephone company has 109 exchanges serving 43,327 stations in Wisconsin. The Wisconsin Power and Light company operates in nearly 300 communities.

The order would have included other utilities in Wisconsin whose common stock is in the hands of holding companies, according to commissioners, but because the initial investigation did not show their capital to be impaired they were excluded. Should their capital be threatened, a supplementary order will be issued to include them in the restraint, it was indicated.

In issuing the order the commission acted under a law passed by the 1931 legislature. It reads:

"Whenever the commission shall find that the capital of any public service corporation is impaired it may, after investigation and hearing, issue an order directing such public utility to cease paying dividends on its common stock until such impairment has been made good."

Order Further Explained.

In issuing the order to the Commonwealth Telephone company, the commission says: "The customers of a company such as this, in which control through ownership of common stock is vested in a holding company, have a vital interest in dividend payments, especially when capital is impaired or threatened with impairment. The customers' interest arises from the following considerations:

"1. Revenues paid by customers under existing rates have been used in part to support a second capital structure in the form of holding company securities. These securities have been issued without commission supervision and control. The holding companies' income comes primarily from dividends on stock of their subsidiary operating companies such as the Commonwealth Telephone company and that income has been used in part to pay interest and dividends on holding company securities sold to the public.

"2. To meet interest and dividend requirements on holding company securities in the hands of the public, there is great pressure on operating companies for larger and longer continued dividend payments than is prudent. We do not lack illustrations, as recently in the case of this company, of this pressure resulting in larger dividend payments, continued over a longer period than local stockholders and a prudent, independent board of directors would have authorized during a time of business reverses.

"3. Operating companies, under present conditions must rely on their own resources to get needed capital for the ability of most holding companies to obtain capital has been seriously damaged. The ability of operating companies to raise their own capital is injured if dividend payments are made when capital is impaired.

"4. The foregoing tendencies result in impaired service, postponed extensions of service, higher costs of service and higher rates."

Denies Confiscating Property.

In its temporary order the commission argues that it is not confiscating property in any sense. Instead, the order directs the utilities to keep the property now within their possession, thus conserving it, the commission contends.

"Our summary investigation indicates, prima facie, and we find that any further payment of common dividends will constitute a payment of dividends out of capital and thus produce an impairment of the capital of this utility, and that until a hearing on the subject can be held and testimony presented by the company indicating that this prima facie conclusion based upon our own investigation is not correct, no dividends shall be paid by this company upon its common stock," the order reads.

"Such an order does not take property. On the contrary, by requiring a conservation of assets, pending full inquiry, it directs the company to keep the property it has.

Finds It Is an Emergency.

"We, therefore, find an emergency to exist whereby, unless a temporary order is issued preserving the status quo, irreparable injury by way of impairment of the capital of this company will result, which emergency and threatened irreparable injury can only be prevented by the issuance of a temporary order directing the company to cease payment of dividends upon its common stock until such time as the commission may complete a formal investigation into the matter and until such time as the commission can hold public hearing at which the company will be given an opportunity to show cause, if such there be, why a final order in due course shall not be issued preventing the payment of dividends upon common stock.

"It is further ordered that until said hearing is held and a conclusion reached by the commission on the record then made respecting the above matters, and in any event not to exceed six months from the date of this emergency order, this company, its officers and directors, shall not authorize or pay any dividends upon the common stock of the corporation now outstanding," the order reads.

Follows Middle West Case.

Today's order is said to be in line with a policy established by the commission last April following announcement of the insolvency and receivership of the Middle West Utilities company.

A statement was issued by the commission at that time asserting that "It will not permit the draining off of assets of subsidiary public utilities operating in this state for the benefit of holding companies whether by way of inter-company borrowings, through declaration of dividends or by the slighting of depreciation reserves."

HOME BUILDING IN STATE GAINS 36 PCT. IN JUNE

Home building in Illinois increased last month, according to a survey completed yesterday by the state department of labor. The aggregate estimated expenditure for residential construction in 45 cities increased from $289,650 in May, to $393,270 in June, a gain of 35.8 per cent.

During the same period, however, nonresidential construction declined from $684,370 to $227,448, or 66.8 per cent. Estimated expenditures for repairs and installations declined from $493,430 in May to $457,782 in June, or 7.2 per cent. Chicago expenditure authorized by building permits declined from $861,485 to $408,545, or 52.6 per cent during this period, and a decline of 20 per cent on the aggregate expenditure was recorded for cities outside the metropolitan area which made reports.

LOSES MILLION

Mrs. Harriet Seymour Carscallen.

$1,000,000 WILL OF WM. L. BROWN IS SET ASIDE

Circuit Judge William V. Brothers yesterday entered a decree setting aside the will of William Liston Brown, former head of Pickands, Brown & Co., iron ore brokers, who died in 1929 at the age of 87.

The decree was in accordance with the verdict returned on May 27 by a jury which heard testimony for more than a month in the suit of relatives of Brown to break his will. The principal beneficiary of the will was Mrs. Harriet Seymour Carscallen of Pasadena, Cal. The estate is worth in excess of $1,000,000, even at depression levels, attorneys estimate.

Mrs. Carscallen was a niece of Mr. Brown's wife, who died in 1919. Following his wife's death, it was charged by the heirs-at-law, Mrs. Carscallen persuaded Brown to sell his Evanston place and to make his home with her. It was charged that his mind was weakened by age and that he was constantly under the influence of drugs, given him to ease the pain of various ailments, during the period when he executed his will.

Among the heirs-at-law, who will receive the estate under Judge Brothers' decree, are Mrs. Helen Brown Rice, a half-sister of Brown, and George Drew Brown, a brother, both living at 902 Margate terrace. They were represented by Kirkland, Fleming, Green & Martin. The other heirs, nieces, grandnieces, nephews, and grandnephews of Brown live in California and the east.

Attorneys for Mrs. Carscallen have given notice of an appeal.

COURT VACATIONS TO GIVE COUNTY ADDED EXPENSE

Will Hire County Judge for Circuit Court.

The executive committee of the Circuit court yesterday ignored suggestions that the court be kept open this summer to speed the hearing of its crowded civil calendar, and made arrangements for the summer on the usual basis, which gives the majority of the judges a twelve week vacation.

JUDGE HOOD.

But while the regularly elected judges of the court are seeking vacation spots, the executive committee, consisting of Judges Philip J. Finnegan, James R. Caverly, and William V. Brothers, arranged for one of the "country judges" to hold court during the summer, at an added expense.

Judge Hood Gets Job.

He is Craig A. Hood, city judge of Chicago Heights. Judge Hood frequently hears cases in the Circuit court, and is paid on a per diem rate. Judge Hood will hear an emergency call of tax and condemnation cases during the summer. Had one of the regular judges of the Circuit court been assigned to this call, the county would have been saved the payments to Judge Hood.

In addition, the regular judges of the court will sit, a week at a time, in hearing emergency cases of a general nature. Judge Joseph Burke will be the first to sit in this court, starting Monday.

The executive committee assigned Judges Thomas J. Lynch, Michael Feinberg, and Philip J. Sullivan to sit in the Criminal court during the next year. Judge Finnegan, who will take office Monday as chief justice of the Circuit court, succeeding Judge William V. Brothers, will hear the divorce call during the coming year, succeeding Judge Daniel P. Trude.

Judges to Work in Pairs.

Five nonjury courts of the Municipal court will each have two sitting judges during the summer months, Chief Justice John J. Sonsteby announced yesterday. This plan, affecting only courts in the city hall, is expected to expedite the hearing of cases, since one judge will hear preliminary motions while his partner is conducting a trial in chambers. None of the criminal branches will be changed.

The courts and judges involved in the new assignments, which become effective on Monday, are: Citations and confessions, Judges Rooney and Holmes; attachment, garnishment, and replevin, Judges Eberhardt and Elliott, with Judges Haas and Hartigan, Casey and Lyle, and Borrelli and Fetzer paired in three of the small claims courts.

Health Board Makes Test on Belmont Harbor Bathing

Tests were being made by the board of health yesterday to determine whether the continuance of bathing should be permitted in Belmont harbor. "Records in the past have shown that when a large number of swimmers go into the water at this point it becomes contaminated," said Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, president of the board of health. H. Otto Weege, superintendent of the Lincoln park system, pointed out that the increase in swimmers in the harbor had been heavy during the hot wave of the last few days. "Water is polluted by the boats in the harbor and because of the narrow inlet the water changes slowly," he said.

"MYSTERY" MAN MAY BE KEY TO REYNOLDS CASE

Stranger Who Asked Way Sought.

Winston-Salem, N. C., July 15.—(AP)—An unidentified man who asked directions for reaching the Reynolds home a few hours before the fatal shooting of Smith Reynolds, 20 year old heir to millions and husband of Libby Holman, the actress, was sought today by Sheriff Transou Scott.

Pursuing his investigation in an effort to determine how the youngest son of R. J. Reynolds, the late tobacco king, met death July 6, the sheriff said he had obtained "new evidence" since adjournment of the coroner's jury. A verdict of death by a gunshot wound inflicted by a person or persons unknown was returned after the inquest.

May Have Been Guest.

Scott said he had been informed of the stranger's request for directions by two Winston-Salem citizens, who told him the man had a traveling case in the rear of his automobile. He expressed the opinion it was merely one of the guests invited for the evening.

The officer explained he was seeking to run out every clew that might throw any light on the shooting, originally recorded as a suicide.

A desire to question Billy Shaw Howell, Charlotte radio salesman, was expressed by Scott. Howell was named by inquest witnesses as a guest during the first part of the gay party which preceded the tragedy and during which there was said to have been drinking of corn whisky and home brew.

Other witnesses said Howell left the Reynolds home about two hours and a half before young Reynolds dropped on a sleeping porch bed, with a bullet through his brain. Scott made it plain he wanted to question Howell merely to get all possible information regarding the party.

The possibility that Reynolds may have been shot by an outsider has not been excluded from the sheriff's theories, he disclosed.

Scott indicated he planned to question Ab Walker, Reynolds' chum, and possibly other guests, further with regard to happenings at Reynolds, the family home, a few hours before and after the tragedy.

PLAN REROUTING OF STREET CARS FOR WORLD FAIR

Plans for routing surface cars along Roosevelt road to the Field museum and Soldiers' field for the World's Fair traffic next year are being worked out by Edward J. Noonan, engineer for the city council committee on railway terminals, and a group of engineers.

Mr. Noonan said yesterday that the original plan for a subway starting from Wabash avenue had to be abandoned, since it called for a depression of the Illinois Central tracks, a project in connection with the new railroad station, which cannot be finished in time for the fair.

Instead, Mr. Noonan explained, an emergency plan has been discussed by which the street car tracks will cross Michigan, then go on a viaduct above the Illinois Central train shed and through a subway under the inner drive and east between Soldiers' field and the museum. The new plan will cost $1,500,000, while the original proposal called for an expenditure of $3,000,000.

"Years ago people couldn't see the idea of having street cars go across Michigan avenue," said Mr. Noonan, "but now with our stop and go lights traffic is halted anyway and this crossing would seem to be a feasible part of the plan."

NOXIOUS WEEDS IN COUNTY WOODS SHOW DECREASE

Fewer unlawful weeds are to be found in the county forest preserves this season than in any previous year, it was reported yesterday by Supt. Charles G. Sauers. Sauers said 300 unemployed men sent by the governor's relief commission had been at work nearly a month cutting Canada thistles and other noxious weeds before they go to seed. Six tractors and six teams of horses have been used in mowing and plowing up infested areas.

A state-wide campaign is now under way to enforce the state weed law, which places a heavy penalty on owners of real estate who permit Canada thistles or other noxious weeds to spread seed. Township thistle commissioners declare that only by pulling and burning, or by chemically killing the plants can the spread of thistles be prevented.

Reports It Will Take Years to Raise French Submarine

PARIS, July 15.—(AP)—E. S. Cox, British salvaging expert, reported to the ministry of marine today that several years of highly dangerous work probably would be necessary to raise the sunken French submarine Promethee, and even then there was a chance the attempt might not be successful. The marine ministry is continuing with its consultation of experts.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

CARRYING THE FIGHT TO BUREAUCRACY.

A statement of purpose will be sought of every candidate for congress by the National Organization to Reduce Public Expenditures. State chairmen of the organization meeting in Chicago decided to fix a definite sum for federal reduction and candidates will be asked to commit themselves to a cut of at least $750,000,000. That amount is well within reason.

The hard times may not have been without benefit if they make the American people aware of what has been happening to their governments and what poor compensation has been made them for the deprivations public costs have forced upon them. Many a citizen now looks forward to the exactions of government as the one load he will not be able to carry next year. This has happened in other times when royal courts were responsible to no other authority, but it is a criminal absurdity in popular government.

People have been destroyed before by taxation they could not limit and finally could not pay, but in the United States the people must consent to their destruction before it can be accomplished politically in this fashion. In periods of prosperity the federal bureaucracy grows. Money is easy and the reckoning is far off. Humanitarian impulses are expanded by zeal and criticism is dulled. Enterprises have plausible sponsorship. They are urged and undertaken for the good of humanity and the costly, paralyzing bureaucracy extends its territory. It never retreats. It becomes a vested interest, a charge upon the country, and successfully resists reduction and retrenchment.

Individual citizens imagining themselves protected by the stated intent of their form of government have no protection against a growth natural to the bureaucratic organism and promoted by zealous groups. The organism tends to increase by throwing off new cells. A committee becomes a commission. It evolves into a division, a unit in a bureau, a bureau in a department, and then becomes itself a department, throwing off, eventually, its own boards, divisions, and bureaus. Its pay roll constantly increases and each job becomes guaranteed to its possessor. Activity is manufactured and each activity tends to become an interference.

A bureau once given the breath of life seeks justification for its existence and consequent guaranty of it and of the money needed to sustain it. The individual alone cannot do anything against this organism, which constantly grows new heads and new body members. His congressional representatives deceive him with occasional gratuities sent into his own district and he forgets the cost of them.

There is greater popular understanding of this destructive system now than there has been for years. Desperate times have made better eyesight. It is the year of opportunity for a change in method and ideas of government and citizens are organizing to take advantage of it. The approach must be in every state and every locality. Each congressional district will contribute its share either to the continuance of ruinous government or to the checking of it. The American bureaucracy must be extirpated. It is alien to the American scheme. It is foreign to the American idea. Both the character of the people and the expanse of the country make it at once obnoxious and unworkable.

The answer to the demand for a reverse of policy is in the congressional elections and that is where the National Organization to Reduce Public Expenditures has taken the question.

THE MAUSOLEUMS OF WASHINGTON.

In Washington the federal government now has under construction buildings which will cost 63 million dollars. A fifth of all the government's building appropriation is being spent in the capital. That goes a long way to explain why congressmen in Washington behave as they do.

Washington wouldn't know there was a depression if Washingtonians didn't read about it in out of town newspapers. There is little unemployment in the capital. The job holders all have their jobs and their salaries have only now been cut. Work on government buildings is plentiful. Retail trade has held up pretty well. Congressmen spending months in the midst of so prosperous a community can't understand why their constituents are insistent upon governmental economy.

Some congressmen who have a true perception of the suffering throughout the country have been led by the prosperity in Washington to believe that if the government would spend money as freely in other cities as it is spending it in the capital the depression would disappear. That explains in part the support which has been given to the Wagner and Garner proposals for public works appropriations. What the friends of these proposals do not appreciate is the fact that the prosperity of Washington is adding to the misery of other communities. The money which the government is spending is impoverishing the country, depriving men of jobs and sending business houses into receivership.

The building program in Washington has provided enormous structures in the capital which the taxpayers must pay for and which congress will feel bound to keep filled with job holders. The department of labor and the interstate commerce commission are to have an 11 million dollar building. How much the more existence of such a mausoleum will add to the annual expenses of the government no one can tell, but it is obvious that the erection of such buildings institutionalizes waste. The bureaucrats will assume that every office and every swivel chair must have its occupant from now on.

LOUDER AND WILDER.

Miss Lillian Herstein, instructor in the Crane Junior college, was a delegate to the meeting in Cleveland of the League for Independent Political Action and made a speech. Later she said to THE TRIBUNE correspondent that she regretted not having made her talk hotter for a better newspaper display. The lady may be congratulated upon her astuteness, although she did neglect to use it, but she may also be advised that the technique is ageing. It isn't what it used to be. Newspaper men, although notoriously responsive to the call of the wild, the pursuit yelp of the commissar pack, and the bay of the comrades, are tumbling to the fact that they have been pretty soft putty. It isn't a reasonable view of news that an event or speech gains importance as it loses credibility and horse sense.

It is not to be relied upon that publicity invariably will be proportioned to wildness and that the freedom of the press will be given most liberally to the person who abuses it. Miss Herstein, although she did not do herself justice, as she afterwards regretted, said that the vested interests of Chicago, terror stricken by the advancement of universities and city colleges, planned to strike a telling blow, with the hard times as an aid, at public education.

Another speaker at the meeting was the distinguished John Dewey, professor of philosophy at Columbia university. Dr. Dewey spoke to sufficient length to prove that the education of which he is an exemplar had produced as one of its flowers an intemperate, unthoughtful man governed by unperceptive passions. The philosopher would have none of his own trade. He entered political discussion as raw as a hill primitive.

The enemy of public education in the United States is inside the system. Its extravagance is startling and its product is pitiful. An accounting finds it mentally insolvent. The riches of the nation have been poured into it willingly and it is sterile.

THE PARTIES AND THE BOSKY DELLS.

Senator Capper's newspaper, the Topeka Capital, says there should be no more national party conventions in Chicago because of the local mobs in the galleries. There were two incidents in which the galleries disturbed the conventions, one in each. The Republican was unable to proceed for a while when Mr. Garfield, speaking for the prohibition resolution, made a statement which overtaxed his auditors. He tried to say that the rising generation had never seen a legalized saloon, but the inference that new America did not know anything of intoxicating beverages was too much. Restraint should begin with the speaker if it is to rule in the audience.

The Democratic incident was precipitated by Mr. McAdoo when he took down the Texas-California "For Sale" sign and hung up "Sold." Such bargaining is not unexpected in political nominations, but although Mr. McAdoo tried to give this one an extra unction of patriotic purpose he succeeded only in making it appear shabbier than usual. The price was all over the transaction and the crowd took it in bad temper. There was a general feeling that Mr. Garner and Mr. McAdoo were not in an admirable light. Subsequent judgment sustains that feeling.

The incidents, particularly the Republican, had an import other than the one found by Senator Capper. It is not that New York and Chicago are unfit, because of hoodlumism, to entertain party conventions. It is that if Senator Capper's political ideas prevail in the Republican party much longer it will be of no consequence where it holds its conventions. When a national party decides to write off the people of the great metropolitan areas of the country as irresponsible mobs Shallow Waters, Kas., will be large enough for its subsequent convention purposes.

PUBLIC SPENDING MUST BE CHECKED.

[Daily Northwestern, Oshkosh, Wis.]

On the first page of this paper there is printed an editorial from this morning's issue of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE. It should be read and given careful thought by every taxpayer of Oshkosh, for its sense and truth apply to every city, county, and state and the nation as a whole.

The statement has to do with depleted public treasuries, crushing tax burdens caused by government, and the serious situation faced by financial resources of the nation.

And the warning is plain enough, for if demagogic radical experimenters and self-seeking job holders and job grabbers have their way the outcome will be ruinous.

That the voters of the country, the much applauded and frequently exploited "common people," must unite to defeat the forces that are preventing economic recovery is apparent.

Speaking before the Kansas City branch of the Federation of American Business recently, Col. Robert R. McCormick of Chicago, publisher of THE TRIBUNE, said among other effective points that "the depression here and elsewhere has been caused by excessive taxes, which have made industry and commerce unprofitable, have prevented them from saving any surplus or raising new capital, and have thrown millions of men out of work."

The result has been to require the government to "provide new capital and supply employment and charity for the idle, to do which it is levying still more excessive taxes, completing the vicious circle."

The lawmakers, declared Col. McCormick, have increased public activities at great expense, have demanded enormous revenues for their armies of tax eaters, and instead of encouraging the production of wealth from which to draw funds for public use have "obstructed profits, harassed business with a multitude of burdensome and useless regulation, and have begun to confiscate the capital which makes civilization possible."

He was not exaggerating when he declared that money is being spent by public officials faster than it is being accumulated by private individuals and companies, which means the inevitable end—private and public bankruptcy.

In connection with the problem of greater economy in government an editorial on this page from the New York Sun, under the heading, "Not an Easy Job," has some good stuff in it for local individual taxpayers and local organizations of taxpayers that are fighting against extravagance in public spending. Government cost increases are shown and taxpayers are advised to become informed regarding details and work out definite programs for retrenchment that are practical and effective without sacrificing necessary services.

ST. SWITHIN'S DAY yesterday and if it had rained then it would have rained for the next forty days. Well, if it's true that whatever happens on St. Swithin's day will happen for the next forty days, then in about three weeks from now lurid flames will be leaping from the ground. But, shucks, even lurid flames wouldn't make things any hotter than they were yesterday.

JAPAN BOBS UP with the announcement she will recognize the independence of Manchuria. Nobody seems to care. It's very discouraging to Japan. Now she's got to hunt up some other excuse for a new war against China. Statistics prove that if the Chinese wore the tails of their cotton shirts an inch longer the extra supply of cotton used would amount to $7,867,544.32. Think of China defrauding the cotton growers of the world of all that money because they refuse to add an inch to their shirt tails. There's your casus belli, Japan. Go to it, Make 'em wear their shirt tails longer and end the depression.

EX.

Do not make forgetting me resentful,
Remembering will help you to forget;
Forget about the magic hours we've known, dear,
Remember times I've caused you deep regret.

Remember how my horses never started;
Remember all the frocks I made you buy;
Don't forget elaborate lies I told you,
And dwell upon "my constant alibi."

Remember how I never turned the lights off,
And always left the soap down in the tub,
Remember that I mixed the gin with bitters,
And don't forget your hoodlum friends I snubbed.

You go about forgetting incorrectly—
Forget about the light upon my hair,
And just remember what a break you're getting

TALK ABOUT THE INTELLIGENCE of men over women! Look at the way the men dress these stifling hot days and then look at the gels. If old John Foolkiller was to come wandering down the street one of these red hot days who would he fall on with his big club and bat the eternal daylights out of? One guess. Why, of course.

THE EYEWITNESS WINS.

"Your Honor, Judge, Your Honor—I'll tell you just how it was 'cause I was standing right there when it happened: The two cars comes together and the little shrimp here he gets out easy like and don't never say one word, Your Honor. And this big bozo here he shoots off his mouth plenty boisterous. The little shrimp he opens his mouth a couple a times like he wanted to say something, but changes his mind or something and he don't say nothing, Judge, Your Honor, not a thing. I hears what the big bozo hollers and the little shrimp he don't utter a mutter, but stands there like a clam and takes it.

I heared afterwards that this little feller here don't talk much because he's deaf and stutters bad. But, Judge, Your Honor, the little runt never stuttered a stutter either—not a stutter! I was standing right there! I don't know who ran into who and why he ran into any one, but I know who it was got smart and shot off his mouth like blazes and it was the big bozo here. The little feller was lawful, Your Honor, Judge, and never uttered a mutter or stuttered a stutter.

Then the little shrimp he climbs back into his Ford there by the gutter and tries to see will it run. And it won't run. It only sputters a sputter there in the gutter and then a couple more sputters that don't mean nothing! Then the little feller he gets out there in the gutter again and begins looking sad like at the smashed fender of his Ford and the big bozo keeps on hollering and shooting off his face and . . ."

"And what?"

"And the little feller reaches over and plants a haymaker onto the big bozo's jaw!"

A PUBLIC HEALTH DOCTOR out in San Francisco says there is a nickel thing this country needs worse than a five cent cigar—a pocket tester for wood alcohol. That would be a mighty convenient thing for all hootch and needled beer drinkers, but is it necessary? A very simple and convenient test of likker these days is to invite a friend over and let him have the first drink. Just one drink, a small one. Wait five minutes and then stick your hand in front of your face and ask: "How many fingers before you?" If he says, "Oh, 'bout sheven hunnerd," then it's quite probable the likker is not so good.

FOR JAMIE SEXTON HOLME.

Leave me thus, here, when I shall find release,
Shriven of Earth, to ruthless earth returned;
Planted not deep that I may know fierce peace
Stripped of a breathless body's vain array—
I would be free; against relented limbs
Cold press of earth . . . Weep not for me, nor pray,
Nor torture air with lethal whine of hymns.

So shape not some lasting cell wherein to place
That which was me, before corruption's tide;
Earth-bound, earth darkly caressing cold face,
Leave me thus here: I shall be satisfied.

And when with stars the sky clicks overhead,
Consign me to earth, leave me with the dead.

SPARE THE CHILD.

As the hot season approaches it is well for parents to remember that children are unduly affected by heat. Proportionate to their weight, they have more skin surface than adults do. They work harder, though we call work by another name. They eat more per pound of weight, since they need nourishment because of their hard work and also by reason of the demands which growth makes. Eating a large amount of food per pound of weight, digesting it, making it into tissue and converting it into energy is a heat making process. Babies are quite susceptible to heat stroke which, with them, is apt to take the form of cholera infantum. But older children escape these heat strokes to a degree that we cannot understand unless we recall certain physiological facts.

While the sun absorbs both light and heat, it also is the chief agency in cooling the body. Dr. F. B. Talbot has recently supplied additional proof of the ability of the skin to fit its temperature to the heat or cold of the air. He proved that the temperature of the body varied somewhat with the season of the year.

Our common conception that the temperature of the body in all of its parts at all seasons of the year and all conditions of weather is held rigidly at 98 3-5 is wrong. We get hot when the weather is hot and cold when the atmospheric temperature drops. The trunk is warmer than the head and the legs are cooler. The temperature of the feet and hands is apt to be coolest of all. On a hot day when the hands swell and sweat the temperature of the skin there is warm. By cooling the feet and hands and making them white and fairly bloodless in cold weather nature conserves bodily heat.

The child who wants to wade on a warm day may not know his physiology, but he is on the right track. When he tries to go in deep enough to get his body wet he is even more right. Allowed to follow his instincts, no child ever wore heavy clothing or many garments when the weather was hot. On the other hand, unless the hand of restraint is kept in operation they have been known to appear robed about like their ancestors were when they left the Garden of Eden and, at times, they would make Eve appear overdressed. They have a lot of skin for each pound of weight and something tells them they should have a chance to throw off heat.

Another of Dr. Talbot's demonstrations was that when we go without food the body temperature falls. Children lose their appetites in hot weather. One way of tempting appetite at this season is to give frozen foods and cold drinks. Even a better one is to give cold baths and make free use of fans.

WHITE HAIRS.

A. B. C. writes: Is it injurious to pull gray hairs from the head?

REPLY.

No, but it is not very effective.

NOT HEREDITARY.

M. R. writes:

1. Is cancer hereditary?

2. My mother has a big, blue-black spot under her left shoulder blade. It itches nearly all the time and makes her shoulders ache. It has been there at least two years.

3. There are four big bumps, the size of a dime, under the skin on her arms, and when she is not well they are unusually prominent. Is there any danger of cancer?

4. What do you advise her to do?

REPLY.

1. No. However, there is more cancer than the average prevalence of cancer in some families.

2. I judge these are moles.

3. Probably not. Some moles are very dangerous and others not much so. Your description suggests moles of a type that is not especially dangerous.

4. Nothing.

UNDER AVERAGE WEIGHT.

A. A. writes: I am 22 years old, about 5 feet 9 inches tall, and weigh only 130 pounds. Am sound and in perfect health.

REPLY.

You are somewhat under the average weight for your age, but my advise is that you let matters ride. You are entering the life period when the natural tendency is to put on weight. In fact, four-fifths of the people ten years older than you are too fat for their own welfare. Probably you will be among this overweight group in a few years if you let nature take its course and follow the customs. Underweight young people are a little overapt to develop consumption, but you are about to leave that group.

LITTLE KNOWN DISEASE.

J. J. writes: 1. How does one get epidemic encephalitis?

2. Can it result from an injury, such as an electric shock or from exposure to acetylene gas?

3. Can a man catch it from a wild animal, such as a deer?

REPLY.

1. Epidemic encephalitis results from infection with the virus of the disease. The supposition is that it is caught from persons capable of spreading it. However, we know very little about it.

2. No.

3. No.

BEFORE BREAKFAST.

REPLY.

Before.

WHAT PRICE BOWLEGS.

C. M. writes: G. L. wrote that she would go to any amount of trouble to cure bowlegs. I had tuberculosis of the bone in my foot. It was in a cast half way up my leg for four months. When the cast came off my leg was straight.

REPLY.

Bowlegs can be straightened by operation. There is no question about that. But as between the operation, to say nothing of the prolonged use of plaster casts, most bowlegged persons prefer the ills they have. In that they are wise. When they say "would go to any amount of trouble," etc., most people do not expect to be taken seriously.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

JULY 16, 1916.

WAUKEGAN, Ill. — Will Orpet is free. It took a Lake county jury of farmers and railroad men just five hours to acquit the former University of Wisconsin student of the murder of Marion Lambert in Helm's woods last February. The trial, one of the most famous in criminal history of Illinois, began on May 15. Miss Lambert was 18 years old and a student at Deerfield High school. She was found dead of cyanide of potassium poisoning in the snow covered wood, where she had kept a tryst with Orpet following the collapse of their youthful romance.

LONDON.—"Further important successes" is the description of the war office in regard to the fighting by the British army to the north of the Somme river, but between the lines of the report can be read the story of the terrific smash through the German defenses on a wide front. The battle carried our men into the third line of the Germans in the Bois de Faureaux to the north of Bazentine le Grand, two miles to the southeast of Martinpuich, which dominates the plateau running to the northeast of Bapaume.

PETROGRAD.—The Germans made a determined effort to force back the Russians in the region of Baranovichi, where fighting had been in progress for some time. Three times the Germans attacked in mass formation but were repulsed by artillery fire.

BRITISH FRONT IN FRANCE.—Cavalry fighting took place today for the first time since the armies "dug themselves in" and began the trench warfare a year and a half ago. After a breach was made in the second German line the Dragoon guards [English] and the Deccam horse [Indian] had the reward of their long wait. They went straight in the face of the Germans who were forming a new defense line. Infantrymen who witnessed the sight could hardly believe their eyes. The surprise of the Germans was as manifest as if some apparition had appeared.

CHICAGO.—The Paramount booth at the Coliseum was literally stormed by a mass of struggling humanity eager to see Mary Pickford, who was the main attraction at the motion picture exposition yesterday. Police were unable to hold back the crowd in its attempt to get close to the famous actress.

PARIS.—Prof. Elie Metchnikoff, the famous bacteriologist, is dead. He died in an apartment at the Pasteur institute, with which he has long been connected. He was 71 years old, and was world famous as an exponent of theories for the prolongation of human life.

CHICAGO.—Street car facilities to Chicago's new $4,000,000 recreation pier were taxed to the utmost last night when the structure was dedicated. It was estimated that during the evening from 50,000 to 100,000 people went to the pier.

Every Man's University

TODAY'S QUESTION.

Why do earthquakes cause much more damage in California than in Illinois?

YESTERDAY'S QUESTION.

How does spontaneous combustion originate and how may it be prevented?

REPLY.

Some substances burn, i. e., react with oxygen of the air, so slowly that the usual signs of combustion are hardly noticeable and the heat generated is carried away by currents of air as rapidly as it is produced. At the bottom of coal piles or of heaps of oily rags no such currents circulate and heat must accumulate and the material get hotter. As the temperature rises, burning, like other chemical reactions, is hastened and heat is generated faster. Ultimately, the material gets so hot and the burning so rapid that a fire results. This spontaneous combustion of oily rags may be avoided by keeping them in tightly closed cans to prevent access of oxygen. Coal piles, however, cannot be hermetically sealed; prevention is often achieved in such cases by spreading the material out to enable air currents to carry away the heat and avoid excessive rise of temperature.

PRIVATE SCAVENGER NECESSARY.

Chicago, July 10.—[Friend of the People.]—Can't something be done to restrain the building [consisting of a fruit store, butcher shop, tailor shop and flats] next door to us from burning refuse in a tin receptacle in the alley, which is located under my dining room, bedrooms and kitchen windows? This burning is started at all hours and kept up until the stores close. In this hot weather it is impossible for me to have my windows open.

R. W. O.

Report is made that offending storekeepers were notified to make arrangements for private scavenger service for refuse removal and to desist from practice of burning output in alley. Alley has been thoroughly cleaned and will be kept under observation to see that notices are complied with.

JOSEPH J. BUTLER,
Superintendent of Streets.

UNSIGHTLY SHACK.

Chicago, July 3.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—There are a number of vacant lots on the east side of Stony Island avenue. Just back of us and a few feet to the north on this vacant property stands an old shack which was hauled up on a large truck and deposited there some time ago. In addition to being an eyesore to the neighborhood it constitutes a menace to those whose garages are nearby. Can't something be done to force the owner to remove this menace? I have heard numerous threats of setting fire to the shack.

C. M. H.

The district inspector reports that the shack should be boarded up or removed. When the owner has been located he will be notified to make safe or wreck the shack. This order will be enforced.

SUGGESTIONS FOR A ROOSEVELT GOVERNMENT.

Evanston, Ill., July 10.—As a Grover Cleveland Democrat, after more than fifty years of service in the Democratic party, I respectfully suggest Franklin D. Roosevelt as an ideal person for president of New South Wales, Australia, where Socialism is approaching its ideal and complete governmental collapse. I also suggest that the state of Iowa can spare him the Hon. Smith Brookhart for his secretary of agriculture, and Nebraska can soon spare him the Hon. George W. Norris for secretary of commerce, to install a complete state system to manufacture and deal in electricity. California could let him have the Hon. Hiram Johnson, author of Boulder dam, to inaugurate a system of irredeemable paper money, such as has already cost Germany more than all the reparations she will ever be called upon to pay. The Hon. Jack Garner of Texas as Vice President could continue to enlarge his glorious plan for billions of government bonds to build new postoffices and other public buildings that nobody wants except the contractors, in order to "cure unemployment"; all of his cabinet members having their faces turned toward Moscow for further ideals in socialistic government.

PEDDLING IN THE PARKS.

Chicago, July 8.—In the July 8 issue you published an article headed "Police Open Drive on Vets Peddling Without Licenses." Amongst the veterans who were trying to earn a legitimate livelihood selling ice cream bars and other articles on the street and in the public parks there were at least thirty men who were injured in the service during the world war, who are drawing small amounts of disability compensation.

It seems mighty strange and a very poor reflection on the character of the concessionaires of our public parks and the merchants of Chicago who were in back of the fight to have these privileges taken away from these men. They are not asking for charity. All they want is a chance to earn a small livelihood; and they are willing to work, as evidenced by the fact that they had to work from twelve to sixteen hours a day, carrying around a heavy box, in order to earn a few dollars with which to keep away starvation and want.

ARTHUR T. JACKSON.

NORTH CAROLINA'S MOTIVES.

Chicago, July 7.—In yesterday's TRIBUNE you published an editorial captioned "Congress and the Beer Bill," in which you said, "When a wet Democrat can beat a dry United States senator two to one in dry North Carolina, which four years ago went Republican because the Democratic candidate was wet," etc.

The obligation to tell the truth is a corollary of the right of free speech, so vigorously and successfully championed by THE TRIBUNE, Al Smith was defeated in North Carolina because of his religion. Maury Hughes, national committeeman from Texas, proclaimed the fact on the floor of the Democratic national convention, and the intolerant drys recently assembled at Indianapolis reaffirmed it.

Why not tell the truth and shame the devil?

T. A. SHEEHAN.

THE TEACHERS IN HARD TIMES.

Chicago, July 7.—I have just read Mr. H. O. Larsen's letter panning the teachers for complaining of their hardships and their union officials for talking about those hardships. Mr. Larsen's figures on back salaries are not wholly accurate, but I have not space here to make the corrections. The point I wish to make is this:

Neither the teachers nor their officials deny that there are many others in worse plight than are most of the teachers—although it is true that some of the latter are ready for the breadline. The teachers are as sympathetic as any one can be with the unemployed and they have contributed to unemployment relief to the extent of their means. Incidentally the teachers in their schools contributed and administered last year upwards of $135,000 for the feeding and clothing of needy children in those schools. This is in addition to individual help given privately by individual teachers—and to my personal knowledge there was much of this kind of help.

Finally I would ask Mr. Larsen to remember that the officials of the teacher unions—and incidentally these officials are not salaried—are elected for the purpose of serving the members of those unions and not the city at large. In the interests of effectiveness in both capacities they must draw a line between their duties as union officials and as citizens. The two do not conflict in any way, but they are different.

C. L. VESTAL,
President Men Teachers' Union of Chicago.

NO.

Chicago, June 25.—A man whom I have done work for before, knowing that I was conscientious, faithful, and intelligent in doing that work for him, calls me into his place of business and hands me a bunch of plain envelopes addressed to certain persons at their street numbers here, with the request to "please deliver those for me." We make no bargain as to a wage. I do the work of delivering for him, then come back to his office and say to him, "Mr. So and So, you owe me so much," and he pays me in cash.

Now the real question is: Can the United States postoffice department compel this man [or any other person] to buy a 3 cent postage stamp for each one of those plain envelopes and compel any one to use the postoffice service if one does not want to?

I do not know what the envelopes contain. They are sealed.

GEORGE H. WALL.

THE GLACIAL BUREAUCRACY.

Chicago, July 12.—I have noticed from time to time the fight you are waging in an effort to secure reduction of expenses by the federal government. For several months now there have been coming to my desk copies of construction reports for the various states showing the amount of construction work which was done in these states during 1929. How any one can possibly conceive that these reports are of any value almost two and one-half years after the work was performed is beyond my comprehension. It may not cost much to get them out and possibly it keeps some one in a job, but for what purpose?

Debutante Next Season Enjoys Boating

Reporter Sees Need of Ice at First Hand

Visits Homes, Hears Plea for Help.

BY KATHLEEN M'LAUGHLIN.

Mohawk street was an inferno yesterday. Several years ago, a little girl lived there who grew up to world fame as Gloria Swanson of the movies, but Mohawk street makes no pretentions and never has. The depression has hit Mohawk street and other small Glorias are among those feeling the pinch. At any rate, yesterday—with the mercury cutting capers around the top of the official thermometers—was one of the worst of its bad days.

Most of the residents clustered in such areas know what privation is. Yesterday just happened to be worse than they have experienced this summer, especially because of the lack of ice. And particularly so in that district, even though the sun beat down pitilessly everywhere.

Maybe it wasn't the actual temperature on Mohawk street that made it hotter than the rest of the vicinity. Maybe it was the lack of shade trees, or the roar of the L trains rocketing past just above the roofs, or the crying baby whose thin little limbs were red with prickly heat; but one thing is certain. A TRIBUNE reporter investigating the need of free ice in some of the families there, and a social worker acting as guide, stepped back from the front steps of the C—— family residence as though from the blast of a furnace. Then they fled to the back entrance instead.

Inside it was stifling. No electric fan, no vagrant breeze, no ice water to cool parched throats. Window shades had been drawn to keep the rooms as cool as possible, but a wood fire in the kitchen stove, necessary to cook the modest lunch, made mockery of that effort. A bottle half filled with milk that had soured for lack of ice stood in the sink. Yet Mrs. C—— smiled, and the blonde little girl and the anemic looking boy grinned at the callers, as questions were asked and answered. Undeniably, ice here would be as manna from heaven.

Then there was the H—— family, not far away. The father deserted. One of the four children has been taken to the country by a charitable agency. Mrs. H——, meeting the visitors at the door of her home in the back yard of another house, was gleeful over the fact that free ice was being delivered. She led the way proudly to her cramped little kitchen, displaying a bottle of milk set in state atop the ice in its compartment of her ice box.

The N—— family hasn't been lucky enough yet to obtain free ice. Like many another group, they make shift of water from the faucet, kept running into the kettle that contains the bottles, to try and keep their milk fresh and fit to drink. Sometimes it works. Frequently it doesn't.

All these families and hundreds more are in dire need of the free ice delivered through the fund sponsored by this newspaper. There are bound to be more days this summer like yesterday. Your check, no matter how small, will help tremendously.

Donations arriving yesterday were:

Mrs. S. O. Kesti; Constance T. Ritchie	$ 10.00
L. E. S.	6.00
Mrs. C. A. Woods; Mrs. J. E. Brough; in memory of Thelma White; Margaret Ullmann; Mrs. G. E. Mitchell; Mrs. Julia Ward Climes	5.00
Cora de G. McReynolds; Mildred of the Moraine hotel	3.00
Modern Laundry Co.; A Friend	1.00
Total	$ 64.00
Previously acknowledged	339.34
Grand total	$403.34

Contributions for the Camp Algonquin fund included $5 each from "Evelyn," and "In memory of Thelma White," making a grand total of $1,616.48 for that purpose.

Money orders or checks for either fund may be mailed to the cashier of THE TRIBUNE at Tribune Tower, and will be acknowledged.

Staying at Fort Sheridan

Miss Ann Parker, daughter of Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Frank Parker, was graduated "cum laude" from Smith College last month. Miss Parker is spending the summer with her parents at Fort Sheridan and next winter she plans to continue her studies in Chicago, not making a formal debut, but undoubtedly taking part in most of the debutante gayeties. The elder daughter of the Parkers, Katharine, is having an interesting time in Paris where she is acting as hostess for her uncle, Gen. Lahm, an attache at the United States embassy there. Reveal Visit of Mrs. Elisha Dyer Hubbard

Former Muriel McCormick in City Few Days.

BY JUDITH CASS.

MRS. ELISHA DYER HUBBARD stole a march on those of us who were expecting that she was coming west next month and bringing her handsome husband for a visit to her relatives in Chicago. She came to town last Monday and departed again on Wednesday without any of the society reporters even discovering that she was here. But here she was at the Drake hotel without her husband, to see her mother, Mrs. Rockefeller McCormick, and her brother, Fowler McCormick.

The Fowler McCormicks had expected to have the former Muriel McCormick visit them at their Barrington house, but of course her visit was too brief to permit any out of town jaunts.

A friend who saw her tells me she is handsomer than ever and looks more like "Joan, the Maid," than ever. This same friend also tells me that she saw Mrs. Hubbard act in Shaw's play, "St. Joan," last winter in Palm Beach and that in the friend's estimation Mrs. Hubbard was better in it than either of the noted actresses my informant saw play the same role in New York and London.

Mr. and Mrs. Hubbard are spending the summer on their farm near Middletown, Conn., although they may go to Bar Harbor for a week or two, and they also may come to Chicago later for a visit.

Mrs. Fowler McCormick is planning to go to Easthampton, L. I., for several weeks next month, but the date for her departure has not been set.

The Chicago Golf club at Wheaton is having a timely party tonight, a Lido party, with dinner and dancing at the pool, which has been very popular these last two days, as have all the swimming pools at the clubs and private residences which are fortunate enough to have pools. Among those who will entertain parties tonight at the Wheaton club are the club president, Harold N. Scott and Mrs. Scott, Mr. and Mrs. Niblack Thorne, Robert M. Curtis, Mr. and Mrs. Allan Jackson, Mr. and Mrs. John Van Nortwick, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph W. Davis and Mr. and Mrs. Horace O. Wetmore.

Parties for Whitneys.

Mr. and Mrs. Austin H. Niblack are giving a luncheon today at their Lake Forest residence for their house guests, the John Hay Whitneys, after which the party will go to the races at Arlington. Tonight the Howard Linns are entertaining at dinner at their residence on the Shoreacres club grounds for the Whitneys and tomorrow Ralph Hines will give a luncheon for them at his country place near Milburn Hunt club.

Sterling Morton and a group of men will set out in the Freedom this afternoon in the yacht race to Mackinac and when they will return will "depend on the wind," so Mr. Morton says. Mrs. Morton and Miss Suzette will not be on the yacht for this cruise.

The Kenneth Smiths of Winnetka, who spend almost every fine afternoon cruising in their Kenkora are deserting the yacht this afternoon to watch the horses race at Arlington, but they will be back on the boat tomorrow for a short cruise. They do not plan to take a long cruise until the hay fever season and then they will go north so that Mrs. Smith can escape that unpleasant ailment.

A wedding of great interest to Chicago society that is taking place this afternoon in London is that of Miss Margaret James, daughter of Lieut. Col. and Mrs. Ralph H. James of Chicago and London, to Charles Clarence Smith, elder son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Dalyrymple Smith of Loughbrown, Hexham, Northumberland.

Miss James made her debut here about six years ago, shortly after her parents returned to Chicago to live, and has been immensely popular ever since. She went to London in the early summer and her mother went over several weeks ago to be present at the wedding, but her father found it impossble to leave his business just now, so he is not there to give his daughter in marriage.

Her father told me yesterday that he knew absolutely nothing about who the attendants are to be at today's ceremony or who is to officiate but he thinks the wedding will be at 2:30 o'clock in St. George's church in Hanover square. He thinks Margaret's sister, Mrs. Gordon Stannus (Frances James) of London, will be the "dame of honor," and that little Paul Stannus will be a page.

After the ceremony there is to be a reception at the Portland place residence of Sir John and Lady Noble, old friends of the bridegroom's family. After a three weeks' honeymoon in Cornwall, on the southwest coast of England, Mr. and Mrs. Smith will be at home in Cobham in Surrey. Miss James is wearing her mother's bridal gown today, the gown lovely Louise Brega wore twenty-nine years ago when she was married in old Grace church here.

Druce Lake Camp Benefit.

The Druce Lake camp board is sponsoring two performances of "The Magic Whistle" to be given for the benefit of the camp on July 26 and 27 by the Jack and Jill Players in the outdoor theater on Mrs. Howard Van Doren Shaw's estate in Lake Forest. The John T. McCutcheons are occupying the Shaw residence this summer—Mrs. McCutcheon was Evelyn Shaw—while Mrs. Shaw is abroad.

Marie Agnes Foley, director of the players, wrote the play especially to be given out of doors, and the amphitheater surrounded by evergreens at Ragdale is an ideal place in which to present it. None of the actors is over 16 and one of them is only 3.

The Misses Katherine and Jane Trowbridge and their sister-in-law, Mrs. Calvin D. Trowbridge, and Miss Helen Ewing will usher at both performances, and Mrs. Evans Spalding, Mrs. Marion T. Martin, and Mrs.

Joan Bennett Plays Well in Fa So-So Movie

State-Lake Returns to Vaudeville Policy.

"WEEK-ENDS ONLY."

Produced by Fox.
Presented at the State-Lake.
The Cast.

Venetia Carr	Joan Bennett
Jack Williams	Ben Lyon
Arthur Ladden	John Halliday
Martin	Halliwell Hobbes
Washroom Attendant	Henry Armetta
Mr. Carr	Berton Churchill
Ted	John Ariedge
Bartender	John Elliott
Mr. Brigg	Walter Byron

By Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!

Wha' do ye ken, folks,
Wha' do ye ken!
The State-Lake's gone
Vaud-e-ville again!

After giving the "picture only" policy a good, fair trial, the State-Lake management rises to announce that it feels its public wants substance as well as shadows. So, starting today—with no increase in admission prices—seven vaudeville acts are presented in addition to the current film, "Week-Ends Only."

The headliners are Lee Sims, pianist, and his wife, Ilomay Bailey the singer—w. k. radio entertainers—"Sunshine" [Our Gang] Sammy and his three little brothers—youngsters should go for this act in a big way!—and Olive Olsen, the blonde, singing comedienne whom, possibly, you enjoyed in "Follow Through" and "Meet My Sister."

And so—to the picture.

I'd LIKE to enthuse over this number, which she, Ben Lyon, John Halliday et al. strive so conscientiously to make a success, but am forced to report that it is, so to speak, just another movie, possessed of nothing to make the blood run faster.

The photoplay is an adaptation of a novel by Warner Fabian. The heroine, a motherless maiden, reared, as we say, in the lap of luxury, suddenly finds herself sans father, sans money, sans job.

But fate is not so agin her as you might think, for, one day as she trots hopelessly through the rain wondering how on earth does an unfortunate daughter of the idle rich stay pure and eat, she comes upon the old family butler!

Martin is dressed in the nth style and good taste and says in quite the respectful tones of yore when he was a butler and she was a boss:

"Yes, Miss Venetia, I think I have a job for you!" [She having asked him if he had.]

Well, it turns out that Martin has bought up New York's most expensive night club and could use a hostess.

Venetia becomes that.

A wealthy man about town, who is fascinated by this charming lady, asks her to bring joy, light and class to his weekly week-end parties—on her own terms, of course, which admit of no personal liberties.

In the meantime Venetia has fallen in love with a struggling young artist. He paints her portrait to enter in a prize competition, and she, through Martin, secretly befriends him.

Misunderstandings, due to her occupation, arise, and if you didn't know your movies' penchant for H. E.'s you'd figure that, sure, the ardent and rich Mr. Ladden was to win the fair one. Does the picture run to form? You'll see.

The film is nicely mounted and, on the whole, the players please. If not too picky you may like "Week-Ends Only."

Paris Adapts the Linen Duster to Summer Traveler

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—The old fashioned linen duster has been dragged out of the musty past to make the smartest French summer traveling coat.

Chantal began the present popular revival of the duster coat, which as seen in Paris is cut along the newest and smartest lines for travel, that is, it is loose from the shoulders and has wide straight sleeves.

The linen coat in our sketch today is the modernized idea of the linen duster. It is made of a beautiful shade of green, instead of the dingy color of its forerunner. This coat has no collar but it has large revers, and its pockets are simply immense, and smarter because of their extreme size. They would, in a pinch, hold all the necessities for a week-end.

The scarf of this coat is made of white and raspberry red plaid silk, and the flat crowned linen sailor has a band of the same plaid silk around the crown.

Church at Wheaton to Give Picnic to Forget Slump Ills

An old fashioned picnic is one of the best methods of restoring mutual confidence on which the credit system of this country is based, declares the Rev. Francis J. Epstein, pastor of St. Michael's Roman Catholic church at Wheaton, which will sponsor such an event today and tomorrow on the church grounds.

"The picnic has come into its own again mainly because people have discovered that forms of entertainment to which they became accustomed during the fat years are out of the question now," he said. "Naturally the emphasis this year is laid on food. Wheaton is in the center of a garden spot of the world. The food to be served will make every one forget imaginary as well as real troubles, and prove that we are much better off than we sometimes now think we are."

Hot Weather Clothes Fill Chicago Shops

Offer Smartness as Well as Comfort.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Even though you are among the well controlled who refuse to complain about the heat, you must be just as anxious to find new hot weather clothes as any other shopper. And while this is the season when clothes collections are reduced to the minimum, you are going to be thrilled when you see these cool thin new things that are fluttering in all the shops.

White suits especially are superabundant, from pleated and shirred white chiffons to crisp chalk white silk crêpes—all made very simply but most effectively designed for all day wear. New three quarter length coats with long straight sleeves are exceptionally interesting. Until you see a white crêpe silk suit combined with just a hint of color you can't realize how coolly pertect such a suit can be.

One good looking model has a one piece frock with an appliqued bow of paisley patterned silk. This bow is tied and repeated on the short hip length jacket. Other white suits use dotted silk contrasts and stripes for sparkling accent.

Flowered chiffon dresses never lose their charm and coolness—what could be cooler than a filmy wide chiffon skirted dress with feminine bows tied with long graceful ends, particularly when it is made of a soft gray chiffon and printed with litesize white daisies.

If you are looking for a cool chiffon ensemble that will be decorative and effective from 1 o'clock till midnight, you'll choose a very successful new model made of cornflower blue chiffon. The dress is seamed intricately with most of the fullness below the knees—the coat is distinguished by the very large and long puffed sleeves that are gathered into a band at the wrist. A corsage of red poppies, cornflowers and white daisies fastened at the V neckline achieve a perfect climax. Worn with a wide brimmed blue horse hair garden hat, white gloves and shoes it is an afternoon frock of great coolness and even greater distinction.

Green and white dotted chiffons and striped georgettes and frocks similarly printed and patterned in a cool, watery green tint against a clear white background are even cooler to the appraising eye than to the wearer.

Long white taffeta slips under each of these chiffon models make them switch crisply and coolly and most beguilingly around less lightly clad but appreciate victims of a climbing mercury.

Street ensembles get cooler each new shipment—dark blues and blacks are adroitly combined with cool splashes of white chiffon, organdy, tucked net and lovely, smooth as cream, white, angelskin satin. Printed ensembles are charming, noticeably demure this season because of the small, precise patterns—a veritable gift from the gods for the larger sized shoppers who have been warned against prints with cabbage sized flowers and elephant sized leaves and other giant designs that spread the silhouette practically out of all reasonable or becoming boundaries.

The best news about these cool chiffon things is the matching shadow proof slip that can't be separated from the dress, thus providing the minimum and sufficient underlayers that are firmly anchored to the nonslipping shoulder straps.

Park Groups Give Music Program at Fair Grounds Today

A chorus of 250 and an orchestra of 300 from nine of the Chicago small parks will present a program on the terrace of the Hall of Science of the Century of Progress this afternoon at 3 o'clock. The parks represented are Austin, Town Hall, Dvorak, Holstein, La Follette, Pulaski, Shedd, Stanford, and Union. The conductors will be Adolph Erst and Herman Bachman for the chorus, and William Hofman for the orchestra.

The Cavallo band concert scheduled last night in Grant park was rained out after the first number. It will be played next Friday night with the same program as would have been heard last night, including the appearance of the Illinois Central male chorus directed by Carl Craven.

Evalyn Knapp Engaged.

Hollywood, Cal., July 15.—(AP)—Evalyn Knapp informally announced her engagement today to Donald Cook, also a young film player. Although each claims Kansas City as a home town they did not meet until about a year ago. Miss Knapp said their romance began when she was in a hospital recuperating from injuries suffered in a fall over a cliff.

Sally Will Tell Winners of Next Party Tomorrow

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

Are you growing a trifle anxious to learn who were the winners for our party at the Publix-Balaban and Katz Uptown theater on next Thursday, boys and girls? I know I would be if I had written a letter, for it promises to be a swell show.

Mr. Thurston arrived there yesterday with his three carloads of tricks and the return of 52 people who help to make his hour of magic such a thrilling one. His performance will simply delight you. You'll like Jimmy Cagney, too, in his picture, "Winner Take All," and you'll enjoy the rest of the program which is filled with splendid features.

If you won an invitation to this grand party tomorrow's paper will tell the tale. Don't fail to see it! There will be news of another party, too, and although I can't tell you now what it will be, I will say this much: It's something interesting, new and exciting—something we've never done before. Does that excite your curiosity? Well, then, be sure to read about it in THE TRIBUNE tomorrow!

Marion Talley Returns.

Kansas City, July 15.—(AP)—The honeymoon of the former Marion Talley, the singer, and Michael Raucheisen, German accompanist, has ended. The couple, married unexpectedly June 30 in White Plains, New York, are at home in the apartment of the bride in Kansas City.

Teach Student to Read—Plea to Educators

U. of C. Professor Reports on Speed Tests.

BY VIRGINIA GARDNER.

College students might well be taught how to read, it was suggested yesterday by Prof. William S. Gray, school of education, University of Chicago, in an address before the Institute for Administrative Officers of Higher Institutions, which closed yesterday at the university.

Prof. Gray cited tests of 664 freshmen at the University of Chicago which indicated that rapid readers are the most comprehensive readers.

The slowest reader, according to the tests, read less than two words per second; the most rapid, more than seven. The rapid reader, Prof. Gray said, could cover 63 pages an hour, compared to the 18 pages completed by the slower reader in an hour.

The fast readers in a test disregarding the time element and considering only comprehension, scored three times as high as the slow readers. By photographing eye movements, Prof. Gray said, it was found that those who scored high in reading tests showed "fluent habits of recognition and interpretation," while the slow readers exhibited slow, halting, confused movements.

Other investigations, Prof. Gray said, showed that students who read well showed comparable academic progress. He outlined a program for improvement of reading habits of college students. Their reading efficiency should be determined when they enter, he said. He advised conference sections in a required course in which corrective training be provided for poor readers.

Administrative censorship of student activities is rarely justified, Assistant Professor William E. Scott, director of student publications at the University of Chicago, told the conference in the afternoon.

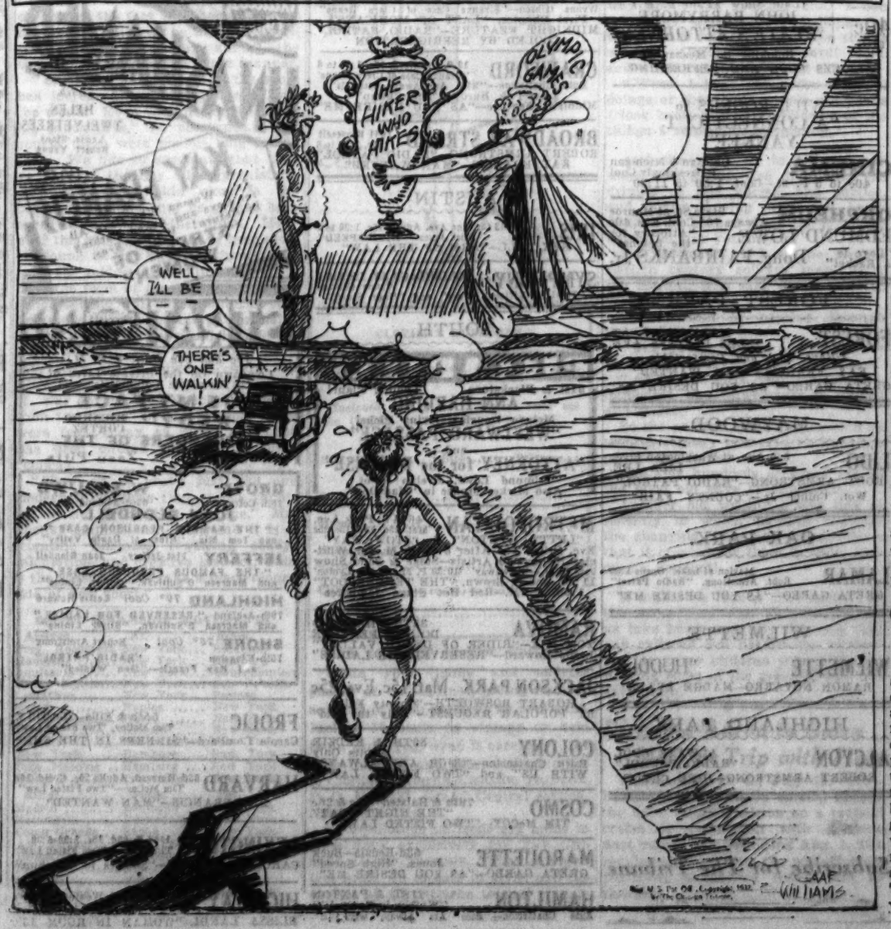
"Censorship is never necessary in an ideal arrangement," he said. "Good taste and sound common sense are prevalent among students. While standards of taste vary and defy exact definition, it is possible, and expedient, to arrive at certain broad and perhaps elastic interpretations that will offend none but the rigid purist.

"Offenses against such standards are sporadic and are due to the accident of the students themselves permitting the wrong man to obtain a position of authority."

Cardiac Cases at County Camp for Ten Day Stay

Camp Reinberg in the forest preserve, near Palatine, yesterday welcomed its second group of mothers and children for a ten day vacation from the city's heat. All in the present group, which numbers 440, comprise the "cardiac" group. Either the mothers or the children are afflicted with heart ailments, and will be supervised by a doctor and three graduate nurses. The medical staff will decide how much exercise each may indulge in, and direct their menus and rest schedules during their stay. They are wards of the Cook county welfare bureau.

SOMETHING OUGHT TO BE DONE ABOUT THIS



I Like You So Much

BY MAY EDGINTON

SYNOPSIS.

Gold Franklyn calls Dr. Elverton, who has a surgery in a poor district of London, to attend her indolent, dependent young half brother. The doctor offers to give Barney Pierce, a well to do accident victim, a lift to his destination, and Pierce waits while the doctor makes his call. He catches a glimpse of the pretty creature who summoned the doctor. Both men determine to help the plucky young orphan girl. The doctor is to sail the next week to New York and Havana on a leave, taking the ship doctor's place. Mrs. Doria Hathaway, a widow, friend of Pierce's, is to sail on the same boat. She wants a maid-companion for the Atlantic crossing. The doctor sends Gold to see Mrs. Hathaway and she gets the job. Pierce regrets putting Gold under the demoralizing influence of Doria. He decides to sail himself. On the boat Doria meets David Dorrance, who wants to interest Pierce in a business deal. Doria asks Gold to dine with her. They are joined by Pierce and Dorrance. Gold is angered by Pierce's cynicism and distrust of women. Gip Alen, Gold's half brother, stows away on the boat and threatens to disclose his identity unless Gold does as he bids. Pierce, who overhears Gip's threats, unknown to Gold, takes the youth in hand.

INSTALLMENT XVIII.

UNKNOWN PROTECTION.

Barney Pierce thought swiftly.

"My New York manager will be meeting this boat. He'll have a permit aboard. I'll hand you over to him and we'll find you a job."

"D'you know your luck?" the captain demanded again.

"What sort of job?" said Gip.

"A job that will be better than the Ellis Island business your relative expects for you; or the inside of a prison."

"And that's that," the captain added.

"Listen," said Pierce rather roughly, "doesn't she know you are an American citizen and realize that that helps things?"

With a languid smile of ineffable superiority, Gip replied: "You know what women are? Muddle headed. And I'd scared her so that she didn't think clearly."

The purser appeared.

"Mr. Roberts," said the captain, "we have here a stowaway for whom Mr. Pierce makes himself personally—though very privately—responsible. He asserts he is of American nationality. Have him taken at once into the third class and fixed up there. And we don't want any tricks."

There were now three large, hard men eyeing Gip.

"The sooner the better," the boy remarked, turning towards the door.

There was a short silence after he had gone out with the purser, who had assumed his shortest tempered look.

"The boy's got nerve, you know," said the captain then.

"O, yes. What he mostly wants is a darned good slamming. I'll send him off to my lumber camp in Texas and pay him enough if he works enough. He won't know what he's in for till he gets there. And the boys'll show him."

"Who's he belong to?"

Pierce answered slowly and rather heavily: "Well, a young girl who is traveling as companion to Mrs. Hathaway. He quit his job and followed her aboard. He always hangs on to her—they're half sister and brother—and he'll do anything rather than stand up and fight for himself. Tell you what: Elverton knows."

In the comparative quiet of the night at sea Gold lay, her mind running on Gip in the old way.

"Our new doctor?"

"Yes."

"He'd be an awful handicap to her, of course, if she's got to make her way in New York," said the captain.

"I'll look after that. And thank you, captain."

"Thank you. We don't get all our stowaways disposed of so satisfactorily to the company. Good-night."

Pierce went briskly back to the palm lounge and his thoughts went more briskly. But they went to the same tune to which, for a good many unrelenting years now he had set them. Never let a woman know—were his thoughts—what a fool you are. Never let her see what you'll do for her. Never let her guess she can fill your head like some refrain you can't lose, try as you may to break it. Also his thoughts asked him: "Will I ever trust a woman again?" and he answered himself: "I doubt it."

By now, he thought—as he reached the palm lounge and saw, in the distance, Dorrance, whom he had left with Doria, still entertaining her—Gold would have Gip's note. The pettish cruelty of it—which had inflamed him for a moment as he read—would serve a purpose. Whereas, had the note not flung that ungrateful renunciation at her as a sop to the writer's vanity she might have otherwise been anxious, inquiring, soft, protective, as women were to weak men, now she would certainly leave the cub alone!

Doria was looking distrait; only half listening to Dorrance, who was a good and witty raconteur. But as she caught sight of Pierce she smiled and the strained look left her eyes, she stretched out a braceleted arm.

"That turn on the deck was a long one!"

"Sit down, Barney."

Dorrance rose. "I have to go to the auction pool and buy a number. Selling has begun and Mrs. Hathaway has been already plunging!" he laughed. "Perhaps," he said to Pierce, "I shall see you in the smokeroom after beautiful ladies will have retired."

"All right."

Dorrance moved away.

"I suppose you two have a lot of business together?" Doria suggested.

"I don't know," said Pierce imperturbably, "there is an idea of a merger and no reason to make a secret of it. But the principal effect of the idea just now seems to be that we have a very pleasant fellow to keep us company."

"Is he rich?"

Pierce laughed. "Who really knows if a rich man is rich? And why?"

"I like rich men."

"I heard a woman say something like that before today."

"O, who? When?"

He could hear the girl speaking, her voice blown to him, as it were, by the fresh wind, and the deepening dusk like a thick veil over her: "I am in the soothing company of a rich man." Her voice was wistful, reflective. Then she had laughed a little.

"O, some one or other," he replied to Doria, "just a chance phrase. You know how one catches them; and how they can stick. Are you soon turning in?"

She bit her lip. "It's early, isn't it?"

"I'll see you to your street."

Returning from escorting her, and making his way toward the smokeroom to join Dorrance, he met the purser, monocled and bland, seeing everything and every one; nothing and nobody. Both paused.

"O. K.?"

"O. K.," the purser nodded.

"That note?"

"It was delivered at once. Miss Franklyn was awake."

A few steps farther on he met the doctor. "Elverton, by the way that boy followed his half sister aboard." He told the story briefly.

"I'll marcon him if you like," said the doctor when he had heard; "I'll have to vet him since he escaped the third class examination; and I'll find a pimple on his chest and shove him into the nice little hospital we've got on the afterdeck." He laughed; but the proposition had a smack of reality about it.

Pierce grinned and passed on. Good fellow, he thought; there were good fellows in this world; and the women hardly ever knew them; hardly ever picked them. In a corner of the smokeroom Dorrance awaited him alone at a small table. Pierce looked at him speculatively for a moment, knowing that he had walked for quite a long while with Gold Franklyn on the dark, deserted deck.

When Gold read Gip's letter she was relieved to tears; also angered—as Pierce had hoped she would be—to laughter. Her laughter was scornful, surprising her meek, elderly cabin companion.

In the comparative quiet of night at sea Gold lay, her mind running on Gip in the old way. The glib defiance of his letter that might very well cover dismay. His dependence on her, memories of the delicacy of his earlier years, all tugged painfully at her heart. She made up her mind, tomorrow, to tell Elverton—"my one friend on this ship," she thought, not counting Doria Hathaway, forgetting Dorrance. But soon, lying there in the darkness to the sound of a ship's strange groanings and the soft, incessant rush of the sea, she recalled Dorrance. His offer of help must be seized upon. More than ever now, she must establish her position somehow before the ship berthed.

Reveal Visit of Mrs. Elisha Dyer Hubbard

Former Muriel McCormick in City Few Days.

Both performances will be open to the public and tickets can be procured in advance from any member of the committee or board, or at the gate on the afternoons of the performances. In case of rain on either day, the play will be given in the auditorium of the Country Day school.

A large gallery will follow the exhibition golf match around the Onwentsia links tomorrow afternoon, probably, to cheer the club champion, Dexter Cummings, and the club "pro," George Smith, in their match against Joe Kirkwood, the trick shot specialist, and Jock Hutchinson, former British open champion. The match is scheduled to start at 2 o'clock, and tickets to it may be purchased at the club entrance.

Polo Match Tomorrow.

No doubt quite a few Lake Foresters will motor southwest to Hinsdale tomorrow afternoon to watch the Onwentsia polo team play the Oak Brook team for the benefit of the American Olympic committee's fund for sending American athletes to the games this summer. The game is called for 4 o'clock and it is to be played on the Oak Brook club's field on York road, about a mile south of Roosevelt road. Some of those who have boxes are Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Hamill, Mrs. Paul Butler [her husband will play No. 4 on the Oak Brook team], Jerome P. Bowes, and Maj. Gen. Frank Parker.

The Tavern has announcements out for a midsummer party next Friday night—a dinner dance to extend a welcome to the summer guest members (each member had the privilege of giving a guest card to one Chicagoan for the summer). There will be dancing on the boat deck, which by the way, is a popular place with the members and their guests on these hot nights for there always is a breeze up so high.

Mr. and Mrs. Griffith Mark are out in Libertyville visiting Mrs. Mark's mother, Mrs. Joseph M. Patterson, having a quiet but pleasant time, seeing their friends and swimming, playing tennis and doing all the other delightful things there are to do in the country these days. Mrs. Patterson says she is giving no parties for the former Elinor Patterson and her husband in this hot weather, although she gave a fairly large one yesterday afternoon [not for the Marks, however], for the Lake Forest Garden club met at her residence to hear Norman McClintock of Pittsburgh talk on "The Spirit of the Garden" and to see his moving pictures of animal and bird life in a garden.

Little Miss Lynn Covington, who was born on July 2 at the Alice Home hospital in Lake Forest, moved yesterday with her mother, Mrs. William S. Covington, to the Lake Forest residence of her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Morse, to spend the balance of the summer there. Her father, who came to Lake Forest to welcome her into the family, will return shortly to Seattle where he was transferred from Washington, D. C., last spring, and Mrs. Covington and baby Lynn and Shirley, who is 3, and William Jr., who is 5, will join him about Sept. 1.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph T. Bowen and their daughter, Gwendolyn, of Lake Forest, stopped in Pittsfield, Mass., for a short visit with Mrs. Warren M. Salisbury as they motored to Bar Harbor, Me., to visit Mr. Bowen's mother, Mrs. Joseph T. Bowen Sr., at Baymeath.

Mrs. Edward K. Welles of Lake Forest is visiting Mr. and Mrs. George Alfred Cluett at Green Meadow farm in Williamstown, Mass.

Travel News; Resort Items.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew B. McCaughey are back in their Walton place apartment after a two months' stay at their Winter Park [Fla.] estate and plan to remain in town for the balance of the summer except for brief jaunts to nearby resorts. Their daughter, Miss Mary McCaughey, will go to Kentucky next month to serve as a courier for the Frontier Nursing association.

Mrs. Gilbert E. Porter III. will leave at the end of this month for North Hatley, Canada, where her children are spending the summer with her mother, Mrs. Thomas Kilby of Birmingham, Ala. Mr. Porter will join his family later in the season.

There will be several house parties at Lake Geneva this week-end, the principal attraction for the guests being the Holiday home benefit program that Dr. Annette Washburne and Mrs. Albert F. Madlener Jr. [Harriet Lowden] are to give tonight at the Lake Geneva Country club. Dr. Washburne will be Mrs. William F. Peterson's guest—Mrs. Peterson is president of Holiday home—and Dr. and Mrs. Edmund Andrews also will be with the Petersons.

The annual rummage sale held recently for the benefit of Holiday home netted more than a thousand dollars. Among other benefits planned for this summer for this favorite charity of the Lake Geneva summer colonists are a tea on Aug. 23 at the home, and a card party, the date for which is not set. There was a meeting of the board Thursday at the home; among those attending were Mrs. Peterson, Mrs. Augustus K. Maxwell, Mrs. Chauncey B. Blair, Mrs. Simeon B. Chapin, Mrs. William Finney, Mrs. Daniel Peterkin, Mrs. Albert F. Madlener, and Mrs. E. P. Ellwood.

Other News from Lake Geneva.

Mrs. Henry P. Isham is opening Maplelawn, the Ishams' Lake Geneva residence, Monday from 10 to 5 o'clock for an Eli Bates sale.

The annual flower, fruit, and vegetable show at Lake Geneva is to be given this year on Aug. 12 and 13 in Horticultural hall. At a meeting of the executive committee this week Mrs. E. B. Frost was appointed general chairman and Mrs. Henry Bartholomay, vice chairman.

Mrs. Lunt Gardener of Evanston and Mrs. Arline Peck Warwick of Lincoln Park West will spend this week-end with Col. and Mrs. William N. Pelouze at Alta Vista, their Lake Geneva residence.

One of the busiest young persons at Lake Geneva this summer is Miss Jeanette Peterkin, who is working diligently at her art work, concentrating on sculpturing. She is doing heads of several of her friends that are very good, I'm told.

Several Lake Geneva summer residents will motor to Oconomowoc next Wednesday to assist at a sale for the benefit of the Vocational Society for Shut-Ins, to be held at Stonecraft, the residence of Mrs. Daniel J. Schuyler Jr. The Lake Genevans who will assist are Mrs. Albert F. Madlener Jr., Miss Katharine Lefens, and Mrs. Earle J. Zimmerman. Mrs. Britton I. Budd will motor up from Chicago to assist.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., July 15.—[Special.]—The French ambassador, M. Paul Claudel, entertained at luncheon today at the embassy for the members of the French Olympic team who are en route to California for the games.

Miss Peggy Tyner, daughter of Mrs. Elonzo Tyner of Chicago, left today for Madison, Conn., to visit Gen. and Mrs. W. W. Harts in their summer home.

Mrs. Delos A. Blodgett closed her home today and started for her summer home on Mackinac island.

NEW YORK SOCIETY

New York, July 15.—[Special.]—Walter P. Chrysler Jr. gave a supper party last evening in the starlight roof garden of the Waldorf-Astoria. His guests included the Misses Anne Storrs, Betty Schuster, and June Harrah, and William B. Oakie Jr.

Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Whitney will sail tomorrow night on the Cunarder Mauretania on a two weeks' cruise to the West Indies, Venezuela and the Panama canal.

GASOLINE ALLEY—SO GEORGE DID IT?

LET ME TELL YOU ABOUT THAT SORT OF SUIT. THE INDIANS MADE IT OUT OF BUCKSKIN AND THE BACKWOODSMEN COPIED IT. IT IS REALLY ONLY HUNTING SHIRT AND LEGGINGS.
I'M GOIN' TO WEAR IT TO SCHOOL.
WASHINGTON WORE IT ON HIS FRONTIER TRIPS AND LATER USED IT AS A UNIFORM FOR HIS COLONIAL TROOPS. THE LONG TROUSERS WERE MORE PRACTICAL THAN KNEE BREECHES AND STOCKINGS AND SOME OF THE BRITISH TROOPS ADOPTED IT. IN THAT WAY IT GOT TO ENGLAND AND PERHAPS THAT'S WHY WE ALL WEAR LONG TROUSERS TODAY.
AUNTIE BLOSSOM, IF IT WASN'T FOR GEORGE WASHINGTON MAYBE UNCLE WALT WOULD BE WEARING KNEE PANTS.
AGAIN I'M THANKFUL FOR GEORGE WASHINGTON!

Face, Figure 'n Fashion Govern Today's Beauty

Any Clever Gal Can Assist Nature.

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

There are three F's that constitute today's beauty governing board. They are face, figure, fashion!

We might have argued one time that the last two were pretty much in your hands; the first in the hands of your Maker.

I'll argue that you can do more actual beauty reform work on figures and with fashion than you can with the face that was wished on you. But I hasten to add that you can do a-plenty with that face of yours, even though it mightn't be one you would have picked out for yourself. What you can do with your silhouette and its clothing in comparison, is miraculous.

What I mean is that you can't alter the shape of your nose, or your mouth, or change the facial contour. You can change the latter back to its former outline, but I mean you have to wear facial features pretty much as your ancestors handed them on to you. Your silhouette, on the other hand, you mold according to the desired weight. And what cannot be corrected or improved by flesh addition or subtraction you can force fashion lines into shaping for you.

That's why I think the figure has the better of it. True, you can do a good deal of reshaping of the face with the right coiffeur for the individual you. You can make a face appear less round. You can give it a different looking appearance by the simple trick of thinning out that heavy overgrowth of hair, byt letting the hair lie close to the scalp. I've seen this transformation of face often. Or, you can lend a little facial fulness by an opposite coiffeur trick.

What can be done for the face, however, no matter what mood Mom Nature was in the day of its creating, is to turn it out a beautifully groomed looking piece of work. That you can do—and I repeat what I have said before—that's just about all that is asked of women today. That—and a smart figure.

Clothes today are so attractive—but there's that needed sixth sense to get them on the right figure. Simply take the belted form of frock as opposed to the bias cut, one piece dress. Figures are made and lost on the right decision here. Or, take prints. You can look like a Chanel masterpiece or a terrible frump with the choice of a print.

Sorry, we can't go into this further today. Just wanted to tie up those three F's in your mind for early reference.

Sailing Thrills Plentiful in Model Yachts

Many Chicagoans Enjoy Building Boats.

BY RUTH DE YOUNG.

These glorious summer days, when nautical interest is even getting down to the buttons that anchor our jackets snugly about our ribs, who can resist the thrill of a big blue pond of water and the feel of tugging at the main sheet of a yawl or a sloop?

It doesn't have to be a large craft, for there's all the sport in the world in building and sailing a twenty or thirty inch boat. . . . a replica of some pretentious craft.

Lake Forest boasts a good number of our "miniature" yachtsmen, and Roger Bronson and Morrow Kemm are in large part responsible for this local interest. Model enthusiasts themselves, they undertook three years ago through the Young Men's club to run off a regatta in the harbor at the Great Lakes Naval Training station. The event was such a success that just about every other schoolboy in the town now spends a good portion of the year making a model boat and the rest of the time sailing it.

Aside from being good sport, Mr. Bronson points out, it has helped many boys lose inhibitions they once harbored about the perils of Lake Michigan.

Julian Armstrong has a boat that might well compete against his father's 65 foot schooner. Lawrence Freeman, Arthur Ryerson, and Arthur Pope are other owners. David and Hugh Dangler have boats that the family gardener, Gustav Hansen, has taken great pains in building. One is a scale model of Harold S. Vanderbilt's yacht, the Enterprise, that won the America's cup against the late Sir Thomas Lipton's Shamrock V.

In Lake Forest's "grownup" class Benjamin Carpenter is another who willy raise his voice in praise of model yachting. Mr. Carpenter's nautical background almost goes back into the days of folk lore. His grandfather was the city's original ship chandler.

In town the model yachtsmen are many. . . . Ian McKenzie, Orville Sonntag, and one (I've promised not to tell his name) who received his inspiration for building miniatures in a dentist's chair. He tells how he hit upon the idea of using the drill less painfully and just as effectively in making model boats. Soon he went to work and now the sport has no greater enthusiast.

Both Mr. McKenzie and Mr. Sonntag are members of the Midwest Model Yacht Racing association, along with E. L. Cheney, who hails from Saugatuck and on a recent visit to the city told something of the story of model yachting. Mr. Cheney has a large craft at his winter home in Florida. Still he prefers to sail his models.

"Nothing has ever given me such complete satisfaction as model yachting," he commented. "It combines science, play, and exercise. The little craft is tractable, responsible, and, except for the fact that her skipper is not aboard, she can be handled like a real yacht, performing almost the same evolutions in the same manner.

"Since the war interest in the sport has increased amazingly throughout the world. Even the king of Siam has his miniatures," he continued. "Of course there were models long before that. We like to speculate that they go back to the day when prehistoric man spread his skin cloak to the breeze and found that he gained both speed and leisure therefrom. However this may be, there have been models found in the Egyptian tombs."

In the middle ages miniature boats took the form of the church ships. A sailor setting out on a doubtful voyage made a boat for his patron saint in the hope that he would be allowed a safe return. Very much more accurate than these, however, were the little craft made by French prisoners of war during the Napoleonic wars from the bones of the mutton they were fed. Today as much as $1,500 has been offered for one of these replicas.

"They go to prove just like our modern miniatures that model yachting is not a childish pastime," Mr. Cheney emphasized. "Instead it is a scientific business requiring study, calculation, and creative instinct. This is the reason it can take a place alongside of any sport."

Even in Twelfth Century Young Were at Fault

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

"All nonsense to me," said a great aunt of mine the other evening." "All this talk about the younger generation being so much worse than we were!

"Every older generation talks that way about the younger one. I can remember my parents holding up their hands in horror over the things we did, 'Shocking! Forward! Bold and without respect for our elders!

"When I hear about the dreadful doings of the young people nowadays I look back, and here are some of the things I remember happening."

And she went on to tell me episodes, and gossip, and mentioned the driving of fast horses, and parties, and buggy driving with one hand! Shades of parked cars! Is it all so new—the way youth acts?

"The world is passing through troubled times!

"The young people of today have no reverence for parents or old age!

"As for the girls, they are forward, immodest, and unwomanly in speech and dress!"

So the ancient monk's comments on twelfth century ran. (The exclamation points are mine.)

And this hundreds of years ago in the good old days of handcraft.

Another old writing I was told of recently in which parents bewailed the changing times and the problems that it created for them in their children's conduct!

It makes us look a little foolish, at the same time that it should make us take heart and stop thinking that our children are headed for destruction as never children were and that nothing short of the grace of God will save them.

More questions and answers for today. The first on the docket is from Mrs. A. D., who asks: "Why is it that my celery turns black in the refrigerator? I keep it on the bottom of the box, underneath the freezing unit."

In the first place, Mrs. A. D., that blackness is the result of freezing, or at least frosting. Celery has a large percentage of water and thus freezes quickly. You have been keeping it in the coldest place in the refrigerator—the spot the circulating air reaches first after being chilled by passing over the freezing coils. This necessarily crowds out some of the foods which really need this ultra coldness—butter, milk, cream, and broths—and besides, overchilling the vegetable is likely to carry some of its pronounced flavor on to other easily tainted foods.

Aside from all this, however, no place in your refrigerator outside of the freezing unit and trays themselves should injure even the most easily affected foods. That is, if the machine is working properly. Check up to see that you are controlling the cold as directed by the instructions that come with the refrigerator and, if the trouble continues, request an examination by your dealers. An error in the regulation of cold control may quite probably be causing the trouble.

Next is Miss E. G. F. with one of the difficulties so many of us have—namely, hard, lumpy brown and powdered sugar which stubbornly refuse to stay soft and usable, and take up precious minutes while we grind, pound, or roll them into submission. A tightly closed tin or glass is my first suggestion and my second is to try a bit of cold storage. I have discovered that both these sugars keep perfectly if covered carefully and stored in the refrigerator. The cold, dry air discourages moisture absorption and does away with hardening.

One more request which I would like to answer in print, since it brings to mind such a tempting spring delicacy, is from Mrs. B. B., asking for our best recipe for strawberry blitz torte.

The name may sound mysterious but the method is simple, and the result is a fluffy one layer cake topped with golden meringue lavished on the cake batter and baked right with it. The strawberries in all their juicy goodness add the crowning glory just before serving. Here is our choicest recipe:

STRAWBERRY BLITZ TORTE.

1 1-3 cups pastry flour
1 1-3 tsps. baking powder
½ cup butter
5 tbsps. milk
4 egg yolks, unbeaten
¾ cup sugar

Cream the butter, sugar, and egg yolks until light colored and foamy, adding the unbeaten yolks one at a time and beating between additions. Sift the baking powder and flour and add alternately with the milk, mixing in carefully. Turn the batter, which is quite thick, into two nine inch buttered layer pans and spread out evenly. Cover each layer with half of the following meringue and bake in a low oven [325 degrees F.] for about 25 minutes, then increase the heat to 355 degrees for half an hour longer.

Love and Casual Attitude Not Found in Girls

Executive's Advice Is Fallacious.

BY DORIS BLAKE.

One of our successful women gave an interview recently in which she warned girls against taking love seriously if they'd be a success at their jobs. Until girls relegate love to the casual place it occupies in a man's life, there is not much hope of the male presidents and the vice presidents, secretaries and treasurers of big business being ousted for female executive talent, she said.

The question is how many girls would swap a sweltering love sickness for an executive job? The other question is whether business success, however handsome its financial rewards, could stifle the old love yearnings in the female heart.

Our opinion is that they'll have to begin all over again with the construction of women in order to make business success a greater attraction than one good heart wallop. They may have to begin away back with Eve herself, the original one of garden fame. Until women are utterly demotionalized they'll go on throwing overboard the most promising of executive jobs for one good heart attack. And more power to them!

When girls begin taking love casually, it's a bad day for love—and for all women. It's the casual females we have with us at present who've built up much of the sex-antagonism abroad in our land. Love casualness among our sex is abnormal. Women cannot take their love or leave it.

It's doubtful, too, if love has such a casual place in the affairs of men. Perhaps it does not interfere quite so much in the business side of their lives. But falling in love, getting married and settling down are a pretty vital part of their life's program, too. When things go wrong in their love lives or when they go right, the man's business duties reflect the state.

Women may perform a bit more hysterically under adverse love circumstances. But we think taking love seriously the job that women were planned for and best fitted for, and we wouldn't have them try to imitate any male casualness, if there is such a thing.

Salaries of M-G-M Movie Stars Are Cut 35 Per Cent

New York, July 15.—[Special.]—Officers and actors employed by Loew's, Inc., and its subsidiary, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, who earn more than $1,500 a week, will have their pay cut 35 per cent under a general salary reduction which will become effective Monday, it was announced today.

Salaries of all employés of the corporations have been reduced on a sliding scale basis. This is the first cut instituted by Loew's.

Salaries ranging up to $50 a week will be reduced 5 per cent, and those earning larger amounts will receive cuts amounting to a higher percentage. All of the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer moving picture stars will be included in the 35 per cent cut, it was said.

In a message to officers and employés of Loew's and its subsidiaries, Nicholas M. Schenck, president, said the reduction would remain in effect only until business conditions improve.

FRENCH ALLIES TURN ON PARIS; DENOUNCE PACT

Poland Calls Accord an "Act of Treason."

will be so strenuous that they will all be invited to adhere to the accord, which will amount to nullifying it, or a new "big five" will be constituted.

This may be achieved either through the powers simply "adhering" to the Franco-British "confidence" pact or through elaboration of a new document more general in tone, but based on the first paragraph of the Franco-British accord.

This paragraph reads as follows:

"In accordance with the spirit of the covenant of the league of nations the government of the United Kingdom and the government of France intend to exchange views with one another with complete candor concerning and to keep each other mutually informed of any questions coming to their notice similar in origin to that now so happily settled at Lausanne which may affect the European régime. It is their hope that other governments will join them in adopting their procedure."

BRITAIN EXPLAINS PACT

BY JAY ALLEN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

GENEVA, July 15.—The new Franco-British "confidence" treaty can be drawn out like a dining room table to seat everybody, it appears from the glowing description of its features by Sir John Simon, British foreign secretary, to the council of the league of nations today.

The French, it seems, had an idea it was an intimate affair—a tête-à-tête and Premier Herriot went so far as to present it to the world as a revival of the pre-war "entente cordiale." Simon told his colleagues today that it was practically a universal entente.

"I am very glad to say that the Italian and Belgian governments already have expressed their adherence to this declaration, and I wish to make plain that the invitation is not limited to the powers represented at Lausanne," he said. "Other European states are invited to join."

League Accepts Explanation.

He suggested that it might continue the heritage of Aristide Briand's ill-fated "United States of Europe." Members of the league were inclined to abandon their apprehensions that Britain is attempting to revert openly to the pre-war state of affairs and to accept the simpler explanation of the strange pact.

Simon, however, seemed to be denying that the treaty is what it appears to the naked eye to be, namely, a facade for an understanding on the procedure to follow on war debts owed to the United States.

The council today became the official sponsor of the international finance and economic conference, pursuant to the agreement reached at the Lausanne conference. On the proposal of the British foreign secretary, the council left the time, place and presidency of the conference to be settled by a committee of the council, composed of Great Britain, France, Germany, Italy, Japan and Norway. The committee was also authorized to add other states, including the United States, Belgium and some Latin-American countries.

The conference will probably be held in October. Great Britain is eager that it be held in London, while the small powers insist on Geneva. A dispute looms.

PROPOSES TO LET PEOPLE OF WORLD BALLOT ON WARS

PARIS, July 15.—(AP)—No more general mobilizations and no more wars by nations unless the people themselves authorize them by national referendum, is the object of a resolution introduced in the chamber of deputies for the purpose of putting teeth in the Briand-Kellogg peace pact. The author of the resolution, Leon Abrami, independent radical and former undersecretary for war, declared tonight that his project already had the support of 70 of his colleagues.

The resolution invites France to have the league of nations ask its members and the signatories to the Briand-Kellogg pact to insert provisions in their constitutions interdicting mobilization or war unless their people, both men and women, approve by a two-thirds vote.

The foreign affairs committee already has the resolution. Here is one excerpt from the preamble:

"The referendum must include mothers, wives, sisters and daughters, for they understand the carnage of war." The only exceptions in which a referendum would not be necessary would be when a nation was a victim of general mobilization or attack, or was acting in behalf of the league of nations.

BOARD OF CITY CLUB OPPOSES LOOP PARKING

The board of directors of the City club adopted a resolution yesterday opposing the suspension of the loop parking ban. The resolution contends:

1. Parking in the business district would retard pedestrian, automobile, bus and street car traffic and increase street hazards.
2. One hour loop parking would require a large number of police to regulate, adding to the city's expenses or lessening police protection in outlying districts.
3. World's fair traffic next year would not be accommodated with loop parking.

Loop merchants are seeking adoption of an ordinance that would permit parking in the business district from Aug. 1 to Jan. 1, a five months' test. They believe that the present regulations hurt their business by discouraging motorists from visiting the loop to shop. The city council will vote on the ordinance next Wednesday.

SILENT ON MEANS

Mrs. Evalyn Walsh McLean.

Mrs. Evalyn Walsh McLean, Washington society woman who gave Gaston B. Means $100,000 to arrange the return of the Lindbergh baby, arrived in Chicago yesterday morning in a private car on the Baltimore and Ohio railroad. Mrs. McLean, who is a guest at the Drake hotel, said she would depart in her private car tonight for Santa Barbara, possibly to spend the remainder of the summer there. With her are her three children, two of their playmates, and Mrs. Blaine Beale of Washington and New York.

Asked if she felt satisfaction at the 15 year sentence imposed on Means for embezzlement of her $100,000, Mrs. McLean said, "O, I don't want to talk about that. It's all over now."

U. S. MAY BE KEPT OUT OF WORLD MONEY PARLEY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 15.—[Special.]—Recent developments abroad disclosing that European powers were combining to bring about a revision or complete repudiation of their war debts to the United States may result in an American refusal to attend the world monetary and economic conference called by the league of nations today.

SIR RONALD LINDSAY.
H. & E. Photo.]

It was stated in a high state department quarter today that this country will not accept the league's invitation when it arrives until assurances have been received that war debts, reparations, and the tariff are not to be included among the subjects of discussion. Before acting on the league invitation this country will await additional reports from its diplomats abroad regarding the extent to which our late allies have agreed to act in concert on the debt problem.

Invited by Envoy.

Prior to the announcement at Geneva that the league was to call an economic conference Sir Ronald Lindsay, British ambassador to the United States, called at the state department to ask if this country would attend an early meeting of experts assigned to lay the groundwork for the economic parley. State department officials said no answer could be made until a decision had been reached as to whether we will go to the economic parley.

While at the state department Sir Ronald took pains to assure Under Secretary of State William R. Castle that the Franco-British agreement growing out of the Lausanne reparations conference had no reference to the war debts owed this country by the allied powers. He left a copy of the official British statement issued yesterday in an attempt to wipe out any impression that European nations were combining to force war debt revision by the United States.

Continue Skeptical.

Notwithstanding British assurances administration officials today continued suspicious of all the agreements growing out of the Lausanne reparations conference. In some high quarters the view was held that the disclosures regarding secret war debt agreements indicated a move on the part of the powers to default their war debt payments this fall.

SENATOR GLENN ARRIVES TODAY; PLAN WELCOME

Friends of Senator Otis F. Glenn who have applauded his stand for prohibition repeal and a reduction of governmental expenditures will be on hand to greet him this morning at 10 o'clock, when the arrives at the Union station on the Liberty Limited of the Pennsylvania railroad.

His work kept Mr. Glenn from the Republican convention and he has not been able to return since because of the relief measures and the wet and dry battles on the senate floor.

Attorney A. L. Schwartz, the senator's law partner, said last night that he expected a crowd of friends at the station this morning. United States Marshal Laubenheimer and Collector of Customs Czarnecki will be on hand as well as a group of ex-service men and others.

BARTON ERRS IN FULL EXPENSES OF VETERAN AID

Total Cost Shown by an Expert.

Exception has been taken by James F. Barton, national adjutant of the American Legion, to the estimate that the United States government expended in excess of one billion dollars last year in war veterans work.

A chart published in THE TRIBUNE on June 14 showed the amount of relief appropriations for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1932, in excess of the one billion dollar figure. Comparisons with the expenditure of European nations were shown. The tabulation showed that this country spent many times as much as did the European participants in the world war for veterans' relief work while this nation's toll of dead and wounded in the world war was but a small fraction of that suffered by France, Italy, Great Britain or Germany.

Claims Other Veterans Share.

Mr. Barton says the billion dollars included pension payments of 225 millions to veterans of wars other than the world war, more than 100 millions set aside for insurance payments which the veterans paid for themselves while in service, and 100 millions provided for the adjusted service certificate fund.

"As a matter of fact," Mr. Barton adds, "the total cost of the entire veterans' administration, the operation of soldiers' homes, of hospitals, and the cost of medical care of all veterans, added to the payments made on account of death and disability of world war veterans, is approximately 460 millions and not over one billion dollars as was set forth."

Some Classes Not Included.

Mr. Barton's conclusions are not accepted by THE TRIBUNE economist who compiled the figures used in the chart. "Mr. Barton's figure of 460 million dollars is a true approximation of what certain classes of expenditures are costing, but these classes do not make up the entire expenditures of the United States' bureau on behalf of world war veterans," he states.

The 117 million dollars in the budget for "military and naval insurance" comes out of the national funds and is over and above the amount contributed by war veterans themselves, THE TRIBUNE man points out. This, he adds, is on the authority of the budget officer of the United States veterans' bureau.

This additional expense by the government is under the old original war risk insurance and is in excess of the payments by the veterans themselves. It is necessitated by the fact that the payments made by the veterans were based upon peace time employments. The risks during the war and the additional benefits paid because of war casualties make necessary an annual expenditure of national funds.

More Remains to Be Paid.

Further emphasizing the point that the hundred million dollars is not money contributed by former soldiers, THE TRIBUNE economist observed that payments of benefits under the old war risk insurance have already exceeded veterans' contributions by a billion dollars, and a billion and a quarter more remains to be paid, although all contributions from veterans ceased long since.

This is not to be confused with the converted insurance carried by most veterans, which is self-supporting, and actually earns a dividend.

THE TRIBUNE'S economist also contends that the amount paid out for the adjusted service certificate fund should be included in the total expenditures for veterans' relief.

The budgetary estimate for the fiscal year of 1932 gave 200 millions as the amount needed for that purpose. The amount represents the additional requirements of the fund and not the expenditures made. The estimated amount actually paid out by the United States government on account of the adjusted service certificates for the year ended June 30 last was $313,525,000.

Cost Is Nearly Double.

These two items coupled with the 460 millions listed by Mr. Barton bring total expenditures for veterans relief to 890 millions, THE TRIBUNE economist points out. Thus, he adds, not including the amounts spent for relief of veterans of wars other than the world war, the total is nearly double the amount Mr. Barton gives.

Transfer of the pension bureau to the veterans' bureau from the department of the interior did increase appropriations for the veterans' bureau. If the relief expenditures arising from other wars are included, the total annual expenditures for veterans of all wars passes the billion dollar mark by 100 million dollars, he says.

PRISONER STAYS IN ALIMONY CLUB AT OWN REQUEST

Judge Joseph Sabath yesterday continued his annual policy of calling members of the alimony club before him before departing on his summer vacation and releasing them from jail providing they promised to try to find work and make up the alimony arrears for which they were committed. Among those who appeared yesterday was Emil Weber, who was sent to jail in May for being $650 behind in his payments.

"That jail's not so bad," Emil told Judge Sabath. "I couldn't find a job if I got out, so I guess I might as well go back there."

Judge Sabath sent him back. He also recommitted Irving Dresser, one of eight members of the club whom he released Thursday. Dresser agreed at that time to allow his wife, Mary, to obtain a divorce on charges of cruelty and desertion. Yesterday he refused to go through with the agreement.

Three prisoners — Walter Swanson, Isadore Lichter, and Henry Larkins — were released when they promised to try to pay up their alimony arrears.

Davenport, Ia., July 15.—[Special.]—Using a fire escape rope for a noose, Gus Abrahamson, for many years a taxi operator in Davenport, ended his life by hanging in a bathroom of a hotel today.

86 YEAR OLD MARINER LOSES AN OAR IN LAKE, BUT HE IS RESCUED

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Racine, Wis., July 15.—[Special.]—An 86 year old mariner who felt the urge of his old life calling him, was washed ashore unconscious tonight after having been alone and helpless on the lake for thirty-four hours.

After being revived, and taken to St. Luke's hospital he said that he was not discouraged in his attempted comeback, and might start out again. He is Gust Lehman, who lives with his son, Max P. Lehman at 2631 South Logan avenue, Milwaukee.

Lehman's comeback attempt was charted out from Milwaukee to Waukegan, a distance of 70 miles. His craft was a homemade rowboat, equipped with the usual two oars.

During the spring Lehman had worked daily on the rowboat, finally putting it into complete shape. Then he provisioned it, and piled in fishing tackle, nets and other piscatorial paraphernalia.

"Watch me, I'll get to Waukegan," he shouted in parting.

Then he bent to the oars. Misfortune befell him five miles out. He lost an oar. It was impossible for him to guide the boat, and consequently impossible for him to make any distance. All through the day he sat in the boat. All through the night he watched.

Last night, shortly after 10 o'clock, several bathers at the Racine beach stumbled over the still figure of the old man. A few feet away was his overturned boat. Both had been washed ashore by the breakers. The coast guard was called. In half an hour the daring mariner was revived, and then removed to the hospital.

AUSTRIA CALLS 'MORATORIUM' ON PRIVATE DEBTS

Will Last Until It Obtains Loan.

BY WILLIAM SHIRER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VIENNA, Austria, July 15.—Austria fell into line with most other central European states tonight by declaring what amounts to a transfer moratorium, though it will not be called that.

Interest and amortization payments in foreign currencies on all private debts and all state debts except the 1922 league of nations loan and the 1930 state loan are suspended, but, as in case of Hungary, the equivalent will be paid in schillings into the National bank, where foreign creditors cannot get it unless they want to spend it in Austria.

Service on the two state loans will be paid in foreign money, these payments having already been deposited abroad.

Chancellor Speeds Law.

Chancellor Dolfuss pushed the "moratorium" law through the main committee of parliament tonight. It goes into effect tomorrow. He intimated that it would only be provisory and until Austria receives the 42 million dollar loan agreed upon at the Lausanne conference.

Since the money will not be forthcoming until September or October, Austria has nothing with which to pay her obligations in the meantime. The chancellor refused to call the law a "moratorium." He styled it "an exports prohibition on foreign currencies for payment of debts."

Austria has been under a partial moratorium since June 23, when the National bank refused to furnish foreign exchange to enable the state municipalities to meet their obligations. The bank did not have it. In the last 12 months its gold and foreign holdings dwindled from 117 million dollars to 21 million dollars.

The chancellor admitted tonight that in order to win a new loan at Lausanne, Austria had to sell its independence for another 20 years. He said the powers insisted on retaining the protocol which was the price of the 1922 loan and which saved Austria from starvation. This is directed against an "anschluss" with Germany and stipulates that Austria must remain an independent state. It also blocks a customs union with Germany.

Arrange Loan for Austria.

GENEVA, July 15.—(AP)—An international loan of 300,000,000 schillings [currently $42,000,000] was arranged for Austria today by the council of the league of nations. France and Britain will subscribe 100,000,000 schillings each. This action was interpreted as a practical manifestation of the new born Franco-British accord.

4 POSTAL STATION BANDITS GET U. S. PRISON TERMS

Three men and one woman pleaded guilty yesterday to the robbery of three subpostal stations and were sentenced by Federal Judge John P. Barnes to Leavenworth penitentiary for terms from 2½ to 15 years. The defendants and their sentences are: Merle F. Groth, 27 years old, leader of the gang, 15 years; William Koppen, 32 years old, 5 years; Arthur Heser, 32 years old, 5 years, and his wife, Florence, 2½ years. A fifth defendant, James Bellino, pleaded not guilty. His trial was set for Sept. 19.

Testimony showed that Mrs. Heser served as chauffeur for the gang. They were convicted of a robbery committed on June 30, when the men entered a drug store and subpostal station at 157 West 103d street and took $228 in money orders and $67 from the postal cash fund. After the robbery they drove to the Heser apartment at 10214 South Park way and split the loot. John V. Clinnin, attorney for the defendants, requested mercy and asked probation for the woman. Judge Barnes refused. He said anyone guilty of robbery with a gun was a potential murderer and deserved no mercy.

Wife Sues Hobart P. Yard for Divorce in Waukegan

Mrs. Bessie I. Yard, 409 Grand avenue, Waukegan, filed a suit for separate maintenance yesterday in the Circuit court there against Hobart P. Yard, head of a news service bureau. She charged desertion, and stated that her husband had assets in excess of $100,000. Circuit Judge Ralph J. Dady issued an injunction restraining Yard from disposing of any of his property.

Cecil Roberts Studies War and Its Result

Writes of Austrian and English Families.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"Spears Against Us," by Cecil Roberts. [Appleton.] Published yesterday.

CECIL ROBERTS has made occasional tours of our country as a lecturer, labeled as "the youngest editor of the oldest newspaper of England." Those tours ceased in 1926 when he was 34 years of age. He is now 40 and has given up his editorial work to devote himself exclusively to fiction — with the exception of an excellent autobiography which he called "Half Way," published last year.

CECIL ROBERTS.

He has ten previous novels to his credit, the most spectacularly received of which was "Scissors," which was published in 1922 and brought him instantaneous fame. Since then his novels have been what I would call on the light side. Especially light was a novel which was published in 1930 called "Pamela's Spring Song," which was the story of a London stenographer's spring holiday in the Tyrol at Schloss Edelstein, the former estate of the line of the Graf von Edelstein, an estate turned into a summer resort for the ubiquitously traveling English. There was no tragedy in it, and much gayety.

Now the author gives to his readers the earlier story of the Edelsteins, the story which preceded "Pamela's Spring Song," and it is a novel as different from its sequel [two years its predecessor] as two works of fiction could well be. Only in the first part of "Spears Against Us" is to be found the gayety, the charm, the allure of the Tyrolean joys which fill "Pamela's Spring Song." In that part the whole family circle of Edelsteins and their closest friends, the Crawleys of England, is pictured, the circle and their interrelationships and mutual joy in friendship and the charms of the Tyrol.

So closely knit by years of friendship and intervisiting, they are all apparently of one ilk, except that the English hero realizes that his friends are "foreign" at the moments when they show their emotions, and the Austrians find themselves trying vainly at times to be as reserved as their English friends. They form a charming group, examples of the types of the old régime, even to the Graf's mistress and illegitimate son and the pompous parade in which the family walks into the dining room.

Into that group comes the news of the assassination of an Austrian archduke which first of all turns them into their own national grooves and finally, when war is declared, separates them.

Mr. Roberts has written in "Spears Against Us" his very best novel, and a novel of the war which has a definite place in the fictional records of the ravages which were wrought by it. The part about the light hearted wave crest riding of the months immediately preceding August, 1914, he has done with great skill. He has managed to share with his readers the irresistible charm of the Tyrol and the allure of the Viennese.

The middle section which deals with the war as it was experienced by the eldest son of the Von Edelsteins and the Crawley son and heir is memorable for its strength of description of scene and psychology alike. Karl von Edelstein had a peculiarly terrific time before his work was over, and Mr. Roberts describes the increasing hopelessness of holding a mountainous fastness against the most skilled engineering of the enemy.

On his side Ian Crawley found life in France at the front no less harrowing and Mr. Roberts sketches without too much detail the picture of harassing days and nights. He calls that section of the book "Dark Journey," and in it all of the friends go their own dark journeys.

In "Aftermath" Mr. Roberts tells the story of post-war Vienna in memorable phrases, the story of hunger and disease bringing low not only the great and the proud but the simple and lowly as well. Without sentimentalizing about a situation where death was to be wooed instead of shunned, Mr. Roberts has stamped in the reader's mind poignant pictures which will remain there. At the very end there is a definite creaking in the joints of the long arm of coincidence, which is worked in this book only in this one case, and the fate of Paula is a little too obviously fictionized, but "Spears Against Us" is until its end so memorable and so vivid that even a rather creaking end can be forgiven the author.

In England "Spears Against Us" had a furor of a reception, becoming a best seller overnight and was chosen by the English Book society for distribution.

Musical Boners Described in Book That Aids Jobless

"Tromboners" [Knopf] is a collection of musical boners that are as irresistibly funny as other boners. Royalties from this book are to be given to the Musicians' Emergency Aid. There are jokes on many of the famous modern and contemporary musicians and composers, as well as the older ones, and there are favorite jokes and anecdotes of many musicians of today. For an example of a tromboner: "Liszt was a great composer. He had three periods: his first, his second, his third. The saying, 'Last but not Liszt,' originated when Liszt failed to turn up at a party." And another: "Richard Wagner was a newspaper man in early life. The Evening Star was founded by him."

British Critics Are Discussed by One of Them

BY FRANK SWINNERTON.

LONDON. — [Special Correspondence.]—André Maurois is now in London collecting material for a book on the subject of "King Edward VII. and His Times." He has been speaking at a literary luncheon and revealing the astonishing fact that while there is probably no continental visitor who has a more exact knowledge of the English temperament (which knowledge he expresses with delicious flattery), M. Maurois still speaks English with a strong accent.

ANDRE MAUROIS.

There are some critics here who think M. Maurois is not a scholar. They say that he added nothing essential to the biography of Disraeli which had been written by Buckle and Monypenny (this is one of the best biographies written in England). But M. Maurois put into a single charming volume the essence of Disraeli, and I think there are few who will not look forward with eagerness to what he will say as to King Edward and his era.

Mrs. A. P. Herbert and Mrs. Strauss, the sister of Robert Nichols, the poet, are holding a joint exhibition in London. Mrs. Herbert contributes drawings and Mrs. Strauss sculptures. Mr. Nichols' play "Wings Over Europe" did not have the success in town that we all hoped for—partly, I am told, owing to faults in production. But it was received with attention by the critics, and with a little better fortune might have done excellently.

Another play produced about the same time has apparently pulled through in spite of adverse circumstances. This is "Dangerous Corner," a play—the first he has written by himself—by J. B. Priestley. This play had an odd and grudging press. It was described as the play of a novelist. If a novelist writes a play it is always described as the sort of play a novelist would write.

But the critics of "Dangerous Corner" forgot that when Mr. Priestley first began to write novels all the reviewers said that they were the novels of an essayist. I do not know what they said when he first wrote essays—probably that they were the essays of a poet. Now that "Faraway," a new very long novel by Mr. Priestley, is ready, I expect to see it described as a dramatist's novel. Versatility has its own penalties.

A new novel competition is announced by the London publisher, Geoffrey Eles. It is for the best novel written by an undergraduate at either Oxford or Cambridge. The number of those who have written their first novels at one of the older universities is considerable. It includes Beverley Nichols, whose "Prelude" was written when the author was in his teens, and Keith Winter, the author of "Other Man's Saucer" and "The Rats of Norway."

Mr. Winter followed the unusual course of sending the first chapters of "Other Man's Saucer" to the publishers and asking if they would advise him to finish such a book.

Loss of Youth Is Theme for Touching Book

"I'll Never Be Young Again," by Daphne du Maurier [Doubleday Doran].

DAPHNE DU MAURIER, the beautiful 25 year old daughter of the actor, Gerald du Maurier, and granddaughter of George du Maurier of "Trilby" and "Peter Ibbetsen" fame, has written another book. Her first novel, "The Loving Spirit," was acclaimed by the critics and this second probably will be favorably received. It is a very sad book, tender, wistful, and disillusioned. The title itself, "I'll Never Be Young Again," reveals the nature of its sadness.

Dick, the son of a world famous poet, overshadowed and made completely miserable by his father's fame, is saved from suicide by Jake, who, in the common interpretation, is a tramp, but actually a highly sensitive and artistic man. The two strike up a friendship and Jake apparently decides Dick is worth training, as a companion worth the effort of his time and care. They take a boat to Norway and for many months wander over the country, in the fjords, through the mountains, and in the cities. Jake slowly teaches Dick to see life, to enjoy people and scenery, to live. The termination of this companionship is written effectively.

Dick goes on to Paris where he tries to gather together the bits of his shattered life. He meets and loves Hesta. He is under the illusion that he can write a book. Hesta turns out to be a very different girl from the lovely creature he seduced and Dick's creative ambitions fall by the wayside. Slowly and tragically he begins to see life's realities, and he is left with nothing at all, even youth having fled.

The study and understanding of adolescence is the best part of the book. There are many passages of beauty in the book, but on the whole the language is undistinguished and too youthful. The author handles her theme somewhat self-consciously, her romanticism oftentimes verges on the sentimental, and her sensuousness becomes lush; nevertheless, as the story progresses, the reader is drawn into the tragedy of Dick and when youth the tragedy of Dick, and when you is gone the reader definitely feels deep pity that could not be felt if the author had not created her character convincingly.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Lon Warneke, the sage of Mt. Ida, Ark., did it again yesterday—beat the Brooklyn Dodgers, 8 to 3, he did, for his sixth in a row and his No. 13 of the year. Prior to yesterday Lon had vanquished every team in the National league except Brooklyn, so now it's unanimous.

It was no fault of Warneke's that the Pittsburgh Pirates nosed out the Boston Braves, 1 to 0, to stay in first place by a margin of two games. And anyhow, the Cubs are willing to permit the Pirates to be front runners by so narrow a margin until the big Chicago-Pittsburgh series which opens next Friday.

Warneke had co-heroes, of course. Heading yesterday's list of co-stars was Capt. Charley Grimm, who in the second inning knocked his No. 5 homer with one on to give the Cubs a 3 to 2 lead, after which the Cubs never were headed. In the fifth Grimm drove in Stephenson and Hornsby and sent Barton to third with a snorting single.

Hornsby Score First Run.

The second day of Manager Hornsby's return to the lineup saw him in a co-hero role. The Cub boss scored the first Cub run in the second inning; drove in the fifth run in the third inning and in the fifth inning he drove in the sixth run, put the seventh on third base and scored the eighth. A pretty fair day for an old feller whose legs ain't so good.

But getting back to Warneke: The young hill billy is beginning to suspect his own power and spotted the visitors a pair of runs in the first inning just to make it interesting for some 30,000 ladies' day customers. The first three batsmen singled and two of them scored. The first man up in the second singled and was sunk in a double play. The first man up in the third singled and he also was sunk in a double play. From then till pinch batter Frederick knocked a homer with two down in the eighth not a hit was allowed nor a pass issued by Lon. In fact, Lon didn't issue a pass all afternoon.

Dodgers Tough at Start.

The Brooklyns were mighty unpleasant in the first inning and their mood, combined with a two base error by Cuyler, netted them two runs. Slade led off with a single to center and raced to third when the ball got through Cuyler. Taylor singled to center, scoring Slade. Stripp beat

O, FOR A RIGHT CROSS AND AN AMATEUR REPUTATION!

Ninety-seven degrees in Chicago! And look what a punch on the chin gets our Golden Gloves boxers! A nice dip in the cool, invigorating waters of Lake Wawasee, plenty of shade, and refreshing breezes. Quick, Henry, my punching bag and, a reputation! The boys who battle Germany's amateur champions on Soldiers' field one week from Tuesday make this plunge part of their daily routine at the Indiana training camp. [TRIBUNE Photos.]

Boston, Mass., July 15.—The White Sox had to hang on grimly again today before accomplishing the purpose of their presence in these parts. It took a home run by dashing Jack Hayes to get them into a tie in the eighth inning and then not until the eleventh did the deeply imbedded Red Sox reveal enough of their own shortcomings to let the Chicagoans score a pair for a 4 to 2 triumph.

The Chicago Sox found scoring difficult because of some sensational pitching by one Larry Boerner, a pickup who had been refused employment by a couple of other clubs. For five innings the slat like young fellow didn't surrender even one hit and meanwhile his pals, principally because of Marvin Olson, had frisked Vic Frasier for a couple of runs.

But the Chicago Sox cooked up a run in the sixth, tied it on the aforementioned homer and then struggled on toward victory with Red Faber

German Boxers Dock Today in New York, Then Off to Chicago

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 15.—Amid showers of pretzels, frankfurters, and kraut, the German amateur boxing team, consisting of eight fighters and two escort officers, or kibitzers, will be received in New York tomorrow on their way to Chicago to meet the Golden Gloves team in one mad, but not necessarily malicious, round of pleasure fights on the night of July 26.

The annual international team fights in Chicago have become the amateur fist fighters' world series, and the Germans were selected this year because they were plainly the most interesting and formidable squad in Europe. Germany was a backward state in the pugilistic sense, with no fist fighting experience until along toward 1920, and the presence of this team in the world series round at this time indicates how well the American missionaries to the Rhine taught the American bust on the nose to their pupils.

Max Schmeling also did some pointing and indicating before this.

All Time Record Likely.

The French were the guest artists last year, winning some fights but losing the meet, and there was something on the order of an international incident when they returned home and reported that nothing had occurred during their trip to endanger international relations. This lack of acrimony established a new record in international sport, and if, as the hope now is, the Germans also return home with nothing unpleasant to report, it is probable that an all time international record will be set.

The German athletes, some of whom are connected with the Olympic team, will arrive with the Olympic representation on board the Europa, but will be separated from the main troupe at the pier and escorted to Chicago as a distinct group. They will continue their training in Chicago, and it has been agreed that those who do not wish to drink the American beer, which Americans drink, may use it for rub stuff.

Have Selves to Blame.

Their own health officer recently warned them that American beer might not be quite the same as their native beer and might cause illness, if not death, if they were to take it internally. However, it is also specified that if they do use the fine old 48 hour American Pilsner for rub stuff they have only themselves to blame for any burns, blisters or warts which may arise.

Owing to an unfortunate oversight, the line of march from the Europa's pier in Brooklyn to the hotel in Manhattan will not take the young fighters past the headquarters of the New York prize fight commission, which conducted the recent dethronement of Max Schmeling in the Madison Square Garden depression, or bowl, on Long Island. However, for the accommodation of the guests arrangements have been made to take down on paper any insults which they may wish to extend to the commission and wrap them around a rock and throw them through the window.

Leave New York Sunday.

The German-American Athletic association will entertain the boxers at the New York Athletic club tomorrow evening and the boys will leave New York on Sunday afternoon to resume their training in Chicago. Frederick Burger, president of the German Amateur Boxing association, will be in charge of the party and Dr. Paul Schwartz, the German consul in New York, will meet the Europa down the bay and escort the squad ashore.

For practical reasons it has been decided not to attempt to unload the German team from the ship on to a launch down the bay and put them ashore at the battery. This was done with the French young men last year, but there was a heat mist over the water which tied up the harbor for hours and the welcoming committee on board the launch ran out of radio speeches long before the fog lifted.

JANE WEILLER IS GOLF VICTOR, 5-4, OVER JUNE BEEBE

Milwaukee, Wis., July 15.—(AP)—Miss Jane Weiller of Chicago, a slender girl just out of her teens, won the women's western golf championship this afternoon.

She triumphed, 5 and 4, over another youngster, Miss June Beebe, 19 years old, last year's champion, and also a Chicagoan. It was the third time the young women had met in important matches and today Miss Weiller scored her second victory.

The fairways were blistering hot throughout the championship match, although several of the final holes were played in rain.

Miss Weiller, a careful and calculating golfer, won the championship with her irons and putter. Both drove accurately and for long distances, but superiority in approaching the greens and on them soon gave her a commanding lead. An unfortunate stymie, which cost Miss Beebe one stroke, and one adventure into the rough contributed to the defending champion's downfall in the afternoon.

The first 18 holes played this morning ended with Miss Weiller 1 up, but each contestant had a card of 84. In the afternoon Miss Weiller was quick to follow up her advantage, taking the first two holes and setting a pace which Miss Beebe could not equal.

Three Eye League Votes to Disband for Rest of Season

Decatur, Ill., July 15.—(AP)—The Three Eye league disbanded for the season immediately after tonight's games. Only four clubs remained in the league and President L. J. Wylie declared that "it seemed sound business judgment not to try to continue."

Only six clubs started the 1932 season, due to the withdrawal last winter of Evansville and Bloomington. Tuesday the Decatur club withdrew and the following day Danville was left without baseball when the St. Louis Cardinals transferred their franchise to Springfield.

The four remaining clubs decided to continue and started play last night, but after a conference in Terre Haute today Wylie announced the league would disband for the remainder of the season.

3 WORLD RECORD PERFORMANCES IN OLYMPIC TRYOUTS

Tolan Equals Own Mark to Outrace Wykoff.

Palo Alto, Cal., July 15.—(AP)—Three world record performances contributed to a sensational beginning of the final American Olympic track and field tryouts today as upsets eliminated some of the nation's outstanding stars.

Two stalwart easterners, Leo Sexton and John Anderson, both of the New York A. C., surpassed world marks in the shotput and discus throw, respectively, after Eddie Tolan, Detroit Negro sprinter, equaled his own world record of 10.4 seconds, against the wind, in the 100 meter trials.

Sexton topped the shotputters with a mighty heave of 52 feet 8 inches as his most feared rival, Herman Brix of the Los Angeles A. C., barely gained the fifth qualifying place by the thin margin of three-eighth of an inch with a put of only 49 feet 2 inches. Sexton's toss was a half inch beyond the official world record.

Tolan Bucks Wind.

Anderson hurled the discus 165.54 feet to surpass the listed world record of 163 feet 8¾ inches, made in 1929 by Eric Krenz. Since then, however, Paul Jessup's new American record of 169 feet 8⅞ inches has been put up for world record approval. Jessup was second today at 156.37 feet.

Tolan's startling dash against a head wind enabled him to whip Frank Wykoff of Southern California, after Emmett Toppino, New Orleans flyer, had beaten George Simpson of Columbus, O., and Ralph Metcalfe, Marquette Negro, in 10.9 seconds in the first trial. These five, with James Johnson, Negro speedster from Illinois State Normal, completed the sextet of qualifiers for tomorrow's 100 meter final.

In their first tests since the famous intecollegiate 440 yard record race two weeks ago, Bill Carr of Pennsylvania outshone Ben Eastman in the 400 meter trials. Carr equaled the Olympic record of 47.6 seconds to win his heat, after which Eastman had a struggle to capture the second trial in 48.8 seconds.

Saling Equals Record.

Another Olympic mark was equaled when George Saling of Iowa won his heat of the 110 meter hurdles in 14.6 seconds against the wind.

Morriss, the southern hurdling sensation, continued his sparkling work by beating Saling in the first 110 meter semi-final in 14.7 seconds. Jack Keller then trimmed Percy Beard in the second semi-final in 14.6 seconds, equaling the Olympic record.

Harvard's crack hurdler, Red Record, was shut out in both the 400 meter and 110 meter hurdles. He barely missed qualifying in the longer race—which was featured by the winning comeback of Morgan Taylor of the Illinois A. C.—and then was badly whipped in the first heat of the high hurdles.

The field events developed the most surprising reversals of form. The west coast favorites were especially hard hit as James de Mars of Los Angeles, and Ken Churchill of San Francisco, American and intercollegiate record holders, respectively, failed to qualify in the javelin. Dick Barber of Southern California, the intercollegiate broad jump titleholder, and Bob Jones of Stanford, discus star, also failed to qualify. Barber was no better than seventh in the broad jump and Jones sixth, just outside the charmed circle, in the discus.

Upsets in Field Events.

To offset some of their adversities, the California contingent furnished a surprise leader in the javelin trials in Friedman of the Olympic club, who got off a throw of 212.05 feet.

All the outstanding favorites, including Eddie Genung, Charles Hornbostel, Gene Venzke, Glen Cunningham, and Leo Lermond, qualified in the 800 and 1,500 meter races.

Fillies Don't Win Derbies? We Will See

BY HARVEY WOODRUFF.

To veteran turf followers the thrill of this fourth Classic stakes at Arlington Park this afternoon will be Top Flight, champion 2 year old of both sexes in 1931 and champion 3 year old filly of 1932. It is not whether Top Flight will beat Faireno and any of the eleven others carded to start against her, but whether Top Flight will beat every one of those twelve and thus become in the opinion of many the greatest racing mare of the American turf.

Those who take their racing as a holiday diversion two or three times a year may wonder just why these conditions produce such a thrill. Perhaps they will question thusly: "If this filly beat all others of her sex as a 2 year old, why should she not do the same again as a 3 year old?" There is more force to such query when it is remembered that Tick On, Burgoo King, Burning Blaze, and many of the most promising candidates for this year's honor have fallen by the wayside in training or racing.

It all reverts back to the hidebound turf tradition, occasionally violated, that "Fillies don't win Derbies." In name the Classic is not a Derby. In conditions and distance it is a Derby in the American sense where most of the standard races for this class are run at one and one-fourth miles, the Classic distance.

If Top Flight does this then her name will stand in turf history, despite the suspicion that the opposing field is not all in class that one might wish. Except for this filly there are not the magic names to conjure with that have appeared in previous Classics. Yet they are the very best now in training.

Moreover, class, used in the turf sense, is an ephemeral thing. Perhaps Faireno, or Gusto, or any of the others will race on to great heights, heights greater than those attained by Blue Larkspur, Gallant Fox, and Mate, previous Classic winners.

If Top Flight fails to accomplish her mission she will still be the champion of her sex, also the greatest money winner of her sex. True, she will lose some prestige, and it will be another "I told you so" from those who stick to that "Fillies don't win Derbies."

But, O, if Top Flight wins! Immediately we will compare her to preceding winners, to Blue Larkspur, which established his 3 year old championship here after being out of the money to Clyde Van Dusen in the Kentucky Derby of 1929.

Then there was that thrilling finish of 1930 in which Gallant Fox, 3 year old champion of that year, raced neck and neck nearly the length of the stretch with Gallant Knight.

And last year Twenty Grand, Kentucky Derby winner in which Mate was third, ran third to Mate in the Classic here in their series of duels.

Those are the moderns with which Top Flight will be compared if she wins. Then chroniclers will go back through turf annals to compare her with all previous great mares on the American turf—Miss Modesty, Imp, Regret, and scores of others.

It's a thrill for turfmen and we hope that thrill will permeate the great crowd expected at Arlington Park this afternoon.

And, if Top Flight should win, how students of breeding will look forward to that first little foal of the greatest racing mare of American turf history. That Top Flight is owned by a Whitney of the third generation, a family always respected for its sportsmanship, only adds to the sentiment.

$90,000 PURSE AND TITLE DRAW 11 OTHER STARS

Best 3 Year Olds Are Named to Start.

BY FRENCH LANE.

Thirteen—a lucky number for some man's race horse, unlucky for a dozen others—were named overnight to fight for the 3 year old championship of the American turf in the Arlington Park Jockey club's renewal of the Classic this afternoon.

The entry list included every outstanding colt and filly in training. When these fleet 3 year olds come together they will be struggling not only for the title, but also for the greater portion of a $90,150 pot of gold. So that is the reason the Classic has came to be known as the richest race of its kind in the world.

Will the winner be Top Flight, the champion racing mare of the world, or Faireno, the Belmont, Dwyer, and Shevlin stakes victor? Such a problem puzzled the thousands of Classic visitors last night. And so divided were the sharpshooters, the guessers, and the shrewd handicappers that each was held at 5 to 2 in the betting.

Gusto Musters Support.

It is not a match race between these two by any means. Gusto, the American Derby winner, had his backers; so did Stepenfetchit, which won the Latonia Derby, and so did all the others even though long odds were quoted against them. Among the outsiders, Springsteel, owned by S. W. Labrot of Maryland, was the most highly regarded, and there was a ripple of support for Rehoboth.

There might have been more Rehoboth backers if Jockey Earl Sande could have canceled riding engagements at Empire City and come here to ride him. But Sande was not able to do it and Don Meade, one of the most brilliant of the younger jockeys at Arlington, will attempt to boot Rehoboth home.

There was every promise that the Classic, which will attract a crowd of 30,000 or upward, will be decided under ideal weather and track conditions. The race most likely will be run in sensational time, although it seems unlikely that Sun Beau's track record of 2:01 4-5 will be bettered.

Can Top Flight Do It?

Yet Top Flight has smashed nearly every record she has gone after, and, if she is as good as most people suspect her to be, she is capable of running the mile and a quarter under 118 pounds as fast as any horse has ever run the distance.

Then, too, it is more than likely the Classic will be a test of speed right from the beginning. Faireno is a notorious front runner, for he has made the pace in all the important victories he has scored this year. It has been Top Flight's early speed that has carried her to many great triumphs. And Jockey Bill Elliot, Phar Lap's old rider, who will be in the saddle on Willis Sharpe Kilmer's Sunmelus, most likely will be ordered to take the track at the lift of the barrier and hold the lead as long as possible.

Pick Faireno to Set Pace.

Sazerac and Osculator are others with a tremendous burst of early foot. So the fight down past the stands to the Post and Paddock club turn for the position next to the rail should be one of the most thrilling stages of the race. However, most New Yorkers were of the opinion that Faireno will beat his rivals away from the gate and will be leading as the field rounds the first turn.

What will happen after the first half mile is run few folks in the big crowd at Arlington yesterday were willing to predict. They know Top Flight will be fighting for the lead and they suspect that it will be a desperate fight all the way down the back stretch.

Chance for Long Shot.

If Faireno or Top Flight can take a good sized lead rounding into the home stretch either will have a marvelous chance to romp on to victory, according to the diagnosis of most of the shrewd horsemen at Arlington. If neither has a commanding lead at that stage then any long shot in the race is likely to come along and capture the prize.

The Classic, since it was added to the Arlington program in 1929, always has attracted the best 3 year olds of the year. Edward R. Bradley's Blue Larkspur won it that year and in 1930 along came the champion Gallant Fox to beat Gallant Knight in a desperate nose and nose finish. Last year Mate conquered Twenty Grand.

So while the Kentucky Derby, Preakness and Belmont stakes early in the season always attract enormous interest as the 3 year olds begin their

AHOY! YACHTS CHASE SIREN TO MACKINAC TODAY

Elizabeth Will Get Plenty of Competition, Too.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

The world's longest fresh water sailing race, the Chicago Yacht club's 26th annual cruise to Mackinac island, 331 nautical miles, will get under way this afternoon, when boats from every point on Lake Michigan will turn their prows toward the picturesque body of land which thrusts itself forth at the head of the lake. All of the local yachts primed themselves yesterday at Belmont harbor, the starting point at 4 o'clock today.

Among those entered were the Kras brothers' Q boat Siren, three times winner of the racing division prize, which led the field home in its department through the fickle weather of last July, and Lynn Williams' schooner Elizabeth, victor in the cruising division.

Hope Is Threat.

Siren will have less opposition in her division than Elizabeth, the most notable contender being the Robinson brothers' Hope, which recently, with a crew of supposedly tyros in the business of sailing big boats, fooled the experts, not to mention the sailors aboard Siren, by winning the Virginia trophy. Others in the racing division include Princess, from Jackson Park, owned and sailed by the Jedzykowski-Kallgren syndicate, and the Newman-Allenback yawl Illinois, from the St. Joseph River (Mich.) Yacht club.

Competition Keen.

Elizabeth is expected to encounter a real fight in meeting up with such craft as Bob Benedict's Bagheera, from Jackson Park; Col. Albert E. Peirce's Quicksilver II., which missed out in the 1930 race by a matter of seconds on time allowance; Bimesa II., Milton Knight's entry from Toledo, a contender last year until its rigging was disabled in the second day's storm, and Sterling Morton's hug Freedom, heroine of a stormy cruise through Caribbean waters last winter.

Not to be omitted are such veterans of the Mackinac cruise as Scott Wright's Privateer, Otto Schoenwerk's Katinka, D. H. Ross' Bangalore, Carl Norberg's Victory, and Dr. R. S. Cobb's Nina.

Yellow Cloak of Goldfinch Fools Bird Fan

BY BOB BECKER.

During the last few weeks readers of THE TRIBUNE'S Vox Pop column have been concerned about the American bird commonly called the wild canary. One correspondent reported on the number of wild canaries near her home and another offered advice on the question of turning out a caged singing canary, a true canary, with these so-called wild canaries.

All through the central states and possibly through the east, too, the American goldfinch, Astragalinus tristis tristis, and sometimes the yellow warbler, are commonly called wild canaries, which, of course, they are not. This gay colored little bird, now quite common in Chicagoland,, has a bright canary yellow body, with the crown, wings, and tail black. He's a handsome bird, and, bearing some of the canary colors, it is not surprising that he has acquired such a common name. However, this goldfinch doesn't belong with the group of birds which are imported, caged, and kept in a semi-domesticated state as singing canaries.

They're More Plentiful.

According to our bird note book we have seen more of these handsome little goldfinches this spring and summer than in any recent year. We have seen them in numbers about forty miles west of the loop. On the Fox river canoe cruise many more were recorded. Yesterday we spotted four on a golf course northwest of town and there are many around our home on the north shore.

There are two reasons why this so-called wild canary is easily noticed in the open. First its colors catch the eye immediately and secondly the flight of the gold finch looks so much like an imitation of the roller coaster that even the novice at bird study has his attention taken by one or more of the birds in flight. This flight is characteristic of their joyous nature.

Bounds Through Air.

The goldfinch literally bounds through the air, going up and then sailing down in a series of dips and ascents. While cutting these figures in the air, he hums "per-chic-o-ree, per-chic-o-ree."

The goldfinch is a seed eater. Therefore if you have any sunflowers in your garden this summer be sure to leave the big heads of seeds on the plants because these "wild canaries" are very fond of sunflower seeds. This lunch counter is quite likely to attract some of the birds to your garden this fall.

Weather Reports from W-G-N to Aid Mackinac Racers

W-G-N will broadcast the official weather reports at intervals for the benefit of the sailors in this long fresh water race. Special reports will be prepared by the weather bureau giving the sailors forecasts for the areas which they will pass through as the race progresses. Historical facts concerning the race also will be given on the broadcasts.

The first of the weather broadcasts will be presented at 9:30 o'clock tonight. Tomorrow the reports will be broadcast at 12:30 a. m., 9 a. m., 3 p. m., and 9:30 p. m. On Monday the reports will go on at 7:30 a. m. and 1:45 p. m.

Nine Qualify in 2 Olympic Swim Trials

Cincinnati, O., July 15.—(AP)—Nine men qualified for the United States Olympic swimming team in the blistering heat of Coney Island pool here today, but only one of them ever swam for Uncle Sam before.

That's one reason why three Japanese sat in silent satisfaction at the 200 meter breast stroke and 200 meter free style trials today. Quietly busy with binoculars and notebooks, they missed no detail as America's finest glided through the tepid water.

The only familiar face they saw was that of Thomas Blankenburg of Los Angeles, a member of the Yankee Olympic outfit in 1928. Blankenburg trailed the ex-Yale and ex-Princeton collegian, Ted Moles of New York, by an eyelash in the 200 meter breast stroke. Basil H. Francis, 17 year old sensation from Boston, qualified by finishing third. Moles was national collegiate champion in this event in 1929 and 1930.

But the Japanese needed somebody to tell them more about George Fissler of New York, who was clocked in 2:18 1-5 in leading home the six qualifiers in the 200 meter free style.

UPSET IN GIRLS' DIVING

Jones Beach, N. Y., July 15.—[Special.]—A 15 year old girl from Miami Beach, Fla., stole the show at the Olympic swimming and diving trials today as 64 of the foremost women swimmers from the country over contested for positions on the American team.

Of greater moment than the establishing of a new American record by Miss Margaret Hoffman of Kingston, Pa., in winning the 200 meter breast stroke swim in 3:12 3-5, and the foregone victory of the invincible Miss Helene Madison of Seattle, Wash., in the 100 meter, free style, was the surprising relegation of Miss Georgia Coleman of Los Angeles to second place in the ten foot springboard dive.

Supreme for four years on the ten foot board, since she placed second to Helen Meany [now Mrs. Baltz] in the 1928 Olympics at Amsterdam, Miss Coleman was forced to yield first honors this afternoon to the diminutive Miss Katerine Rawls of Miami Beach. By less than a point the judges awarded first place to the blue eyed, gold haired Florida youngster, Miss Rawls scoring 78.64 to Miss Coleman's 77.75.

Helene Beats Miss McKim.

Miss Madison, holder of 16 world's records at free style and the outstanding performer in the trials, won the 100 meter free style in 1:09 1-5, four-fifths of a second slower than her world's record for the long course in the 50 meter pool. She finished more than a yard ahead of Miss Josephine McKim of Hollywood, Cal., who was followed by Miss Eleanor Garratti Saville of San Francisco.

Miss Hoffman, a senior at Mount Holyoke college, who set a world record for the 200 yard breast stroke at 2:55 4-5 last Saturday and the only American to qualify for the women's breast stroke finals at the 1928 Olympics, beat the American record for the 200 meter breast stroke by a full second in winning the final of this event.

Classic Today! Pick Faireno or Top Flight

drive for the title it has been the Classic that has brought out the real champion later on in the season.

Burgoo King Forgotten.

The Classic today will be no exception. Only a race of such value could attract such horses as Top Flight, Faireno, Gusto, Stepenfetchit and the lesser lights into such a struggle at this stage of the turf season.

Burgoo King, the Kentucky Derby and Preakness winner, is a crippled horse down on Col. Bradley's farm. If some magic healer could have brought him into the Classic there might have been a bit more interest. But turf fans, like the followers of any other game, are a fickle lot. They've almost forgotten Burgoo King. They'll go to Arlington today to cheer as a new champion is crowned.

COUCCI BEATS MILLS

Chicago racegoers watched one of the Coucci-Mills jockey battles when the Lake Shore claiming sweepstakes, carrying an added purse of $2,500, was run at Arlington park yesterday.

In a ding-dong battle down the stretch Coucci was the winner by a neck on Swift and True over Prose and Poetry, which had Mills in the saddle. Few more energetic stretch battles have been fought at Arlington this season. Annimesic wound up in third place.

Swift and True, which races for Max Hirsch of New York, ran the mile and a quarter of the Lake Shore in 2:03 2-5, which is pretty good indication that the Classic will be run in dazzling time this afternoon.

Edelweiss, a daughter of Chicle, which races for the Wheatley stable of New York, won the Anita purse at Arlington yesterday from a band of eligibles for the rich Lassie stakes to be run at Arlington next Wednesday. She had to be a fast and game filly to beat Swivel by a head. Volette, the favorite, was another head back in third place.

Among the Kentucky breeders here for the running of the Classic are Miss Elizabeth Daingerfield, Thomas Piatt, and Tom B. Young. Ralph L. Jurden, who maintains a breeding farm in Kansas, also arrived to witness the big race.

Pruett Loses Duel; Only 3 Hits for Boston.

Pittsburgh, Pa., July 15.—(AP)—A brilliant bit of pitching by the veteran Remy Kremer allowed the Pittsburgh Pirates to even their series with the Boston Braves today, 1 to 0.

The Frenchman, displaying his best form of the season, let Boston down with three hits. Hub Pruett hurled masterful ball for the Braves, holding the Pirates to five hits. Both pitchers were given errorless support.

Pittsburgh scored the game's only run in the fourth inning. Vaughan singled behind short and traveled all the way home on Barbee's double to the scoreboard. Boston missed two chances to score.

PHILS BEAT REDS IN 12TH, 4-3.

Cincinnati, O., July 15.—(AP)—Outhit and outpitched, the Phillies nevertheless made smart fielding count for all it was worth to defeat the Cincinnati Reds today, 4 to 3, in 12 innings. In the first inning a double play nipped off a pending run. In the sixth the fielding intimidated Grantham so that he threw away a chance to score and stopped at third. Despite Herman's homer in the third and a bunch of doubles, the Reds had 15 left on the bases.

GIANTS WHIP CARDS, 12-4.

St. Louis, Mo., July 15.—(AP)—Three big innings, two of which were climaxed by home runs with men on the bases, gave the New York Giants their second straight over the Cardinals today, 12 to 4.

The Giants got to Bill Hallahan early, scoring five runs in the second inning. Freddie Lindstrom disposed of the southpaw for good when he hit one out of the lot with the bases full in the fifth. Mel Ott provided three more runs in the sixth with a homer off Stout.

Jim Bottomley hit two homers and Jim Collins another to account for three of the losers' runs of Fitzsimmons.

GERMANY BEATS ITALIANS IN TWO SINGLES MATCHES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, Italy, July 15.—Germany took the lead against Italy in the final series for the European zone Davis cup championship by winning the first two singles matches today. The winner of the match will meet the United States squad for the right to play France for the championship.

Gottfried von Cramm scored Germany's first victory when he defeated Giovanni Palmieri, 6-3, 6-4, 6-0. Daniel Prenn hung up the second victory by triumphing over George de Stefani. The scores were 6-1, 6-4, 1-6, 6-2.

Victory in the doubles contest, which will be played tomorrow, will give Germany the right to meet the United States. The final two singles matches will be played Sunday.

DEMAREE, .398 HITTER ON COAST, SOLD TO CUBS

Stockton, Cal., July 15.—(AP)—Lewis Moreing, owner of the Sacramento Senators, announced today that Frank Demaree, star outfielder, had been sold to the Chicago Cubs for immediate delivery. The deal is a cash transaction, with no other players involved, but the Cubs have until October to definitely accept Demaree.

Moreing declined to reveal the purchase price, but said Demaree brought less than Stanley Hack, whom Sacramento sold to the Cubs last year, or Tony Freitas, who was sold to the Athletics several weeks ago.

Tigers Defeat Macks, 11-10, in 11 Innings

Philadelphia, Pa., July 15.—(AP)—The Detroit Tigers won an 11 inning contest from the Athletics, 11 to 10, today to even the series here at one game apiece. Tying the score at 10 to 10 with two runs in the eighth, Detroit brought in the winning run in the eleventh.

Simmons and Stone led the onslaught that found five pitchers working for the Tigers and two for the Mackmen. Simmons hit three home runs and a double, driving in six runs and running his total of homers for the season to 24. Stone hit two for the circuit on his first two times at bat, each time with a man on base. Score:

YANKEES, 8; INDIANS, 5.

New York, July 15.—(AP)—Blasting Wes Ferrell from the mound in the fourth inning, when they scored five runs, the Yankees went on to interrupt Cleveland's winning streak, 8 to 5, in the second game of the series today.

Where Ferrell, seeking his 17th victory, was unable to cope with the leaders' big guns, Lefty Gomez returned to form and, although touched for nine hits, had little trouble chalking up his 15th win.

Chalmers Cissell collected three of the Indians' nine hits off Gomez, while Earl Averill hit his 21st home run of the year in the eighth inning.

SENATORS DEFEAT BROWNS, 8-7.

Washington, D. C., July 15.—(AP)—Completely dispelling the jinx the Browns have held over them, the Washington Senators today defeated St. Louis for the second time in the current series, 8 to 7, and boosted their winning streak to seven games. Washington successfully beat off a five run rally by the Browns in the eighth, and then Cronin's double, scoring Rice from first with two out, won the game for the Senators. West got four hits, including three doubles, in four times at bat.

Long Beach, N. Y., July 15.—(AP)—Leading the field by two strokes, Walter Kozak and Johnny Golden today tied for the lead in the metropolitan open golf championship as the field was reduced to 53 for the final 36 holes tomorrow.

Kozak, who yesterday shot into a four way tie for the lead with a 70 on the first round, and Golden, who trailed the early leaders by two strokes, ended the second round of play with a 36 hole total of 141, Golden shot 69, three under par. Kozak had 71.

Macdonald Smith, defending champion, retained only an outside chance to repeat when he shot a 76 for a total of 148. Leo Diegel remained in the hunt, however, five strokes back of the leaders with 146, 62 today and 74 yesterday.

DICK TRACY—Hurry, Man, Hurry!

It Takes 11 Innings Again but Sox Win

and Ted Lyons blocking the path to more Boston scores. Faber, who profited by getting the decision, gave up only one hit in his four inning stretch.

Here's How, Mates.

With the opening of the eleventh inning Appling singled to left. Jolley was so surprised that he gave the ball a boot, thus enabling Appling to reach second. He went to third on a bad throw by Connolly, who tried to catch him off second. Boerner promptly revealed a full head of steam. He fanned Grube and Selph, who swung for Faber.

Just when it looked as if nothing favorable would happen, the foxy Mr. Funk punched a safe bunt past the pitcher and Appling scored. Then to make it easier for Lyons' finishing effort and incidentally to add to his own laurels, Hayes slashed a triple over Johnson's head to score Funk. A walk to Seeds came next and with it Boerner's passing. Durham came in to stop the gayety. Then Lyons set down Jolley, Alexander and McManus without letting them drive the ball past the infield.

Olson began a busy afternoon for himself by exploding a single with one out in the first inning but it caused Frasier no inconvenience. The small sized Olson hit one again in the third and this time Frasier wasn't so lucky. Olson's tap sailed against the left field fence, giving Fothergill a chance to run up the little hill out there, and then roll down like an empty barrel. Meanwhile the ball bounced away and Funk recovered in time to hold the runner to a triple. Fothergill did another barrel roll on Oliver's double to the fence and Olson scored. Jolley rolled gently to Blue to close the incident.

Mrs. Olson's Son Misbehaves.

The fourth hit off Frasier was Connolly's drooping single to right to open the fifth. He went to second on Boerner's bunt. Hayes skidded over close to second and made a great stop that robbed Johnson of a hit. Then Olson slammed another against the left field fence, forcing Fothergill to indulge in another mirth provoking roll down the grass enbankment. Olson got two bases on the smash and Connolly scored to make the count 2 to 0. Oliver was tossed out by Appling to end this unpleasantness.

Five innings of hitless pitching by Boerner crashed with one out in the sixth when Seeds lined a two bagger over short. About a half minute later he scored on Fothergill's double to the left center field fence. The next two fellows did nothing. The next outbreak on the part of the visitors was Hayes' homer which drifted over the high fence in left.

Funk Wasn't Looking.

The Chicago Sox put on one of their daily specialties in the ninth. The act consisted of getting four men to base without scoring. A pass to Appling opened the novel exhibition. He died stealing on an intended hit and run. This discouraged Grube into striking out. Faber walked and Funk beat out a bunt. Then Hayes singled to left and because Jolley throws well and Faber runs slowly, the latter was stopped at third.

Funk didn't notice this. He tore blindly around second and when he saw his mistake, tried to get back. But McManus intercepted Jolley's throw and Funk was nipped. What Funk did in the eleventh atoned for that offence.

JUST FOR SPORT.

GEORGE HABERSKI, C. Y. O. bantamweight champion who met unexpected defeat in the north side preliminaries of the Golden Gloves qualifying bouts last winter, is one Chicagoland candidate for a place on the squad to meet the Germans at Soldiers' field July 26 who does not intend to turn professional, no matter what the result.

Haberski thus is a fair example of a boy who is an amateur boxer purely for love of the sport. This 18 year old youngster has completed two years of high school at Waukegan, where his parents live. He intends to return to his classrooms this fall. During the summer, however, he is spending much time in Chicago, boxing at amateur shows as often as opportunity offers, in order to gain experience.

George takes a carefree, optimistic attitude toward the game. When we asked whether his defeat last winter discouraged him, he replied:

"Not at all. Of course I was disappointed, but it's just one of those things that happen to you in boxing. Guess I didn't know enough. That's one reason I'm in Chicago so much this summer—to get experience."

"No," he replied. "I want to finish high school, then get a job or enter some trade. I love boxing better than any sport, but I don't think I'd ever like to become a professional fighter. I don't mean I'm prejudiced against it or think the amateurs are better fellows than the pros, but it just don't appeal to me as a profession."

"Interested in any other sports?"

"Well, I played center on our sophomore intramural high school basketball team. I like skating, too, and skated a great deal all winter. It's great for your legs."

"Don't you play football?"

"No, I don't like it. First, I'm too light ever to make the high school team, but, anyway, it's too rough a sport."

How's that, Wakers? A chap who is willing to give or take a poke on the chin for a knockout thinks football is too rough to be good sport. Collegians who regard pugilism as brutal, if any such still exist, may take Haberski's view for a reciprocal opinion.

Travel.

My steamer's only been a book, but I have traveled far
Across the sandswept Persian gulf and on to ancient Lar,
The waterfront of Singapore, and India's coral strand,
And blazed with stealthy savages a steaming jungle trail;
I've trekked across the open veldt, and floated down the Nile,

Berlin Writer Praises Spirit of Chicagoans

BY HEINZ REICHMANN.

[Berlin Sports Writer in United States to Cover International Golden Gloves Bouts.]

Lake Wawasee, Ind., July 15.—[Special.]—What team spirit exists among the Golden Glove boxers! One would think intense rivalry only would exist between two boys in the same weight class who know that only one will be named to fight against Germany a week from next Tuesday at Soldiers' field. But, no, they are the best of friends. That is, when they are not in the ring.

Their sole idea is "Let us lick the Germans. Let the best men form the team." I like the Chicago spirit very much. Here you still find the spirit that professional boxing once had.

Of course, during the training in the ring the competitors in each weight give their best efforts. They fight with every punch for their position on the team. Today you should have seen the battle between the two middleweights, Charley Neigo and Bill Connell. Neigo shot a clean right to Connell's face as Bill was retreating and Connell sat down suddenly.

German Is Tough, Too.

Bill came up grinning. They tell me that a week ago Connell knocked Neigo down twice during a bout in Chicago. Well, this afternoon Neigo got a lot of satisfaction from his one way blow.

Adam Smith and Duffy Dvonch, the two heavyweight competitors, gave the big crowd which gathered in the arena today another thrill. I wonder who will stand the rain of punches longer, the American boy or Heinrich Kohlhaas, whom his countrymen call the "Knockout Hunter." Out of 60 fights he has won 35 by knockouts. Kohlhaas, the baby face, certainly has the deadly punch.

Phagan Is Picture.

To watch John Phagan is for me a great pleasure. Just to see his well proportioned body, packed with muscles, dancing around the ring, as he shifts in and out, is worth a trip to Lake Wawasee. He attacks his opponents, swinging his fists like Indian clubs, with a speed which seldom fails his intended mark.

But I am still certain that the champions of my fatherland, after their week's training in Chicago, will win the international bouts at Soldiers' field.

GLOVERS PLAY BALL

BY WILFRID SMITH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Lake Wawasee, Ind., July 15.—Behind the steady pitching of Lennie Cohen, spectacular fielding, and long distance hitting of all the lineup, the Jab 'Em baseball team defeated the Sock 'Ems this morning, 6 to 5, in the first of a three game series between two teams of Chicago Golden Gloves boxers for the Wawasee training camp championship and the brass belt, emblematic of indoor baseball's highest honor.

The second and last game of the series in all probability will be played when and if the Sock 'Ems recover from their humiliation today, which saw them go down in inglorious defeat, tricked into becoming victims of double plays and unable to win despite the obvious favoritism of Jabber Young, said to be an umpire.

There's No Foul Rule.

The score certainly should have been 6 to 2 except that Umpire Young, with apparent maliciousness, deliberately called a foul ball fair which permitted the losers to rally for three runs in the seventh and last inning.

Herr Reichmann, who is positive that the German champions will lick the Chicagoland Golden Glovers at Soldiers' field, July 26, is a tonic for our boys. Not that they need a tonic. All have been exceedingly polite to the Berlin writer. But at least one young man, informed that he couldn't box, replied in the vernacular, "Is that so!" Which was that.

The Syracuse lumber yard was given a second order yesterday. The result is that today the bag punchers also had wooden platforms and no longer will they shuffle over the concrete floor of the garage. If the boys think of anything else they can have it in return for an international team title.

They're a great bunch. No one has broken a training order; all are working with a will, and Herr Reichmann has plenty to tell Germans.

Dodgers to Pitch Clark; Malone for Cubs Today

Lefty Clark is going to have his fling at the Cubs in the final with Brooklyn this afternoon. Pat Malone will be after No. 9.

Manager Hornsby said he would stay in the opening lineup as long as his bat keeps functioning. "Hack can field 'em faster than I can, but if I can do a little hittin' I think it will count more right now. Even if it is pretty tough on the old puppies," quoth Rogers.

One of the big crowds of the year is expected for tomorrow when the Cubs play a double header with the lowly but always respected New York Giants.

Paul Rousseau, French Boxing Head, Visits City

Paul Rousseau, president of the French Boxing federation, will leave Chicago tonight for Los Angeles, where he will attend the Olympic games. M. Rousseau has been in Chicago for several days conferring with boxing officials.

PAUL ROUSSEAU.

M. Rousseau believes the French have an excellent chance of winning the international boxing championship, as France's team this year appears to be its best amateur team in years. He considers the French Olympic boxers superior to those who fought in the first International Golden Gloves bouts at Soldiers' field last summer. Several members of the Olympic squad eliminated members of the Golden Gloves team of last year to gain their places on this

NEW REGULATION STRIKES BLOW AT BILLBOARD EVIL

Also Means More in Revenue for City.

A telling blow against the billboard evil in Chicago was struck yesterday when an amendment to the building code, passed by the city council recently, was put into effect. The amendment will remove many billboards from the streets and bring thousands of dollars in extra revenue into the city treasury, it was revealed.

A complete new ordinance intended to restrain the construction of billboards within the city limits to a reasonable degree is now before the judiciary committee of the city council. This committee will probably not meet again before fall and the amendment to the ordinance was offered as a temporary alleviation of the billboard evil.

No Fee in Old Bill.

The amendment removes one practice under which the outdor advertising companies had evaded the purpose of the old ordinance. The ordinance formerly provided that no fee would be charged for signboards less than 65 square feet in area, attached to the surface of buildings, if such signboards gave publicity to a business in that building.

The companies thus were able to put up signboards without fees by placing the name of the business occupying the building on the billboard in an inconspicuous position and using the greater part of the board to advertise some product.

The new amendment provides that such billboards "may carry the name and address of the owner of the building and the nature of his business, but shall in no event advertise any article manufactured by another person."

Change System of Fees.

The old ordinance also charged a fee of $5 for each 25 linear feet of billboard or fraction thereof, whereas the amendment provides for fees based upon the area of the billboard in square feet. This change will also make billboards more costly to erect and is expected to reduce the number erected in the city.

Assistant Corporation Counsel Gibson E. Gorman, in charge of billboard litigation, said that the complete new ordinance is being pushed as rapidly as possible, but that delay has been caused by technicalities which have arisen. A dispute between the electrical and building departments of the city concerning which is to have supervision of the billboards is now being ironed out.

APPEARS BEFORE GREEN A SECOND TIME; FINE IS $50

Frank De Carlo, known to police as a pickpocket, was fined $50 by Judge Thomas A. Green on a disorderly conduct charge. De Carlo was before Judge Green on a similar charge Wednesday and received a $25 fine which was later cut to $1 fine and $1 costs. The reduction, the judge explained, was made when a lawyer threatened to appeal the case. When De Carlo left the courtroom Wednesday he was taken in custody again on another disorderly conduct charge. Judge Green fined him $50 and announced that this time the fine would not be reduced. Late yesterday an inspection of the court sheets showed that the fine still stood.

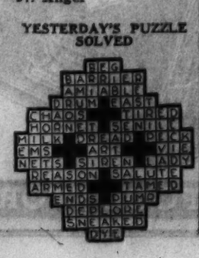
YESTERDAY'S PUZZLE SOLVED



1 OUT OF EVERY 7 FARMS FOUND TO BE ELECTRIFIED

Depression Fails to Slow Progress.

BY PAUL POTTER.

One out of every seven American farms uses electricity in home and farming operations, according to a report made by Dr. E. A. White, director of the national committee on relation of electricity to agriculture, at the ninth annual meeting of the committee yesterday in the Sherman hotel. There are 698,786 farms now using electricity, 26,994 of which are located in Illinois, he said.

DR. E. A. WHITE.

Even during these times of low commodity prices more farms are being equipped with electric lighting and motor equipment, Dr. White showed, and six states have at least half of their farms electrified. These are California, Rhode Island, Utah, Massachusetts, Connecticut and Washington.

Illinois Among Leaders.

The five states adding the largest number of electrified farms in 1931 were Michigan, Illinois, New York, Pennsylvania and Wisconsin. The chief gains in use have been in those areas where irrigation is practiced or where the most farms are owned by their operators.

Each year sees new uses for electricity on the farm, Dr. White said. From lighting homes, hen houses and barnyards to grinding feed, powering ensilage cutters and cooling milk, farmers have more than a hundred possible uses for current.

"No matter how unsatisfactory economic conditions may be," said Dr. White, "there is a substantial group of farmers who are in a sound financial position and who are able to do things if they become convinced regarding the advantage of action.

Back to the Farm.

"Farm owners are beginning to realize that the farm is a good place to stay. In addition there is a genuine back to the farm movement under way."

Included in the electrical committee membership are officials of the American Farm Bureau federation, National Grange, National Electric Light association, American Home Economics association, General Federation of Women's clubs, electrical manufacturers and governmental agencies.

Mr. Evans, who was 65 years old, was connected with the stockyards until his retirement some years ago, when he went to Marlboro, Mass., to live. He had been ordered to San Diego for his health. He was at one time lieutenant governor of the New England states Kiwanis clubs. He is survived by one son, the Rev. Richard E. Evans, of Wauwatosa, Wis.

Mrs. Dietrich explained that she and her husband were reconciled.

BAIN'S TROUBLES BEFORE CRASH TOLD AT TRIAL

$340,000 Lost in Stock Market.

South Park Commissioner John Bain's financial distress in the months preceding the closing of his twelve banks was told yesterday at the trial in which he is a defendant, with three members of his family, on charges of conspiracy to defraud. He had stock market losses of $340,000 and was being dunned by his brokers and other bankers while officials of his banks were signing notes on which he obtained further credit from downtown banks, according to the evidence.

MISS ANNA EUNSON.

Assistant State's Attorney Edwin J. Raber, who is prosecuting the trial, which is being held before Judge John M. O'Connor without a jury, called Miss Anna Eunson, former personal secretary to Bain, as the first witness yesterday.

Woman Identifies Letters.

Miss Eunson identified letters written to Bain by a brokerage firm and by the Chase National bank of New York. The brokers asked for more margin. The bank asked repayment of a loan of $50,000 that was three years old.

Attorney Francis X. Busch, defense attorney, sought to have the letters excluded from evidence on the ground they were taken from Bain's personal files and were used in violation of his constitutional rights. Judge O'Connor overruled the objection.

Former Director Testifies.

Carl Hornung, 3031 South May street, a former director of the West Englewood bank—one of the Bain chain—testified that in April, 1931, two months before the bank was closed, Edward C. Barry, president of the bank, told him to sign a note for $25,000 and to bring in $20,000 of good collateral because heavy withdrawals were being made by people who wished to pay taxes. He later learned the note and the mortgages were put up with a loop bank for a loan, he testified.

Mr. Raber said the Bain banks collected $884,000 of taxes, acting under authority of the county treasurer, but never gave the money to the county.

FLAGLER ESTATE TRUSTEES SUED TO SAVE RAILWAY

Contend Fund Was Left to Assist Road.

New York, July 15.—[Special.]—A suit to compel trustees of the estate of the late Mrs. Mary Lily Flagler Bingham, widow of the late Henry M. Flagler, to save the Florida East Coast Railway company from "destruction as a going concern by forced sale on foreclosure" has been brought in Supreme court here. The suit was filed by Scott M. Loftin, as receiver for the railway.

Mr. Loftin declared in his complaint that Mrs. Bingham, who married Robert Worth Bingham, Louisville publisher, after Mrs. Flagler's death, left the bulk of her estate in a trust fund for twenty-one years from the date of her will, at the end of which time it was to be divided between her brother and two sisters.

The trust fund was to be applied to the maintenance and administration of the railway and of the Florida East Coast Hotel company, another enterprise fostered by Mr. Flagler. Mr. Flagler left an estate of $75,000,000, of which about $60,000,000 was estimated as the widow's share. The complaint said that the present market value of the trust was about $12,000,000.

The railroad has defaulted in installments of $2,500,000 interest on its bonds, Mr. Loftin said, and out of its own funds it will be unable to pay the defaulted or the future installments of bond interest or certain equipment trust obligations due in 1932.

The trustees, he declared, are under mandatory duty to apply the funds of the trust to the reasonable needs of the road. They have refused to do this, he said. Although they advanced $1,250,000 for the March 1, 1932 interest payment.

Mr. Loftin asked that Mrs. Bingham's will be construed to apply the trust for the railroad's benefit, that an accounting be had, and that an injunction be issued to prevent the payments out of the fund except as ordered by the court.

Mrs. Bingham's will, setting the beginning of the twenty-one year period, was dated 1916.

OIL INDUSTRY FACING OUTPUT CONTROL CRISIS

Official Tells Efforts Toward Stability.

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

"The crude oil industry is in balance at the moment, but it is in the position of a man sitting on a keg of dynamite."

Thus an official of one of the leading oil companies of the country yesterday epitomized the situation now existing in the petroleum industry—the nation's fifth largest—during a discussion as to the significance of recent increases in crude oil prices.

"The industry has reached this point as a result of coöperation among the producers, action on the part of the states to control the output and the assistance of the board of conservation at Washington," he explained. "The dynamite threat consists of a return to unlimited production, but we believe the industry has learned its lesson."

Other Commodities Higher.

Recently a number of commodity prices, including those of live stock and dairy products, have shown an upward tendency. That has been interpreted as indicating that the farmers' situation is improving. Since early in the spring the price of crude oil has advanced a number of times. In some fields it passed the dollar a barrel mark for the first time in months.

Production now runs around 2,100,000 barrels of crude oil a day in comparison with better than 2,600,000 for a time when East Texas and Oklahoma City fields were running wild last summer. During that time crude dropped as low as a few cents a barrel, while the average now is about 92 cents a barrel for 36 degree gravity. A year ago the average price was 39 cents. Gasoline prices in the midcontinent area are two cents higher than they were last year. This is a substantial increase when it is learned 15 billion gallons are sold in the entire country in a year.

Land Owner's Royalty.

The owner of the land on which oil wells are located gets a royalty usually of an eighth of the oil produced. Thus, in cases of free flowing wells an increase in the price of crude means a substantial increase in income for the oil producers. The oil official explained that since there are some 300,000 wells in the country participating in the 2,100,000 barrel daily output the returns from the price increases have been so divided up as to mean little to the small wells. The average is 7 barrels a well.

"The cost of lifting the oil from the ground and the cost of transporting it bear down heavily on the revenues of the crude producers, with the result that several thousand small wells have been junked in the last year or so," he said.

"Oil is a mineral that can never be replaced in the ground," the official went on. "Once it is gone it is gone forever, and thus it behooves the country to exercise some control to prevent the dissipation of this resource. One source of direct waste is overproduction. Another major cause of waste is dissipation of gas lifting energy resulting from improper and excess production."

Taxes Are Big Burden.

Taxation imposes a huge burden on the "money crop" of crude oil—gasoline. Running from 3 cents a gallon it has even reached 11 cents in some states. The result is that the margin of profit gets ever smaller because the public will not pay much more than present prices. Consequently the big gasoline companies must bear a large part of the tax if they are to maintain their sales.

The official points out that because they have so priced their product as to fit the public's pocketbook the big refining companies have maintained their volume business. However, experience has shown that when the price of gasoline reaches a certain point the law of diminishing return rules and sales diminish. Thus the effect of a constantly increasing tax on gasoline on the industry may be readily seen.

Some weights bearing heavily on the gasoline business, he asserted, are the chaotic conditions in marketing, evasion of taxes by unscrupulous dealers, and so-called "gyp" dealers who defraud the public. Taking up the first point, he said there are about four times as many selling outlets as are economically required. In the second case the extent of bootlegging gasoline is being reduced and in the third the public must be educated to the fact it is being swindled when it buys misbranded products.

Report New Oil Pact.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 15.—A gentlemen's agreement whereby Rumania will reduce production of crude oil by 15 per cent in return for a guarantee of an increase in the price of gasoline by 30 per cent was reported today in dispatches from the international oil conference in Paris.

Word of the agreement, however, was entirely informal and delegates to the conference are reported to have denied such an accord had been reached.

Fixes East Texas Quota.

Austin, Tex., July 15.—(AP)—The Texas railroad commission today set the allowable production of the east Texas oil field at 46 barrels per well daily for the fifteen day period beginning tomorrow at 7 a. m. The field had been on a flat 50 barrels per well output since July 1.

Trade Board, Stock Market Clashing Again

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

An open conflict between the Chicago Board of Trade and the Chicago stock exchange over the question of the dual listing of securities was precipitated yesterday.

At a special meeting of the governing committee of the stock exchange the formal application of Swift International for the listing of its capital stock was approved. The action followed by one day the admission of Swift International shares to unlisted trading privileges on the securities department of the Board of Trade.

Under the constitution of the exchange members are forbidden to trade in securities on any other market in Illinois which permits dealing in shares. This section of the constitution was amended late in 1928, when the Board of Trade threatened to list several shares which were listed on the stock exchange.

Cause for $500 Fine.

Violation of this rule of the exchange constitution renders a member liable to a fine of $500 and suspension for 60 days. Members who are connected with, through partnership or otherwise, with an exchange or similar organization which permits dealings in shares listed on the Chicago Stock exchange are also subject to the same penalty.

Inasmuch as most stock exchange houses also hold seats on the Board of Trade, these members will be liable to fine and suspension if the Board of Trade goes ahead with its plan to deal in Swift International shares. According to the announced plan of the Board of Trade, dealing in the stock will begin Monday.

What effect the exchange move would have on the board's plan for trading in the stock was a matter of conjecture last night. Robert P. Boylan, chairman of the board's stock list committee, declined to discuss the question last night. He said that his committee would meet this morning to consider the matter.

Follows Era of Peace.

The renewal of the fight between the two organizations breaks a peace which has prevailed for three years. The feud originated in 1928, when the Board of Trade inaugurated a securities market and threatened to begin trading in several issues listed on the stock exchange. The exchange retaliated by amending its rules as outlined above. After protracted negotiations a "gentlemen's agreement" was finally entered into by which each organization promised not to raid the other's list.

The agreement was scrapped several months ago by the Board of Trade when it notified the exchange that it would no longer be bound by the terms of the truce.

Traded for Many Years.

Swift International has been traded in on the Chicago exchange for many years, although it was never formally listed. Recently it has been one of the most active shares on the market. Loss of the market in the stock at this time would have been a particularly hard blow to the exchange because of the current low ebb of trading.

The issue is the only "unlisted stock" in which the exchange members continued to trade. In former years several stocks not formally listed were traded in, but one by one they have been dropped. An unlisted stock is not subject to the requirements as is a formally listed security. Among other requirements concerns whose shares are listed must make periodical reports on earnings and financial conditions.

Swift International was organized in 1918 to take over the foreign operations of Swift & Co. Its business centers in South America and Australia. The management is the same as that of the big packing firm.

CHICAGO STOCK PRICES ADVANCE; EDISON LEADER

Stock prices generally were higher on the Chicago exchange yesterday. The feature of the trading was the strength shown by Commonwealth Edison. Selling minus the quarterly dividend of $1.25, which goes to stockholders of record Thursday, the issue moved ahead 2½ points to 59. This is the highest price reached by the stock in many weeks.

Common shares of Public Service of Northern Illinois were also in slightly better demand, although the trading was unusually light. Packing shares continued fairly active, holding around their previous quotations.

Other issues to record improvement were United States Gypsum, Quaker Oats, Borg Warner and United States Radio.

Consolidated Oil Bids for Control of Rio Grande

The later's chief operating company is in Texas. Rio Grande Oil has outstanding 1,235,823 shares of stock. The proposed basis of exchange would be equivalent to one share of Consolidated Oil corporation stock for approximately 2.5 shares of Rio Grande stock.

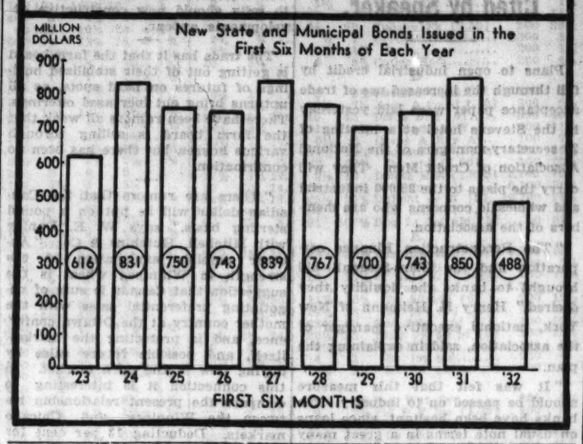
New Municipal Bond Issues Are Lowest in a Decade



COURT HEARS KREUGER STOLE 50 MILLION BONDS

Judge Grants Writ to Tie Up Interest.

New York, July 15.—(AP)—The Irving Trust company, trustee in bankruptcy, alleged in a motion filed in federal court today that Ivar Kreuger, Swedish capitalist, stole $50,000,000 in bonds belonging to the International Match company while he was its president. He committed suicide last March in Paris.

Claims Interest on Bonds.

The allegation was made in a motion granted by Federal Judge Julian W. Mack to force Lee, Higginson & Co., the Chase National bank, and five Swedish banking concerns to show cause why they should not be restrained from paying $1,500,000 interest on German reich bonds to any one but the receiver.

The complaint set forth that Kreuger, ruler of a vast match empire at the time of his death, "did abstract, remove, and take away" the bonds and "did deposit them to his own credit unlawfully and without any warrant" with the Skandinaviska Kreditaktie Bolaget, one of his manifold enterprises.

Subsequently, it was set forth, the deposit of certificates to Kreuger's credit was divided among a number of his other corporations.

Would Have Paid.

Payment of $1,500,000 as a semi-annual installment of interest on the $50,000,000 block of bonds became due today and in the absence of Judge Mack's action, coupons on the issue would have been redeemable at the offices of the Chase National bank, acting in a fiduciary capacity for the German government.

In granting the motion, Judge Mack issued an order to show cause next Tuesday and authorized a temporary injunction prohibiting the defendants from taking any steps to pay the interest.

BUILDING DROPS 15 PER CENT IN 45 ILLINOIS CITIES

Residential building was the only one of the various classes of construction in 45 Illinois cities to show a gain for June over May, according to building figures made public yesterday by Howard B. Myers, chief of the division of statistics and research of the Illinois department of labor. The general June decline in number of buildings was 15 per cent and in estimated expenditures 26.5 per cent.

Expenditures for residential buildings increased 35.8 per cent in June in comparison with May, expenditures for nonresidential building declined 66.8 per cent while expenditures for additions, alterations, etc., declined 7.2 per cent.

During June the 45 cities listed in the report authorized 1,017 building permits involving an expenditure of $1,078,540, compared with expenditures of $6,682,999 in June, 1931. Expenditures on residential construction in June this year totaled $393,270. Chicago building permits totaled only $408,545.

For the first 6 months of 1932 total expenditures authorized by permits in the 45 cities totaled only $8,144,027, in comparison with $54,598,787 for the period last year.

PAN-AMERICAN DEAL NEARS COMPLETION AS STOCK IS ASKED

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 15.—Stockholders of the Pan-American Foreign corporation, formed recently as the result of an arrangement whereby the Standard Oil company of New Jersey was to acquire the foreign properties of the Pan-American Petroleum and Transport company, today received a formal offer to turn over their holdings to the Jersey organization in accordance with terms of the deal.

The offer is made for the purpose of acquiring all the outstanding class A and class B shares.

The formal terms are virtually the same as those proposed by the Jersey organization when arrangements were consummated by the two corporations. The transactions involved are estimated at $146,000,000 carried out on the basis of book value of Pan-American foreign properties as of April 30, 1932.

Under the agreement the Jersey company was to pay $50,000,000 in cash over a period of four years and the remainder, estimated to be $96,000,000, in shares of Jersey stock at their book value as of the close of 1931.

ROADS TO START NEW CAMPAIGN AGAINST SLUMP

Leaders Discussing Plans in New York.

BY HOWARD WOOD.

The coming week will see a number of important developments in the railroads' new offensive against depression and the economic ills besetting them.

Tuesday the advisory council of the Association of Railway Executives will confer in New York and the following day the association's entire membership will meet in the same city. Thursday the Railroad Credit corporation, the body which deals out to carriers unable to meet fixed charges the meager amounts raised through the emergency freight surcharges, will hold a session in New York.

Something is bound to come out of the numerous railroad executives' conferences that are being held with increasing frequency in New York and Chicago, according to insiders.

Still Further Cuts.

Perhaps the first step will be a concerted drive throughout the country to cut down railroad expenses still further.

A year ago last spring when the carriers asked the interestate commerce commission's permission to raise freight rates 15 per cent, many railroad spokesmen expressed the opinion that everything had been cut to the bone except wages.

Rate increases were allowed on certain commodities through the imposition of emergency surcharges, but these increases will probably produce less than one-half the amount originally estimated by the commission. Labor has taken a general ten per cent cut.

Despite these reductions in operating expenses it is estimated that the operations of class 1 railroads in the first half year resulted in an aggregate deficit of $137,000,000. Freight car loadings were about a quarter below the first half of 1931. Only about a third of the roads had earnings sufficient to cover their interest charges in full.

Their Real Nemesis.

One of the chief reasons for the numerous meetings of railroad executives during the last few weeks and the increasing spirit of coöperation between lines serving the same territory has been the realization that the real nemesis of the railroads has not been the depression, but rather the greatly increased competition from other types of transportation at a time when the railroads are so hamstrung with out of date regulative restrictions that they are unable to adapt themselves to this competition.

At the meeting Wednesday railway leaders hope to draft a new statement of policy with which all the roads can agree. Some of them say that there is likelihood of a new railroad appeal to the nation to give the roads more freedom so that they may be in a better position to compete with trucks and boats.

There is in prospect, also, the adoption of a plan whereby passenger transportation facilities may be pooled in order to eliminate expensive duplication of service.

Who Will Save Roads?

"Who will save the railroads?" asks the Railway Age in its issue, out today.

"Comparing railway statistics for the early months of 1932 with those for the early months of 1929, we find that the number of employés has declined 32.5 per cent during the depression; total wages paid, 41 per cent; operating expenses, 42 per cent; passenger business, 41 per cent; freight traffic, 50 per cent, and total earnings, 46.5 per cent.

"If these figures do not indicate a need for salvation of the railroad industry and its employés and of the railway equipment and supply manufacturing industry and its employés, then we do not know what figures would be required to demonstrate a need for their salvation."

Of the 1,650,000 employés who were on the pay roll of the railroads three years ago, the Railway Age says, only 1,100,000 are now employed.

Jobs in Doubt.

"Those who are still employed will have to have their present wages drastically reduced and those that are not now employed cannot hope ever to be employed by the railways again unless traffic is restored to the rails and the railways get fair regulation from the interstate commerce commission.

"All over the country employés are taking the lead in organizing citizens' and taxpayers' associations for the purpose of securing equality of government treatment of railways and competing carriers. The railway labor organizations have adopted resolutions advocating such equality of treatment."

French Gasoline Rail Car Hailed as Airplane Rival

BY SCRUTATOR.

Passengers on American railroads in the not distant future may travel at speeds and with comfort hitherto unknown. In the battle for traffic with the motor bus and the airplane, the railroads have speeded up their through trains and equipped them with air conditioning devices. Now they are seeking to give these and other advantages to local traffic by developing a rubber tired rail coach that for speed will outstrip the motor bus and approach the airplane.

Experiments with the rail coach and its possibilities are outlined in The Rail, a new service magazine issued by the Chesapeake and Ohio and the Pere Marquette railroads. Speed approaching 100 miles an hour is predicted, in addition to greater comfort and lower costs.

French Gift to Yankees.

"France's gift to transportation, the Michelin rail coach, holds forth the prospect that the near future will see gasoline and rubber on the rails pitted against gasoline and rubber of the public highways," the magazine says. "The prospect hinges upon successful conclusions of tests under way. In the meantime, railroad men may regale themselves with the thought that it would be at least poetic justice if, by using the other fellow's weapons, they can turn the tables on the buses and trucks.

"Certain it is that the buses and trucks must be grappled with, for, running hither and yon with passengers and freight at all hours and without a fraction of the railroad maintenance cost, they have seriously damaged railroad revenues and threatened the transportation structure. If the Michelin coach, now under manufacture by the Budd-Michelin company, should successfully compete with the highway transportation system, there would be justice of more than a poetic nature involved. The benefits would accrue principally to those who need them most—the traveling and shipping public.

"The rail coach is too new to permit of a complete outline of its field, but it is readily apparent that its first success must be in the short haul of passengers and freight. It is built to the task and it is an important one, for the mushroom development of bus and truck lines has shouldered almost out of existence the local train that tooted up hill and down dale, making all stops to collect and distribute passengers and freight. Almost daily the trucks widen their horizon and it is possible that the rail coach some day might successfully compete on the long hauls.

40 Persons, 100 Miles an Hour.

"Claims made for the rail coach are interesting. Powered with a 90 horse power gasoline motor and given a steel body with seats for 40 passengers, it is credited with a maximum speed of 100 miles per hour at a gasoline consumption of one gallon to 10 miles. Its sponsors assert that it can operate at a cost of 15 cents per mile.

"It is in the possibility that a rail coach would be able to maintain frequent and economic service on branch lines or between certain main line points where travel is light, that most interest will center. Whereas declining revenues have forced the railroads to curtail or abandon much of their local service and surrender trade to the trucks and buses, it is conceivable that a rail coach might recover the traffic. If it can justify itself, it will offer the public comfortable and fast service at a low cost."

Other advantages of the rail coach are recited by the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company, which has developed a tire with a steel flange to hold it to the rail and which has an internal device to prevent it running flat if punctured. This tire also is quickly demountable.

Speedy and Quiet, Too.

"The special coaches being built to use rail tires are of stainless steel construction, light and powerful, having a weight of 11,000 pounds as against as high as 150,000 pounds for the big Pullmans," it is said. "The lighter weight will be effective, engineers estimate, in cutting maintenance charges on railroad right of ways by a substantial figure.

"The coach is certain to be of immediate appeal to the passenger because of its extreme comfort and quietness. The pneumatic tire cushions the jolting of rail joints and uneven trackage. The motor, sheltered away in a special compartment, makes no more noise than any other automobile engine."

2 INVESTMENT TRUSTS REPORT LOWER ASSETS

New York, July 15.—(AP)—Among larger investment trusts issuing their midyear statements today were the Tri-Continental corporation and the Goldman Sachs Trading corporation.

Tri-Continental reported that the net asset value of its preferred stock outstanding June 30 was $71.14 a share. This compares with $100.94 per share on Dec. 31. An increase was shown in cash account, which exceeded $9,000,000, or approximately 37 per cent of assets.

Goldman Sachs Trading reported a net asset value per share of capital stock of $4.42 as of June 30, against $7.06 on Dec. 31. Investments on June 30, taken at market value where available, amounted to $35,858,362, but of this, the principal investment, held through Pacific American Company, Ltd., was the American Trust company, and it was given a book value of $22,144,522. During the six months Goldman Sachs Trading reduced its notes payable by $1,900,000 to a total of $7,600,000. The balance sheet showed cash at $524,343.

Missouri Orders Natural Gas Sale to City Plants

Jefferson City, Mo., July 15.—(AP)—The state public service commission today assumed jurisdiction over the Panhandle Eastern Pipe Line company, which claimed its business was entirely interstate, and ordered it to serve without discrimination municipal corporations as well as private distributors with natural gas.

The commission, in ordering the Panhandle Eastern to supply Fulton, Mo., at "reasonable rates," held the company and its subsidiary, the Central States Gas Utilities company, are conducting a common intrastate business.

Iowa Concern Sues for $1,500,000 from Equitable

Forest City, Ia., July 15.—(AP)—H. M. Havner, former attorney general of Iowa, today filed suit on behalf of the Collins Mortgage company of Cedar Rapids against the Equitable Life Assurance company of the United States seeking $1,500,000 as commissions for dealings handled by the Iowa concern. The suit, filed in Winnebago County District court, was a counter action to one started by the Equitable company, a New York concern, seeking to foreclose a $10,000 mortgage against L. J. Busely and also claims of several thousand dollars against the Collins company.

Orders $38,856 Refund on Definition of WordVending

Philadelphia, Pa., July 15.—(AP)—Federal Judge William H. Kirkpatrick today ruled that "quarter meters" used by gas companies are not "automatic slot device vending machines." In consequence the internal revenue bureau will have to refund to the American Meter company $38,856 collected as taxes on "slot vending devices." Judge Kirkpatrick said "a peddler or huckster vends his wares, but to say that a gas company 'vends' gas or that a railway company 'vends' transportation is, to say the least, most inept."

Names Ancillary Receivers for Fox Theater Corp.

Philadelphia, Pa., July 15.—(AP)—As a result of the appointment of a receiver in New York for the Fox Theaters corporation Judge W. H. BY FRED HARVEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 15.—The share market took fresh heart from the day's news and edged forward on its whole front once again. Washington dispatches foreshadowing early congressional agreement on the relief measure and adjournment were particularly encouraging. The promise had been held out before, it is true, but the prospects had never appeared quite so bright as today. Strength in cotton and wheat and assurances that the second quarter earnings reports now coming in will not be without some bright spots were other cheering factors.

The new advance was rather late in getting under way and those appearing in the market as buyers did not burst any suspender buttons in getting their orders down, but the improvement was steady and by quitting time gains of from a fraction to 2 points or more were growing where minus signs had shown before. Oil, railroad and tobacco shares made the best group showings.

Tobaccos Are Strong.

The tobaccos were conspicuously strong. Liggett & Myers B shares spurted 3 points, the American common and B issues about 2 each and Reynolds about a point. Some fairly substantial orders appeared for each of these issues at intervals during the afternoon. Increased cigaret consumption during June was said to be the secret behind the enthusiasm here, and the buying was largely for the account of shorts, who had overstayed their hands.

In the utilities division, American Telephone set the market a good example by standing up stoutly in the face of its earnings statement for the first half of the year in the early trading and then joining in the general forward movement in the afternoon. Its closing sale reflected a net gain of nearly 2 points. The second quarter figures of the corporation showing net equal to $1.95 a share, compared with $2.07 a share in the March quarter were about in line with recent estimates. Peoples Gas was again in the forefront with a gain of 1⅝ points.

Atchison, Union Pacific, and New Haven showed the way in the railroad group.

Preferred Stocks Gain.

Various preferred stocks continued to find their markets thin and to cash in on the discovery. Those of General Gas, Case, New Haven, Remington Rand, Safeway Stores, Worthington, and Kresge were able to advance 1 to 3 points on light turnover.

Petroleum issues made a good showing generally. The run of buying in this quarter of activity had little in the way of explanation in active news development and the consensus was that the demand had nothing newer for its basis than popular anticipations that the second quarter earnings statements of some of the leading oil companies are going to stand out rather fetchingly in comparison with those of corporations in other industries. The petroleum industry is one of the few in which profits so far this year have been running ahead of those for the corresponding period of 1931. Standard Oil of California, Atlantic Refining, Houston, and Standard of New Jersey were prominent in the move.

Gillette Safety Razor Earns Rate of $1.25 Share

Gillette Safety Razor company in six months ended June 30 earned $1.25 a common share, against 95 cents a share after special reserve and $1.55 a share before special reserve in the like 1931 period. For the June quarter the company earned 59 cents, against 66 cents in the previous quarter and 42 cents a share after special reserve and 73 cents before special reserve in the June, 1931, quarter.

SECOND GRADE RAIL BONDS MAKE STRIKING GAINS

Stocks on New York Curb Register Advances.

New York, July 15.—(AP)—Bonds continued to make headway in moderate trading, although the movement was somewhat less uniform. The United States governments were barely steady and some of the foreigns reacted moderately, but among the domestic issues striking gains were made in spots, particularly among second grade rails and in the oils.

Some of the gilt edged issues were inclined to soften, possibly reflecting some switching in search of better yields. The price index of 60 corporate issues again gained one-fifth of a point.

In the rails a feature was a large turnover and an advance of more than 4 points in the Nickel Plate 6s. Substantial gains also appeared in such issues as Rock Island refunding 4s, Burlington 4s of 1949, some of the Chicago and North Westerns, New Haven convertible 6s, and others.

Show Slight Decline.

In the utilities the Consolidated Gas issues eased slightly, possibly reflecting some shifting into the new issue of 5s put on the market today at 94. The American Telephone issues were about steady. Metropolitan Edison 5s dropped 3 points. A group of stockholders in Pennsylvania petitioned for an investigation of Metropolitan and its parent company, Associated Gas.

In the oils gains of about 1 to 2 points appeared in issues of Phillips Petroleum, Sinclair, Shell, Texas corporation, and others. Standard of New York 4½c were up ⅝, while Standard of New Jersey 5s sagged ½.

In the foreigns the German governments recovered from an early sag to close about steady. Argentines reacted. United Kingdom 5½s sagged ⅝ of a point and French 7½s ⅜.

Curb Also Gains

The curb market resumed its advance in the afternoon trading today, after considerable hesitancy during the morning. Gains predominated among the more active issues at the finish, although some soft spots remained. Some of the more thinly traded utility issues made substantial gains. Commonwealth Edison, Hartford Electric, and Pennsylvania Power and Light 7 per cent preferred gained about 4 points. Long Island Lighting 7 per cent preferred jumped 6, and Mohawk-Hudson 1st preferred, 10.

Makes New Low.

Associated Gas A again made a new low, at ⅝, and closed at ⅞. The problem of refunding the notes of its subsidiary, Rochester Gas and Electric, currently falling due caused some uncertainty, and a solution had not been announced, while the market was in session, although it was understood Associated might lose control of its subsidiary. American Gas and Electric gained a point, and Electric Bond was up a fraction.

Oils were steady to firm, with both Gulf and Indiana up fractionally. Newmont was again a firm spot in the mining issues, rising 1½ points to 7½. Industrials were mixed. A. O. Smith gained 2 points, and Aluminum, Ltd., was up a fraction. Dixon Crucible made one of its rare appearances, off 8 points to 24, and Mapes Consolidated appeared 2 lower.

WHEAT PRICES MAKE FAIR GAIN IN CHICAGO PIT

Action at Liverpool Aids Sentiment Here.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Failure of the Liverpool market to respond to the decline in North American markets on Thursday was mainly responsible for a pronounced change in sentiment on the Chicago Board of Trade yesterday and a moderate advance in prices. The advances followed liquidation and a decline to new low levels earlier in the day. July wheat dropped to 45c at the low point, establishing nearly the lowest level that the trade has known.

Liquidation ran its course inside of the first hour with the stock market lower. However, the sharp rally in securities later in the day, coupled with the advance in cotton, brought a return of confidence and an upturn of ¾c to 1c from the extreme low. At the finish July was 45⅛@45⅝c, with September 47⅞@48c, and December 51⅛@51⅜c.

Winnipeg acted strong and October appeared to be pegged at around 56c, with the close at net gains of ⅛@⅝c. Liverpool closed unchanged to ⅜c lower.

Afraid to Buy Wheat.

Prices are down so low that the majority of traders say that they see nothing in the short side, yet they are afraid to buy wheat heavy because of the narrowness of the general trade.

In the face of this situation the open interests in futures here have increased around 4,000,000 bu in the last few days. Traders have little confidence despite the fact that any positive improvement in the world's situation might easily change conditions in North America for the better.

Conditions Are Favorable.

Spring wheat conditions in the American and Canadian northwest continue most favorable and we are within two to four weeks of the commencement of harvest, the latter in Canada. This tends to keep many traders off the buying side, except on the break, and then small profits are readily taken, making a comparatively narrow market. One factor that drew attention was the sale of 500,000 bu Canadian hard winters for export.

Movement of new wheat in the southwest was reflected in receipts of 2,321 cars as compared with 4,163 cars last year. Argentine shipments were freely commented upon as being only 465,000 bu, as compared with 1,973,000 bu last year. Australian shipments, however, are 2,594,000 bu, compared with 2,596,000 bu last year. Russia was in the market for steamers to load grain for the United Kingdom. Russian shipments so far this season have fallen materially below those of last year and no one knows to a certainty what it will do in the way of export business next year.

Shorts Cover Corn.

Shorts were good buyers of corn, mainly to take profits, and there was closing of spreads in the way of covering short corn and unloading long wheat. Outside of a little flurry in the early trading there was very little interest in the market aside from spreading operations. Weather and crop conditions were regarded as perfect for the crop. However, there were reports from northern Kansas that the crop was going backward because of hot dry weather. The market is gaining friends on breaks, but there are no indications of pronounced buying in expectation of a big advance. Country offerings of corn were fair, with 100,000 bu bought to arrive and 60,000 bu sold for shipment, with arrangements for moving out 400,000 bu to Buffalo. At the close, futures were ⅝@¾c higher, with July 30¾c, September 32¾c, and December 32⅝@32¾c.

New lows were made for July oats early in the day, with a drop to 18⅜c, while September was down to 18⅞c. Northwestern interests were hedging, presumably against purchases of new oats, while local interests supplied the buying.

Spreading operations featured the trading in rye, with a little pressure from the northwest. However, it was not heavy, yet the close was at gains of ⅝@⅞c, July leading, with the finish 29¼c.

The brakes were applied to declining hog prices soon after the opening yesterday and before the session ended the market had been tilted upward again. The extreme top for the day showed a 10c gain at $5.20, while the general average price came up 5c to $4.65. The break was also stopped in the wholesale market for fresh pork loins, with prices at Chicago relatively lower than other places.

The movement of packing sows and the larger number of directs this week swelled the total at Chicago to about 113,000, the largest since May 28, and 22 per cent above the average for the last five weeks. Weights were heaviest since the fall of 1926. In spite of the break of 30@50c in hog prices this week the general average for the entire week is still 50 per cent above the low week of the year and 32 per cent above the average for the last ten weeks.

Prices Hold Well.

The small Friday supply of cattle met a slow weak trade, but prevailing quotations are not far from the highest spot of the year. The market for the entire week, as a whole, is highest since last November, the general average standing 27 per cent above the average for the last 10 weeks. Offerings were more liberal this week, the total at 36,500 equalling the largest since May, but they are much below normal for this time of the year, comparing with 44,305 a year ago and with 52,830 in 1930.

The bulk of steers yesterday cashed at $6.00@7.90, Wilson going up to $8.50 for 27 good 1,140 lb steers, while 10 head averaging 1,052 lbs brought $8.60. The trade is carrying a nominal quotation of $9.50 for prime weighty beeves.

Declines Halted.

A lighter run of lambs yesterday enabled sellers to call a halt to declining prices. Bulk of the supply of native and western range lambs changed hands at $6.00, about 23 carloads from Idaho going straight at that figure, which was also the top for natives. Matured stock and yearlings showed little change. Sheep receipts lately have been running larger and offerings have exceeded trade requirements. Lambs are closing $1.00@1.50 lower for the week, with yearling stock off 50@75c, and matured sheep 10@25c lower. Total arrivals for the week were largest since April 30 and 52 per cent above the average for the last six weeks. The market as a whole was lowest, barring one week, since June 4.

Receipts at Chicago for today are estimated at 500 cattle, 10,000 hogs, and 1,000 sheep, against 149 cattle, 4,932 hogs, and 3,391 sheep, the previous Saturday and 491 cattle, 7,757 hogs, and 4,595 sheep a year ago.

Probable receipts of hogs at Chicago for next Monday are estimated from 23,000 to 35,000. D. J. Carroll marked 23,000; F. M. Sherwood, 24,000; J. M. Water and R. B. Ellis, 25,000; R. Trullinger and H. Pattison, 26,000; J. A. Bunyan and M. J. Berkery, 27,000; W. T. Reneker, H. S. Turner, and G. W. Chandler, 28,000; G. Brittain, 29,000; S. Lund, F. Knutzen and W. Garrett, 30,000, and W. Burrows, 35,000.

Youngstown Sheet and Tube.

I am considering exchanging some stock I own for stock of Youngstown Sheet and Tube. Has Youngstown Sheet and Tube but one class of stock? Please give me some information on the company.—J. R. S.

Youngstown Sheet and Tube company, one of the largest steel manufacturers in the United States, produces a diversified line of steel and iron products. It is the second largest producer of steel pipe.

Operations are completely integrated. Its Minnesota and Michigan iron ore reserves are sufficient to meet a normal demand for 40 years. Its coal reserves cover 11,309 acres in Pennsylvania and West Virginia. It also owns zinc mines and substantial limestone deposits.

Steel companies, supplying a basic commodity, are sensitive to business conditions. On April 27, 1932, a press dispatch stated that operations of Youngstown were at 20.6 per cent of capacity, against 16.8 per cent of capacity for the first quarter of 1932. Operations in 1931 averaged 32.6 per cent of capacity, against 60 per cent in 1930 and 91.5 per cent in 1929.

Net loss for the first quarter of 1932 was $3,058,000, against net loss of $823,000 for the corresponding 1931 period.

Net sales in 1931 were $59,487,000, against $111,057,000 in 1930 and $161,038,000 in 1929. Net loss in 1931 was $7,041,000. Net income in 1930 was $7,036,000, or $5.17 per common share, against net income of $21,564,000, or $17.28 per common share, for 1929.

At the close of 1931 current assets were $73,238,000 and current liabilities were $6,067,000. Cash and marketable securities alone were $13,543,000. Working capital was $67,171,000 against $68,251,000 the year before.

Funded debt totals $94,000,000. There are outstanding 150,000 shares of 5½ per cent cumulative preferred stock [par $100] and 1,200,000 shares of no par common stock.

In view of unsatisfactory operations and discontinuance of dividends, both the preferred and the common are speculative at present.

California Gas and Electric.

I would greatly appreciate your opinion of California Gas and Electric company 5s, due 1937.—C. B. T.

COTTONSEED OIL.

NEW YORK, July 15.—(AP)—Bleachable cottonseed oil was quiet and prices were easier, under liquidation and scattered local selling, which offset the firmness of cotton. Crop complaints from the south and the firmness of corn and hogs. Sales were 1,050 bris. Crude oil was quoted at 3¼c in the valley and nominal in Texas with sales at 3¼c in the southeast, bleachable spot closed 3.80c; July, 3.90c; Sept., 4.05c; Dec., 4.15c; Jan., 4.19c.

DRY GOODS.

NEW YORK, July 15.—(AP)—Cotton goods were steady, today with a larger interest being shown in finished goods by wholesaliers. The cotton industry is averaging about 53 per cent capacity operations in the divisions where the largest yardages are involved. Silks were quiet and steady. Very low prices are named on boys' wear goods and on low end woolens for men's wear and women's wear. Rayon sales show a slight increase. Burlaps were quiet and easy.

LIVERPOOL COTTON.

LIVERPOOL, July 15.—(AP)—Cotton, 5,000 bales, including 2,700 American. Spot quiet; prices ten points lower; quotations in pence: American strict good middling, 5.13d; good middling, 4.88d; strict middling, 4.76d; middling, 4.66d; strict low middling, 4.58d; low middling, 4.48d; strict good ordinary, 4.28d; good ordinary, 3.98d; futures closed quiet. LONDON WOOL MARKET.

LONDON, July 15.—(AP)—The good selection offered at the wool auction today met with animated competition. Withdrawals were frequent among Merinos owing to firm limits. There were 7,062 bales offered, of which 5,820 were sold.
